NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—One week from tomorrow Harry K. Thaw will be called a second time before a jury to make his defense to the charge of having murdered Stanford White. There have been several postponements of the date of the second hearing of this noted case, but it is said now there will be no further delay.

It is announced that Mrs. William Thaw, mother of the defendant, is expected in the city by next Saturday. Mrs. Thaw has been in poor health, it is said, but believes she will be able to come on to be with her son during the opening hours of his second fight for life and freedom.

Other members of the family circle, including Mrs. George L. Carnegie, Harry's sister, and Joseph and Edward Thaw, his brothers, are also expected to reach the city during the week and will remain throughout the trial. The countess of Yarmouth, the defendant's sister, is at present in England, and is not expected to attend the second trial.

Evelyn Visits Tombs
Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, who has been a daily visitor at the Tombs ever since the first Thaw jury disagreed, save recently when she was ill for a few days, will, of course, be one of the first arrivals in the courtroom on Monday next.

There have been many rumors as to the plans of the defense for the second hearing of the case, and it has been predicted that an entirely new line of action might be followed. It can be authoritatively stated, however, that the defense will be the same, that Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw will again relate her story to the jury, and that an imposing array of expert witnesses will again undertake to establish the theory that Thaw was insane at the time he killed Stanford White in the Madison Square roof garden, but has so far recovered his mental balance since that time as to be no longer a menace to the community, and therefore is entitled to his freedom.

In the coming trial, it is declared, there will be no mention made of a higher or unwritten law, but the defense will adhere strictly to a plea of legal insanity at the time the act was committed. There were mistakes made at the first trial which it will be the attempt of Thaw's attorneys studiously to avoid during his second hearing.

In the expert testimony, for instance, they have been able to separate the wheat from the chaff, and will only offer that which proved most effective before. And having once felt the sting of District Attorney Jerome's skillful cross-examination on all phases of the disease affecting the brain, several of the Thaw experts will be in a much more secure position than they were at the first trial, when the prosecuting officer's wonderful knowledge of medicine, facts, and cases and in one case completely dumfounded a witness.

District Attorney Jerome will, of course, be prepared to combat the testimony of insanity experts. His formidable hypothetical questions, which were asked before in omnibus style to nine state experts in a row, and upon which they based opinions entirely opposite to those entertained by the experts for the defense, will be taken out of the archives and polished up for use in rebuttal.

State Has New Witness
The state's direct case will again be very brief. It will have added to it the testimony of James Clinch Smith, brother-in-law of Stanford White, who met and talked with Thaw the night of the tragedy. Mr. Smith's testimony, which Mr. Jerome regards as highly important, and as showing a cool, calculating state of Thaw's mind, but a few minutes before he fired the fatal shot, was taken before in rebuttal, having been discovered after the trial was well under way.

Martin W. Littleton of Brooklyn, who nominated Alton B. Parker for president at the last Democratic national convention, will act as leading counsel. He will have the assistance of Daniel O'Reilly and A. Russell Peabody, both of whom went through the first trial. O'Reilly is ill with the grip, but probably will be well again when the trial starts.

Thaw is looking forward anxiously to the beginning of his new fight. He feels that all chance of further delay is past, and will enter the court room with the same confidence of acquittal which has marked his attitude from the start. The work of securing a jury will be more or less laborious and may occupy several weeks. The special venire summoned for the case numbers 300, it has been definitely decided that the jury will be locked up throughout the trial.

WOULD LEGALIZE MARRIAGE OF
PRINCESS AND MUSIC TEACHER

By Associated Press.
FLORENCE, Dec. 29.—The authorities have been asked to legalize the marriage of Enrice Toselli, the music teacher, and the Countess Montignone, divorced wife of the crown prince of Saxony, which was celebrated September 23 in London.

The authorities so far have not officially legalized a divorce which was obtained through the Italian courts, and it is expected that the present request will not be granted, the courts having already refused to recognize marriages contracted abroad by Italians who became foreign citizens for the purpose of obtaining a divorce.

