

MRS. SUSAN VANCE WARREN.

On Sunday, April 2nd, in the calm of a beautiful Spring afternoon, the spirit of Mrs. Susan Vance Warren was summoned back to her Creator. Seized with a severe cold about 10 days previously, from the beginning her symptoms were alarming, and her family and friends were fearful that, enfeebled by years, she could not throw off the attack. On Sunday morning she fell into a gentle sleep, and so noiselessly did the call from the Great Beyond come, that even those who watched by her bed scarcely knew when her soul took flight.

Mrs. Warren was born Jan. 22, 1820, in Stanford, and within a stone's throw of the house in which she died. Her ancestors were Virginians, her grandfather having moved to this State from Loudon county, Va., at the close of the 18th century. They were men of prominence and influence in this community, her uncle, Michael Davidson, being a captain of a company of volunteers in the war of 1812, and another uncle, James Davidson, was a colonel of a volunteer regiment in the same war.

In 1837 she was united in marriage with Hamilton Jenkins, of this county, who died in 1839. Several years later she married Granville Purdom. To them were born four children, Thomas, George, Robert and Bettie, the first two dying in early manhood. Mr. Purdom having died in 1852, his widow married Wm. Warren, who preceded her to the grave some 30 years.

Her only daughter, Bettie, who married I. M. Bruce, of this place, died in 1891. On her was centered all the wealth of a mother's affection, and the shadow of this loss never lifted from off her heart. Mrs. Bruce left one child, Mary, who was the comfort of Mrs. Warren's old age, and upon whom she lavished the measureless love of both mother and grand mother. In her declining years Mrs. Warren lived with her son-in-law, Mr. Bruce, and he and his wife were unfailing in kind and thoughtful attentions.

With the exception of a short period spent in Springfield, Ky., Mrs. Warren lived in Stanford her whole life, and her knowledge of its early history was unequalled by any one. Possessed of a splendid memory and endowed with clear expression in speech, it was, indeed, a treat to sit in her presence and listen to her relate incidents of Stanford's early days, and describe citizens then prominent in this community.

For many years she kept hotel here and the "Warren House" and its proprietress are still affectionately remembered by those who enjoyed the privilege of boarding there. In fact, it is a strong tribute to Mrs. Warren's character that those who lived in the same house with her 40 years ago were among her staunchest friends in the closing years of her life.

During the Civil War she was pronounced in her sympathies for the South and on every possible occasion she rendered assistance to the Confederacy. It was in recognition of such aid that the local chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy conferred upon her the signal distinction of honorary membership.

Though the past was so rich in experiences and so treasured because of associations now no more, still the lengthening shadows of the evening did not drive from her interest in the present. Nature had given her a strong, vigorous mind, which would not permit her to spend her time searching among the dead embers of a day that was gone. She displayed intense concern of matters of today, and she could discuss with keen intelligence questions and problems relating to present times.

Among Mrs. Warren's characteristics two stood forth especially prominent—devotion to her native town and unswerving loyalty to her friends. Born and reared in Stanford, always claiming it as her home, receiving from it the companions of her childhood and her old age, and associating it with hallowed memories, she loved her native town and no one could speak unfavorably of it in her presence without calling from her a rebuke. Frank and open in temperament, she did not depend on blandishment to win her friends, but gained them by the strength and sincerity and steadfastness of her character. Of a retiring, home loving nature, she made no attempt to make numerous friends, but was content with those who, in the passing years made her acquaintance, esteemed her and loved her. But those she did not endeavor to extend the number, yet every friend of hers was fast and true, and this was a quality conspicuous in her own nature. Like all strong characters, she never lost a friend, but made stronger day by day the bond of union.

Mrs. Warren's father and grandfather were elders in the Presbyterian church and in early life she also joined that denomination. Having carefully studied its doctrines, she believed undoubtedly in its tenets, but she did not allow sectarianism to assume the form of bigotry and warp her soul. Though preferring one church to the others, she thought the road of Faith was broad enough for all the Savior's children to walk therein together.

Death has indeed taken her from us, but even death has its limitations, for it can not pluck from our souls the impress made by her character, nor efface from our minds the memory of those qualities of heart and soul, and their beneficent lessons. Her fidelity to her friends, her love of her family and her devotion to principle still survive, enriching those who lived within the sphere of her influence, a heritage that will increase with the roll of time. A.

"Old Glory" Again.

We find the following beautiful lines on the pages of the Morning Report Book of Company A, 3rd Regiment Ky. Volunteers, of which Thomas E. Bramlett, afterwards governor of Kentucky, was colonel. The event mentioned here occurred in October, 1861, at Lexington, Ky. Samuel McKee, of Danville, Ky., being captain of Co. A, and Benj. F. Powell, of Lincoln county, being lieutenant, and it is through the kindness of Capt. Powell, in whose possession we find this Morning Report Book that we are enabled to present the following: On Oct. 18th, 1861, in a grove near Camp Anderson at Lexington, Ky. Col. Bramlett was presented with a beautiful National banner by the ladies of Lexington. Upon receiving it Col. Bramlett made a brief and appropriate address and Sergt. W. F. Morrin, of Co. A, a citizen of Danville, read the following poetical address, which he had previously written for the occasion:

*Thou loved and cherished banner by beauty enrolled
And bearing the bosom of azure and gold,
Flaunt wide to the breeze in the hands of the brave
Till freedom shall wave thee o'er tyrannous grave.*

On, on while a foe man to liberty's cause
Raise a hand against thee and our Union's laws.

