"I DON'T SUFFER ANY MORE"

"Feel Like a New Person," says Mrs. Hamilton.

New Castle, Ind.—"From the time I was eleven years old until I was seventeen I suffered each month so I had to be in bed. I had headache, backache and such pains I would cramp double every month. I did not know what it was to be easy a minute. My health was all run down and the doctors did not do me any good. A neighbor told my mother about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took it, and now I feel like a new person. I don't suffer any more and I am regular every month."—Mrs. HAZEL HAMILTON, 222 South 15th St.

When a remedy has lived for forty years, steadily growing in popularity and influence, and thousands upon thousands of women declare they owe their health to it, is it not reasonable to believe that it is an article of great merit?

England Adds 50,000 More Men to Her Navy

London, Jan. 19.—England intends to add 50,000 new men to her navy. This is taken here today as indicative of a preliminary step toward enforcing an actual blockade against Germany.

While it was recently stated that 14 superdreadnaughts, as well as scores of smaller vessels, had been completed since the war began, the fact of this extensive proposed increase in personnel indicates that an even more surprising number of new ships have been created. Addition of the new draft will place 200,000 men at the disposal of the admiralty.

JUMMITS SUICIDE AT UNDERTAKER'S DOOR BY TAKING POISON

T. Lewis Put on His Best Clothes, Shaved and Then Drank Potassium Cyanide

Neatly dressed and clean shaven, T. Lewis, aged about 60 years, took potassium cyanide and lay down on the rear steps of the undertaking establishment of Webb & Clough where his lifeless body was found at 11:25 last night. Lewis left a note addressed to his daughter, Mrs. M. H. Forbes, Rural route No. 2, Kirkland, King county, Washington, in which he stated that his personal belongings were at the Depot hotel where he owed a week's board bill and if not to leave them, to pay the bill, and if not to leave them to the owner of the hotel. He gave no reason for his act, but it is thought that he was despondent at his lack of money.

On the reverse side of the note was written the information that he was a life member of Marshfield Arise No. 538, Fraternal Order of the Eagles, at Coos Bay. The body was found by P. E. Priddy, the night man at the undertaking parlors, who was returning with another body and had to pass through the rear of the building. Lewis' body was found in a small shed at the side of the rear door with his head resting on his hand grip. A strong odor of the poison was prevalent about the body and there was no doubt as to the means of suicide although the bottle containing the drug was not found. It is thought that he located the undertakers, took the poison and threw the bottle away as he knew that death would soon follow.

Mrs. Forbes, the daughter of the suicide, was informed of the death of her father, but this morning no word had been received from her relative to the disposition of the body.

WOMAN THREATENED RIVAL WITH DEATH

Witness Tells of Threats by Mrs. Mohr Against Her Rival Miss Burger

Providence, R. I., Jan. 19.—While Mrs. C. Franklin Mohr, pale and nervous, listened intently, witnesses in the trial of herself and two negroes, charged with the killing of her doctor husband, testified to threats on her part to "get" the doctor's companion, Miss Emily Burger.

After identifying a postal card threat as Mrs. Mohr's, George Brooks told of how she had said personally she would hire a couple of thugs to make war with Miss Burger, Brooks' sister-in-law. He was followed by Miss Florence Ormsby, Dr. Mohr's office clerk, who testified that on August 1 last, the widow told her she would shoot the doctor and Miss Burger in the doctor's automobile, and if she missed would throw vitrol in Miss Burger's eyes. The murder of Dr. Mohr and the wounding of Miss Burger occurred on August 31.

"On the day of the murder," said Miss Ormsby, "Mrs. Mohr telephoned me not to enter the doctor's machine." George Healis, negro chauffeur of the death car, was then placed on the stand.

PROF. ELLIOTT TALKS TO BOYS AND GIRLS

Makes Valuable Suggestions as to Keeping Young Folks Employed

"I wouldn't give a snap for a boy who would not take off his coat and fight for what he thought was right," declared Superintendent Elliott last night in his address before the Six O'Clock club of the First Methodist church. "Pugnacity is one of the boy's instincts and it is a good thing for the boy if used rightly."

"A boy is a bundle of instincts, of possibilities and tendencies. Every boy has within him the possibilities of being great and good, and in my 26 years experience with boys I have found but one who was totally depraved. A boy may inherit the physical but always the mental traits of his parents. It is for the parents as well as the teacher to direct him."

Mr. Elliott was of the opinion that educators were just beginning to appreciate the imitative instinct in boys and that imitation plays a great part in the life of a child. Acquiescence, or the desire to collect things was an instinct of the boy that should be directed and if not controlled might lead to dishonesty.

"No instinct is worth more in maturity," said Mr. Elliott, "than this desire to acquire, and properly controlled, gives one the power to supply our wants in later life."

Boys Like to Construct. Another instinct noted by Superintendent Elliott was that of constructiveness, or the craving to build or construct. The boys must make or build something. "Salem is the best city that I have ever known in which to raise boys. The best place for a boy is at home in his father's basement. Get your boys tools," urged Mr. Elliott, "and let him work in the basement. They are a hundred fold better off working in the basement than staying on the streets."

The tendency of boys to form in groups was referred to by the speaker. Boys will organize themselves in groups and instead of attempting to break up the group, it is better for the teacher or parent to become one of them and direct their efforts. Petty stealing is more a group or gang problem, but with the boys directed right by having an older hand directing, there would be no trouble.

"We put too much stress on football and basketball. Instead of developing a dozen or two boys, we hope in time to put our energies towards the physical development of every boy and girl in the city. I am happy to say that the school board of directors are working out a plan of physical instruction next year by which the whole school will be benefitted and not a dozen or more."

The social problem was also discussed by Mr. Elliott. "Way are girls found at the jitney dance? Because there is no other organized effort to supply them with wholesome amusement. I asked why a certain young girl went to these jitney dances and found out that this was the only place in town to which she could go for amusement." The superintendent urged that some means be found of directing the social activities of the young folks in order that a girl would not go to a jitney dance for her recreation.

In closing, the superintendent gave a little advice to the fathers. "Above all, your boys need the companionship of a man, and that man should be the father. Most boys have gone wrong because they never got on living terms with their fathers. They just know their fathers as the men who come home at meal times."

The address was regarded by all as one of the most interesting as well as practical talks that has been delivered before the Six O'Clock club.

Always be kept at the head of this institution.

"However," said Mr. Hale, "whenever a man is brought forward who is better qualified to handle the school in the best interests of the boys and the state I am ready to quit without a murmur, but, in the meantime, I will continue to direct the institution to the best of my ability and will pay no attention to any political rumors even though they do have it in the papers that I am to be removed."