Change in Italian Cabinet

By Associated Press.
ROME, Dec. 29.—An important change is about to occur in the Italian cabinet, with the retirement of the minister of war, Gen. Vigano. Both the retiring minister and the premier, Signor Giolitti, have suggested to the king to appoint as Vigano's successor a civilian, a recommendation that is likely to be carried into effect. It is believed a civilian would be better able to place before the parliament the grave military questions that are now under discussion.

GRAND JURY TO CONTINUE
INVESTIGATION OF BANK

By Associated Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 29.—The grand jury will resume the investigation of the California Safe Deposit & Trust company tomorrow. Assistant District Attorney Cook hopes to complete another stage in the case and predicts that more indictments will be returned.

The investigation last week was confined to tracing the big loans made by the California Safe Deposit & Trust company under the regime of Brown, Barnett and Treadwell. The grand jury's task has not been so much the questioning of witnesses as it has been the examination of the books of the bank and the reports of the experts who are trying to unravel the tangle of loans and counter loans which, from a superficial study, seem to have been a distinguishing feature of the financial methods of Brown, Barnett, Treadwell and the others.

GEORGIA READY FOR "DRY" SEASON

With Advent of the New Year First
Southern Prohibition State Will Prohibit Sale of Liquors

By Associated Press.
ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 29.—With the advent of the new year the law preventing the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquors, passed by the last legislature, becomes effective, making Georgia the first of the southern states to be placed in the prohibition column.

The law is very drastic in its provisions, and prevents the giving away or selling or keeping of liquors in public places, and imposes a tax of $500 on clubs whose members are allowed to keep drinks of an intoxicating nature in their individual lockers.

Notwithstanding the passage of this law, there is some agitation to have it declared unconstitutional. This action may be brought in the federal courts in the course of the month.

It was claimed today that Atlanta alone would lose in license taxes $135,622, and that the property value of saloons and breweries here which will go out of business on January 1 is from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000.

For the rest of the state, the property values involved are about $5,000,000. It is estimated that 10,000 persons will lose their employment when January 1 rings its bell on the sale of intoxicating liquors.

The prohibition law will be enforced there is no question. Governor Smith and court officials have been frank in their statements that they intend to enforce the law.

Many of the more prominent clubs have declared they will go one better than the law, and prohibit the keeping of liquor within their doors.

Arrested on Charge of Having Slain a Major

By Associated Press.
BERLIN, Dec. 29.—Capt. von Goebelin, stationed near the Russian frontier, has been arrested in connection with the death of Maj. von Schoenbeck, a brother officer, who was shot dead on Friday.

From the appearance of the body and the fact that a fully loaded revolver lay beside it, it was presumed that Maj. von Schoenbeck, returning home late at night, heard some one descending the stairs leading from his wife's rooms. Drawing his revolver, he went to meet the intruder, who, however, killed him before he could fire.

Capt. von Goebelin, after his arrest, admitted he was in the major's house the night before the body was found, but he declared he was innocent of the crime.

KING'S NEW YACHT
MARVEL OF COMFORT

LONDON, Dec. 29.—King Edward's new turbine yacht, the Alexandra, is now nearly finished, and will undergo steam trials about the end of January. These will be searching and thorough and will take several days to complete.

Should the trials prove satisfactory the vessel will be handed over to a navigating party, who will bring her to Portsmouth, where she will be fitted so as to be ready for the king's first cruise, which will probably be during Cowes week.

Those who have had an opportunity of inspecting the vessel declare she is a marvel of comfort and convenience.

The co-operation of the Brazilian government and the Royal Geographical society of London has been obtained, and good progress in getting donations of a financial nature is announced.

An escort of Brazilian soldiers will accompany the expedition as the country is very wild and the Indians are hostile.

SUNDAY CLOSING FIGHT STILL ON

Another Theater in Kansas City Declines to Close Doors—Grand Jury to Indict All Violators of Law

By Associated Press.
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 29.—The closing of the Grand opera house, which is managed by A. Judah, who has been the leading spirit in the opposition to the Sunday closing policy of Judge William H. Wallace of the criminal court, was the feature of the situation in this city today.