May a coward ne'er sully thy folds with his breath
But thy stars shine more brightly on victory or death.

In the thick of the battle we will guard thee with pride,
Though thousands may gather and fall by thy side.

While beauty and duty the watchwords may prove
To waken each spirit to valor and love.

On, on to the battle, the smile and the care
Of youth and of beauty, each hero shall bless.

While mothers and sweethearts and sires
Kindle widely new torches from liberty's fires.

'Tis the flag of our fathers, the flag of the brave
The flag that still waves over Washington's grave.

The flag that our mothers have gazed on with pride
And the flag where our bravest in victory died.

Though battered and torn in the heat of the strife
We will treasure each shred and defend it with life.

Though shorn of its beauty, to your beauty true,
We will fight for its honor, our country and you.

With Bramlett, Scott, Buford, McKee and a host
Of leaders as brave as the bravest can boast.

We will follow our banner with love and with pride
And return it with honor or die by its side.

It may be interesting to any of this regiment who may be living, to know that the flag here referred to was taken by Capt. Powell to Frankfort during Col. Bramlett's administration as governor and delivered to him, where it is supposed it still remains.

Cheated Death.

Kidney trouble often ends fatally, but by choosing the right medicine, Mr. E. H. Wolfe, of Bear Grove, Ia., cheated death. He says: "Two years ago I had Kidney Trouble, which caused me great pain, suffering and anxiety, but I took Electric Bitters, which effected a complete cure. I have also found them of great benefit in general debility and nerve trouble and keep them constantly on hand, since I find they have no equal." G. L. Penny, Stanford, and Lyne Bros., Crab Orchard, druggists, guarantee them at 50 cents.

MATRIMONIAL.

W. F. Reams and Mrs. Martha Crawford were married near Lily. They are each 66 years old, and this is the third marriage for Mr. Reams.

Rev. O. P. McMahan, of the Christian church, united in marriage at the Cumberland Hotel, Miss Emma Taylor, of Monticello, and Jesse D. Davis, of Barbourville.—Somerset Journal.

About Rheumatism.

There are few diseases that inflict more torture than rheumatism and there is probably no disease for which such a varied and useless lot of remedies have been suggested. To say that it can be cured is, therefore, a bold statement to make, but Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which enjoys an extensive sale, has met with great success in the treatment of this disease. One application of Pain Balm will relieve the pain, and hundreds of sufferers have testified to permanent cures by its use. Why suffer when Pain Balm affords such quick relief and costs but a trifle? For sale by Lyne Bros., Crab Orchard.

Red Bond 32278,
(2211-2, T.)

Is a bay horse foaled in 1899; is 16 hands high and no white. Sired by Red Wilkes 1749, sire of 120 trotters and 44 pacers; dams of 135 in 229; 98 producing sires. Sire of Prince Wilkes 214-1-4, Ralph Wilkes 236-3-4, Thurbel 239-1-4, Blanche Louise 210, Dollie Wilkes 211-1-2, Red Star 212-1-2, Dams of Walnut Hall 218-1-4, Kingmond 219, Mober 219-1-4, 1st dam, Fannie S., dam of Ashburton 213-1-4, Red Bond 220-1-2 T.; by Mambrino Boy 844, 238, sire of 15 in 220; dams of Allerton 239-1-4, Astell 212, 2d dam, Bird Coleman, by Mambrino Temple 286, sire of Billy Boy 226-1-4; dam of Tom Pugh 236, 3d dam, Nelly Morton, by Orace 116, sire of Bruce Prince 221-1-4, Blanche 225-1-4, Outlaw 228-1-4, dams of 10 in 226; 4th dam by Canada Whitebone. Red Bond is bred like the two greatest sires living, Allerton and Astell, all three of them being by the sons of the great Geo. Wilkes, and out of the daughters of Mambrino Boy 226. He has the finest legs, feet and eyes, and is not only a perfect trotter, but a coach horse that can win in any horse show. Last New York Horse Show, in September, he won in every class he was shown, and defeated some of the greatest show horses ever in Madison Square. Red Bond is not only a very high going horse, but is a trotter, and goes without boots or weights. We think in Red Bond we have one of the greatest stallions in America to sire speed and high stepping coach horses. His conformation is that of a first-class show horse for Madison Square Garden, being a horse of a great deal of finish, style, substance and bone. He is bound to sire the popular horse of the day, having the extreme speed and action that is required to demand high prices. The leading horsemen of the country think this horse is the best high-stepping stallion owned in the State, and with his breeding should make a great sire. Will make the season of 1905 at "Monneta Farm" near Danville at $25 to insure a living colt or $20 to insure a living colt when three or more mares are bred. A. E. HUNDLEY, Danville, Ky.
