

Professor Darwin Doenutt Studies Infantile Expression.

"I should like to observe the diminutive angel smile."

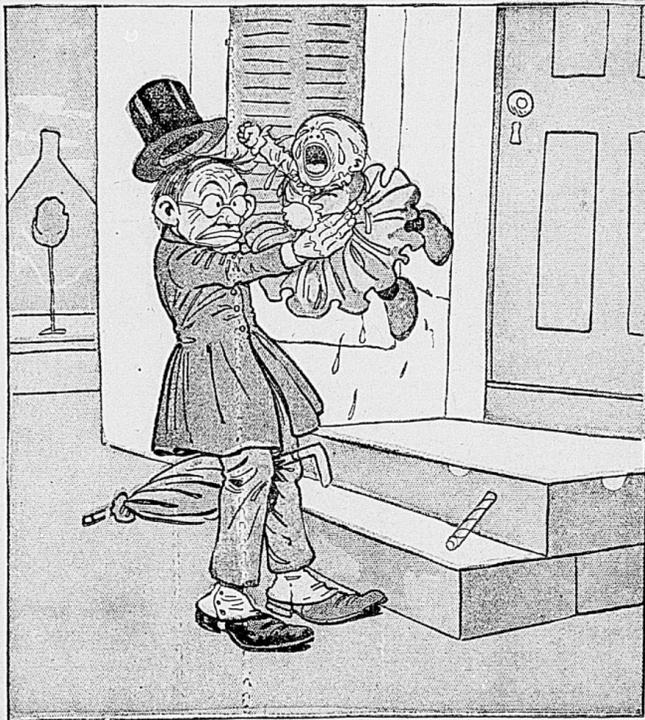

"I shall tickle him under the chin and smile myself."

"Appears to have a contrary effect."

"I must soothe him. the little dear!"

"He's going into a fit, I'm quite certain!"

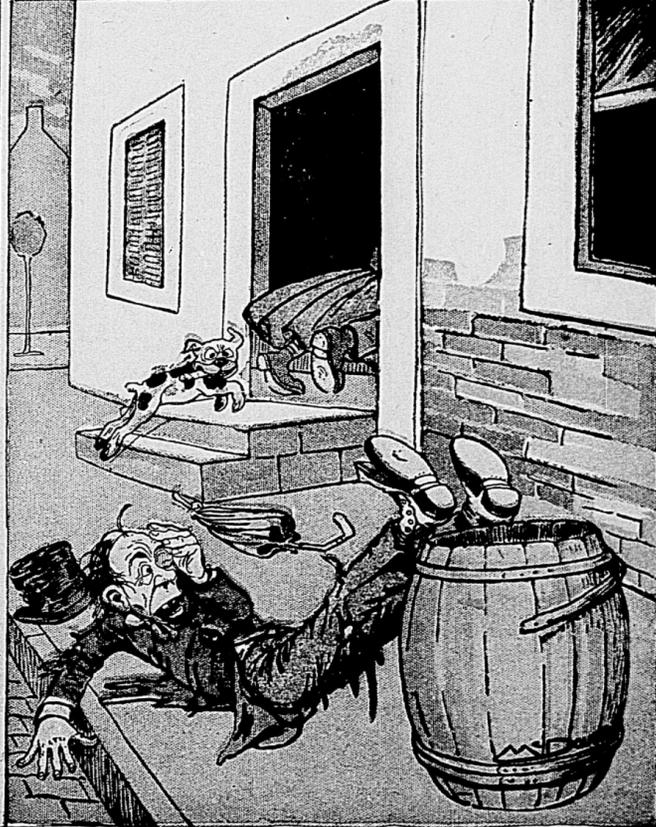

"No—he has convulsions! Help! Help! Leggo!"

"Take the little devil away! Drown him!"

BABY—"Dat man stole my tandy!"

The Professor himself furnishes an interesting study in expression.