All other theaters, except the Willis-Wood and the Majestic, which capitulated two Sundays ago, were open today as usual, making it apparent that the contest between Judge Wallace and the theaters is to be continued indefinitely.

The present grand jury, which favors Judge Wallace's position, will return indictments next week against persons who worked in theaters and other who violated the Sunday closing law today.

Judge Wallace has announced that another grand jury with the same convictions regarding the Sunday law will be called, and that there will be no cessation in the Sunday closing campaign. Deputy marshals were busy today gathering evidence to be submitted to the grand jury.

CHURCH TO HEAL BY CHRISTIAN PSYCHOLOGY

Bishop Fallows of Chicago Says the Body as Well as the Soul
Must Be Ministered To

By Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—Christian psychology as a cure for disorders due to the action of the mind will be undertaken by St. Paul's Reformed Episcopal church, according to an announcement made by Bishop Samuel Fallows from the pulpit tonight.

"In my opinion the church, to save itself," said Bishop Fallows, "must begin to minister to the bodies as well as to the souls of the American people. I now announce that St. Paul's Reformed Episcopal church, at any rate, will begin the work of Christian psychology in the near future with the assistance of some of the leading neurologists of Chicago."

Christian psychology, as explained by Bishop Fallows, works hand in hand with the medical profession, and is not to be used for the cure of organic diseases; persons suffering from such ailments will be aided as far as possible by suggestion, faith and persuasion. Such nervous disorders as hypochondria, insomnia, nervous dyspepsia, melancholia, hysteria, neurasthenia, drug and liquor habits, irritability, worry, anger, fear, weakness of will are to be subjected to the psychological treatment.

Bishop Fallows said that he had been impelled to take this step by the success attending similar treatments by the Boston Immanuel church during the last sixteen months.

LITTLE GOLDFISH PROVES
A COSTLY INVESTMENT

FOR 'GOLDEN HOME BEAUTIFIER'
MAN PAID ONLY $1.25

But the Menagerie Man Had Convinced Him He Must Have Castle, Gravel, Seaweed, Fish and Food

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 29.—"Did you ever try to buy a goldfish?" a weary appearing man asked a friend the other day. "If you never did then don't! I'm not strong for the menagerie and aquarium features of a household. I've stopped the menagerie collection when it reached three cats, a terrier, two canary birds and a Mexican redbird, she's been begging me to get a goldfish. Well I concluded this morning that I'd buy one. The bird and fish dealer was very reasonable. He had all sorts of goldfish from 25 cents apiece up to $1.25 for the real fancy kind. It seemed easy to me so I 'bit' for a dollar and a quarter.

"Now," said the man, "you need a globe to put the fish in."

"Yes, I suppose so," I said. "I hadn't thought of any globes. He told me they had all sorts of globes from $1.50 to $10 but that I shouldn't buy a cheap globe for such a fine specimen of a goldfish. We compromised on a $5 water holder that was guaranteed not only to furnish the fish with a good comfortable home, but enhance its beauty. I don't know how many per cent.

"I started to tell him where to send the goldfish and the globe, but he interrupted me.

"Surely," he said, "you want some seaweed to place in the water. 'Fish love it and it looks so beautiful!'"

"Now," said I, "I guess, but I never heard of a castle for fish, but he insisted that no family of any pretensions ever attempted to keep a goldfish without having a castle for it in the globe. After purchasing the castle I figured that my $1.25 goldfish was past the $10 mark and I was sorry I'd started.

"Was that all? Well, I should say not. Before I got away I had to buy a china swan to float on the surface of the water to keep the fish company, a thermometer to test the temperature of the water night and morning and a new kind of fish medicine which is supposed to be sprinkled in the little fish's home every day. I had almost escaped when the fish man remembered I had no gravel to put in the globe. That's not 'dirt cheap,' either, in a fish store. After paying a drayman 75 cents to haul the goldfish and 'trimmings' home I find I'm out $15. Two often wonder why persons who owned goldfish seemed to guard them with such care. Now I know. They're looking after a mighty valuable investment."

