Exceedingly beautiful and impressive was the marriage of Miss Clara Brown and Mr. Henry Wyman on Tuesday evening—The solemnization of the nuptial rite took place in the drawing room at the lady's home promptly at seven o'clock. The bridal procession was led by the bridesmaids Miss Hoagland, Miss Margaret Brown, Miss Bessie Yates, Miss Pratt, Miss Nash and Miss Chambers, all gowned in white—carrying a bunch of sweet peas; then followed the Rev. George Worthington, bishop of Nebraska, Mr. Henry Wyman and Mr. Bawes of Minneapolis, as the best man. The maid of honor, Miss Chandler, preceded the bride whose very beautiful gown was of very white satin en traine, with exquisite corsage of mosseline and satin. Only relatives and a very few friends were fortunate enough to witness the ceremony, but immediately afterward the house was thronged with visitors.

TENNIS.

Lincoln will not have any state tournament this summer. The doubles tournament will be held at Hastings on July 18, 19 and 20 There will be two medals for the champions in doubles, and as the champions of last year are not now playing together, the winner of the all-comers will not have the last years team to play against.

The interest in tennis in the metropolis down on the Big Muddy is phenomenal. They manage everything there for what there is in it, however. The club has fenced in its grounds and charges an admission fee. This is enterprising and Omahog-like

They have been recently holding a local tournament in Omaha and have this time got into a squabble among themselves. There may be a nigger in the wood pile in dragging along the tournament considering existence of the fence aforesaid.

At the last meeting of state association in July, 1893, the members separated with the understanding that this year the doubles should go to Hastings and the singles to Lincoln. But when the executive committee met in Omaha on June 14 to locate the tournaments for the year, after fixing the doubles for Hastings, the Omaha men in the committee laid aside their memories and wanted the singles tournament at Omaha. Why, it is the largest town in the state don't you know, said they, and while saying to themselves, we have two men here. Lincoln has one, Hastings has one, we will win over the latter and there will be smooth sailing for the Omahogs. But the good Hastings gentleman, Mr. Dungan brought his memory along and also that of the Hastings club and he said: "We are with Lincoln, if Lincoln wants the tournament," and he incidentally remarked that he had the proxy of Mr. Haverly the other Hastings member of the executive committee, so Lincoln had three votes to Omaha's one. What do you think the Englishmen did then? They dug up their memories and happened to think that a new club had been started in Omaha and that its executive committee which it had not appointed by the way, had not been notified of the meet Hence it was an illegal meeting. Wasn't this a master stroke? Well the Lincoln and Hastings contingent had considerable fun with the menagerie discussing this question of legality of meetings, and those present finally dispersed with the utmost good feeling (on the part of the Lincoln and Hastings representatives), having agreed to take a vote in writing on the 21st to locate the singles. But Lincoln decided against holding the tournament here and then those interested here did not care to rob the Omaha club of the chance to make a few paltry shekels out of the tournament. They really have excellent grounds there and the people are much interested in the game.
