PORTLAND BOATS PUT ON NON-UNION CREWS

Three Are So Provided--Steamboat Men to Strike Tomorrow Morning

Portland, Ore., May 31.—Three river steamboats today put non-union crews to work, and a general strike of steamboat men at 6 a. m. tomorrow appeared certain.

The steamboat men planned to walk out here at the same time longshoremen in every Pacific coast port are scheduled to strike.

A strong impression prevailed in Portland, however, that shipping men would give in to the longshoremen and pay the new scale of wages demanded.

The crews of two steamboats struck because of trouble with the mates. One other steamboat captain discharged his crew and put non-union men to work today.

About 1,200 men will be involved if all the steamboat men strike.

Longshoremen are confident that shippers here will meet their demands. They point out that the scale of wages here has been higher than in San Francisco and Puget Sound ports, and the increase will not be such a blow to the employers.

Many of the shippers admitted frankly that the longshoremen "have them over a barrel" but insisted that whatever action they take will be concerted.

The plaintiff in the divorce suit of Anna Land against John H. Land was awarded a decree today by Judge Gallogway.

The couple were married in Minnesota in 1901 and have one child of whom the plaintiff was awarded the care and custody.

Cruel and inhuman treatment was the grounds for the divorce.

TRIO OF FAVORITES IN "MARTHA'S VINDICATION"

Norma Talmadge, Seena Owen and Tully Marshall Have Leading Roles.

Three popular Triangle players, Norma Talmadge, Tully Marshall and Seena Owen, are featured in the new Griffith-Triangle drama, "Martha's Vindication," which will be shown at the Oregon today and tomorrow.

The story of the play hinges on the sacrifice of Martha for her friend, Dorothea, whom the latter loves too well.

The man is killed in an automobile accident before he can keep his promise to marry Dorothea, and Martha volunteers to place the baby with an old nurse and save her friend from disgrace.

While Martha is on her way to place the baby with her former nurse she stays at a small hotel, where she is seen by a scoundrel named Sell Hawkins.

Later Hawkins remembers this when his wife's "baby farm" is raided by the police at Martha's instigation.

By her adoption of one of the wife's Hawkins and his wife are aided in a scheme for revenge. They adopt a new deception, ingratiate themselves with the pastor of the church of which Martha and Dorothea, the latter now married to Deacon Hunt, are members.

Angered by criticism of his wife, Hawkins suggests that there are worse sinners in the church than they and tells the story of the hotel incident.

Martha is summoned to trial before the congregation. On the day of the trial Dorothea telephoned to the aged couple who have brought her boy to a nearby house where she can visit him frequently and orders them to take him out of town.

She agrees to meet them at an obscure park and say goodbye.

At the hour she has set for the farewell of the trial of Martha is reaching its climax.—Dorothea is unable to leave, and the boy and his guardians tire of waiting and proceed in a taxicab.

The light vehicle is run down by a motor truck and the boy is badly hurt. The nurse picks him up and runs into the church, entering just as Dorothea has risen to depart and has been halted by John's charges that she and not Martha should be on trial.

As the nurse opens the door with the boy in her arms Dorothea rushes from the platform and clasps her child in her arms. There is a hasty recital of the real facts in the case, the Deacon yields to the pleas of Martha and forgives his wife for concealing her secret.

MILK MAIDS CHORUS IN "ROBIN HOOD"

Which Appears at the High School Auditorium Tonight

"Robin Hood," the celebrated comic opera by DeKoven and Smith, will be presented by over 50 members of the music department of the Salem high school, tonight at 8 o'clock at the school building under the direction of Miss Minnetta Magers.

"Robin Hood" promises to be among the best amateur productions of its kind since the "Mikado," given several years ago by the high school chorus.

The story of "Robin Hood" sparkles with fun and frolic and entrances with its musical numbers. The play abounds in action and is picturesque with villagers, milk maids, outlaws, archers, tinkers. The two leading parts will be taken by Miss Laura Minton as "Maid Marian" and Max Alford as "Robin Hood."

There will be an augmented orchestra. Professional talent will assist the high school players. One of the pretty dance numbers will be given by a group of six girls in the "Milk Maids" chorus. Those in the dance are the Misses Dorothy Thompson, Ruth Ogg, Flavia Dimick, Pauline Remington, Helen McInturff and Velma Hayes. Tickets will be sold during the day at Wills' music store and at night at the high school.

Bought Alcohol for A Colt and Used It For a Cold Is Charge

R. Caulfield was locked up in the county jail today to await a preliminary hearing in the justice court on a charge of perjury. It is charged that Caulfield made a false affidavit for the purpose of alcohol from a drug store in this city, signing the name R. Kline instead of his own and making affidavit that he wanted the alcohol for a cold, but apparently he used it for a cold. At any rate he was arrested by the Salem police last week and served a five day sentence in the city jail for drunkenness.

He will be given a preliminary hearing in the justice court Friday afternoon.

Smuggler Dumps His Pursuers In Ditch

Los Angeles, Cal., May 31.—Two sheriff's automobiles loaded with armed deputies are today searching the countryside near Norwalk for a mysterious alleged smuggler car which last night forced two officers from the road over a cliff.

R. T. Freeman and his son, constables, in an automobile, chased the suspected machine for miles last night after leaving Santa Fe Springs. Finally, catching up, Freeman's car gradually crept alongside, taking the outside of the road. Just as Freeman attempted to board the suspected car its driver suddenly swerved, crowding the officers' machine over the edge. The car turned over three times, finally landing in a gully. Neither Freeman nor his son were badly hurt.