VIOLATORS OF EMIGRANT LAWS
DRIVEN FROM TRANSVAAL

By Associated Press.
PRETORIA, Dec. 29.—The Transvaal government has lost no time in enforcing the provisions of the immigration restriction act, which requires all Asiatics in this country to register.

Several British Indian leaders, including an eminent lawyer, who refused to comply with the conditions of the act, have been ordered to leave the country within forty-eight hours, and many others have been arrested.

A number of Chinese have been similarly treated. Since the passage of the act 5000 residents of British India have left the colony and there are 7000 still here who refuse to register.

TOWN IN TREMOR OVER
TALES OF QUEER GHOSTS

Cool and Analytical Residents of Connecticut Village Sure Weird Spirits Are There—Odd Noises Heard

TERRYVILLE, Conn., Dec. 29.—As strange a story as any the Society for Psychological Research ever investigated and vouched for by more witnesses than usually testify to supernatural manifestations, lies beyond the wild yarns of ghostly visitations and seventeenth century witchcraft that have been sent out from this village in the last few days.

Many of the stories are exaggerations and distortions of the truth, but the ghosts of Town Hill are the principal subject of discussion here; it is no strain on veracity to say about going out of nights, and of a simple, plain fact that there are at least seven persons of education, culture and refinement, none of them in the slightest degree a believer in spiritualism or the supernatural, who will assure the inquirer solemnly, in carefully chosen language, that they have heard, not once, but each of them many times, sounds of footsteps when there was no person present to make the footsteps; sounds of voices when there was no one visible and the ticking of a clock where there was no clock.

Tales Indirect
Any sort of a ghost story that one may elect to listen to may be heard among the gossips that gather around the village of Terryville in the reference to the delator had them at third of fourth hand. Of this class is the story that half the village believes, that when a man—name not given—was walking by the old Morse place on Town Hill a few days ago he saw a hat lying in the road. He stooped to pick it up, there issued from beneath the hat, in sepulchral tones as though from the depths of the tomb, the warning, "Don't touch that hat!"

Pressed for the name of the hero of this adventure, the delator said some one had told it over in the lively stable, and that was as far as it could be traced. Likewise, when one of the group told of a man driving down Town Hill road, whose horse refused to go any further and exhibited symptoms of fear when passing the old Wood house, it was found to have been "told by some one in the barber shop" who could not be located.

It is true that the tradition that old "Thin" Moore, who died forty years ago, still pounds tin in the woodshed back of the old house, has been prevalent for years, but Mrs. Joseph Sutphen, who has lived in the house ten years, say the "tin" has never been there. And the former inhabitants of the Wood place used to say they frequently heard a sound like a man chopping in the cellar, but the present tenants, a thrifty Polish family, with an unspellable name, declare they have heard nothing to worry them.

Fit Setting
One might search a long time and not find as fitting a setting for a ghost story as the old Fenn house. Standing on the crest of Town Hill, where it overlooks the broad valley of the Potomac river, it has been a landmark visible from miles away for fully 175 years. Built in the decade between 1750 and 1760, its eight-foot chimney breast and foot square hewn timbers are the last of an early set of oak pines hold the joists and rafters in place, for nails were scarce and costly when the Fenn house was built, and those used to hold the siding and partition boards in place are all forged and wrought to last through the centuries.

A cyclone would not injure the old Fenn house—an earthquake, it would seem, would scarcely damage it. In renovating and adding to it its present owners have reverently preserved the spirit of the past, so that in all essentials the old house still stands as it did through the French and Indian war, the revolution and the war of 1812. The barn, as old as the house, and the old-fashioned hewn planks, stands another monument to the builders of a dead century.

