Did you notice what an aristocratic audience greeted Rolland Reed at the opening of the Funke, and did you notice the display of diamonds the audience wore? Some of them were grand. If a person's clothes are not the best in the world and they have a diamond it gives them a distinguished air.

"Diamonds are cheaper this year than they have been for a long time," remarked Mr. E. Hallett, Lincoln's most enterprising jeweler, "and we have the most complete line in the city both in loose and set stones. Diamonds are worn a great deal in the east this year both by ladies and gentleman and are considered the proper thing. As I said before, we have an enormous stock and if a customer finds a stone that they like but do not like the setting, or if they like the setting and do not like the stone we have loose ones and are sure to suit anyone.

"Tell your readers to come in and examine our stock. We are always pleased to show goods and give anyone prices. Our windows drew as large crowds this week as some of the places where they employed music to attract attention. People are always interested in diamonds and they do not know how cheap they can get a good stone until they come into our store and get our price. Do not forget the number 1143 O street.