BANKER LOSES ALL IN SERIES OF MISFORTUNES

William Adler of New Orleans Falls in Business—Last Consignment of Goods Sinks with His Steamer

By Associated Press.
NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 29.—Almost unparalleled misfortunes have been heaped in the short space of one week upon William Adler, one of New Orleans' foremost bankers and a leading wholesale grocer of the south.

The arrival of news today that Mr. Adler is a shipwrecked refugee at Bell's, British Honduras, added another chapter to a record already that has shaken the financial circles of New Orleans. Already the bank has announced it must go out of business.

Mr. Adler's grocery firm, one of the largest in the south, has gone into the hands of a receiver; a load of groceries consigned to Honduras, which Mr. Adler's friends claim were one of his last hopes of recouping his fortune, has been lost by shipwreck, and the steamer Alps, carrying both the groceries and Mr. Adler and owned by him, is a total loss by the same wreck.

"I looked upon it as a slip of chance the insurance policy on the shipload of groceries was rendered worthless by failure of premium payment.

Misfortune has also dealt a blow at Adler's friends, the old friends, Messrs. Schwartz, a prominent New Orleans merchant who was with Mr. Adler on the Alps and whose foundry here went into receivership shortly after the steamer sailed.

The Alps lies on Glover's reef, nearly fifty miles from the port she was making for, Porto Cortez, Honduras.

W. E. Lawrence has been appointed manager of the grocery firm of A. Adler & Co., with instructions to put the business on its feet if possible. Eastern creditors are heavily interested in the Adler firm.

AMERICAN NAVY'S GROWTH
AFFECTS FOREIGN FLEETS

England Must Drop Two Power Standard if United States Pushes Development of Fighting Force

LONDON, Dec. 29.—The fact that the United States is now recognized in Europe as a first class naval power will have considerable effect on the two power standard which for some time has been the keynote of British naval policy. The reference which Mr. Haldane, the secretary of war, made to that subject the other night will certainly be discussed and canvassed. Britain needs no prophet to foretell that if America is to be one of the powers included adherence to the two power standard will become increasingly difficult and costly.

There is no doubt that hitherto the two power standard has had reference mainly to the European powers. The United States had not been excluded, but its position is so different from that of the powers nearer home that its naval power has never been regarded as a menace to any European country.

Mr. Haldane pointed out that it would become increasingly difficult to maintain the two power standard if Germany and the United States were the two powers whose navies were to be made the standard. It may, however, be assumed that in the future America will not be reckoned on as one of these powers. If she chooses to enter on a course of naval expansion it would be hardly possible for Great Britain to compete with her.

Within twenty or thirty years she will probably have three times the population of the United Kingdom, and to build fleets which would equal or exceed both America's and Germany's, as Mr. Haldane said, would be a very difficult task. It will probably be found, therefore, that in maintaining the two power standard the British admiralty will have in view two European powers.

REDDING, Dec. 29.—The sheriff of Alameda county telegraphed today to the sheriff of Shasta county that he had captured in Oakland, William Johnston, who stabbed W. E. C. Eddy to death in a Redding saloon on Christmas day, 1899.

Johnston was pointed out to the Alameda county officer by an eyewitness of the tragedy. District Attorney Tillotson and Sheriff Montgomery have advised that Johnston be released from jail. It is doubtful whether the right man is held and, furthermore, if the man in Oakland jail is Johnston, his conviction at this late date would be improbable, because even at the time of the killing public opinion was in his favor. Great Amount of Work
Being Done on Canal

By Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—The engineers on the Panama canal are dealing in vast figures these days, and the canal record, just received, conveys in a graphic manner an idea of the magnitude of the work to be done upon the locks of the canal.

It is said, for instance, that the amount of concrete to be used in building these locks would suffice to construct eight-room houses of the generous size of 30x20 feet, with two stories and basement and with concrete floors and with concrete roof, to the number of 23,842.

Allowing each of these houses a 75-foot lot, they would make a continuous street from New York to Philadelphia, with enough houses left over to make a row on one side of the street from Philadelphia to Washington. The houses would furnish suburban homes for 120,000 people, or according to city standards would have a population equal to that of the city of Minneapolis.
