

OUR NEW DRESS.

True to promise, THE HERALD comes out today in a brand new dress of type, fresh from the foundry. It is all composed of the celebrated "compar mixed" cast, for which Messrs. Barnhart Bros. & Spindler, of Chicago, have become famous. It is the most scientific and accurate type manufactured. Besides being made upon the point system, it is also point-set. Each letter is a certain number of points in thickness each way, and every line contains exactly 126 points, upon the basis of a twelfth of a pica standard. All of the reading type in THE HERALD is now brevier—8 point. The editorial type looks different from the other only because it has a different face. We do not suppose these technical terms will be fully understood by our readers, and we only mention them to show the pains and expense to which we went in order to accommodate the reading public.

Our new type is not as small as that used by daily papers and city weeklies, but nevertheless it is small but plain enough to accommodate a large amount of reading matter in each issue. We think our readers will agree with us that THE HERALD is now the prettiest and neatest paper in Kentucky and lacks little if anything in any point of mechanical make-up.

NEVER has so much been laid to female with such assiduity as has been manifested towards Lady Smith, of the Transvaal.

THE fact that four vacancies exist in the Senate, owing to the failure of State Legislatures to elect Senators, will no doubt make the sentiment in favor of electing these officials by direct vote of the people more popular than ever.

HON. W. J. BRYAN is coming to Kentucky next week. He will make Frankfort his stopping place and will take part in ratifying the election of Hon. J. C. S. Blackburn to the U. S. Senate. He will deliver an address to the General Assembly, and will probably have something to say about the contest.

A NATIONAL ANTI-TRUST Conference will be held in the city of Chicago, on the anniversary of Lincoln's birth, February 12th next. The call for this conference comprises a most formidable list of names, from every region of the country. This is a most laudable enterprise and the meeting will no doubt be productive of much good.

THE HERALD feels so much and trim in its new dress that really it doesn't care if the streets are muddy and the weather bad. Happily, these conditions have little or nothing to do with the dress-disfigurement of a newspaper, and we can flaunt our new metallic garment in the faces of the public without any sense of immodesty or fear of the elements.

ON account of its peculiar position in the field of political action, the Republican is unable to enact and enforce efficient anti-trust laws and legislation that in any serious way restricts the progress of the money power. Might as well expect the flower to shrink from the sunshine and rain, or the magnetic needle to fall to point northward, as to expect the Republican party to forsake and punish the source of its sustenance.

Among the large and pretentious newspapers of the country there are few that approach the point of excellence which the Chicago Chronicle has attained in its editorial department. Each issue has nearly a page of the most able editorial comment, and the subject-matter and manner of presentation evinces a taste of the highest order. The Chronicle is one of the very best daily papers published anywhere, and the price is lower than the average of first-class journals.

REPUBLICAN members of the Legislature indulged in a great display of assiduous Monday night, when Hon. W. O. Bradley was nominated as their candidate for U. S. Senator. The most bloodthirsty speeches were made, and it was predicted that great rivers of red blood would be waded through in the Republican war with the others. Of course, the speakers will not be expected to take part in the awful slaughter. They will just stay at Frankfort and continue talking.

THE anticipations of years and the hopes of the Democracy of Kentucky were no doubt happily realized yesterday in the election of Hon. J. C. S. Blackburn to the Senate. Tuesday was the day set for the joint ballot, and the result was assured beforehand. The reward has been delayed, but is doubtfully deserved. No truer Democrat ever stamped a ballot than Joe Blackburn, and the service he has rendered his party is invaluable. He has had a hard and a bitter fight. May his enjoyment of the office more than compensate him for his trouble and work in securing it.

NEWS from the seat of war in South Africa is slow of attainment and very unreliable. The great distance of the scenes of fighting from uncensored posts, makes it difficult to obtain any accurate details of the British-Boer war. That the Boers are bravely and easily holding their own so far, there can be no doubt, neither is there any discount on the news of British defeat. England may eventually whip the Boers, but it will only be after great loss and the hardest kind of fighting, occupying a space of more than a few months. The Boers have surprised the civilized world by the brave and telling fight they have put up, and if they should really win in the end, it would be no disappointment to many who now view the situation.

TRAPPED in his attempt to bribe Senator Harrel with the neat little sum of $5,000, John Whallen makes a counter-move that is as bold as his sensational. He admits the principal allegations in the bribery case, but retaliates by swearing out a warrant for the arrest of Senator Harrel, charging the latter with obtaining money under false pretenses, in failing to perform his part of the bargain. Harrel's bond was fixed at $10,000, which was readily given, and his trial set for January 27. Whallen finds himself in desperate straits, and his latest move is in keeping with the character of the man and his environment. Of course Whallen's act is a farce, and will not save him from his impending fate.

THE injunction of the Democrats against Messrs. Mackay and Cochran, the appointees of Gov. Taylor, has been sustained by Judge Cantrill, and these two men are thereby prevented from acting as election commissioners in the trial of contests. Immediately upon granting the injunction, Judge Cantrill, upon his own motion, dissolved it, in order to permit an appeal to the Court of Appeals, where the case will have a final hearing. Owing to the red-tape of the courts, it will probably be months before the matter is finally decided. In the meantime all the acts of the Board of Election Commissioners, as now constituted, and the Legislature, will be legal. Verily it looks like Senator Goebel and all his colleagues on the Democratic ticket will yet come into possession of the offices to which they were elected.

THE John Whallen matter has served to clearly expose the hypocrisy of this noted pretender, and the law will no doubt give him his just deserts. The leader of the "honest election" movement in Louisville and the chief instigator of the holier-than-thou sentiment which found lodgment in the hearts of many good men in the State, he was too good—in his own estimation—to vote or work for Mr. Goebel, yet he tops off the noisy campaign with as notorious a piece of sensationalism and evident corruption and rascality as could well be imagined. Politicians of Whallen's stripe are the most dangerous character, mostly because they are often able to lead off good men. The sooner the public is enabled to forget this whole L.-&N.-anti-Democratic episode, the more pleasant and healthful will be its thoughts.

BE it said to the shame of our big cities but nevertheless it is a fact that a large if not the largest part of their municipal revenues come from the saloons. The Chicago Chronicle takes occasion to editorially remark that it were not for the windy city's liquor license money, the expenses of the city government and the schools would hardly be met. The Chronicle asks in all candor, where would Chicago be, without the saloons? And Chicago is a fair sample of the other big cities of the country. The most humiliating thought that comes from a contemplation of these facts is that the debauchery of the liquor traffic should contribute in any way to the maintenance of our educational institutions or city governments. It is sad to think that in any serious way restricts the progress of the money power. Might as well expect the flower to shrink from the sunshine and rain, or the magnetic needle to fall to point northward, as to expect the Republican party to forsake and punish the source of its sustenance.

THE PEOPLE AND THE MONEY POWER. The astounding revelations lately made by the exposure of President McKinley's scheme to farm out—the internal revenues of the Government to the National City Bank (Standard Oil) Bank of New York, have served to show the people the danger which now menaces them in a most serious form.

Never in the history of the country has a national condition been so plainly defined. It is the people on one side and the Republican party, representing the money power and the trusts, on the other. Those persons of moderate circumstances who ally themselves with the Republican party in its policy of government, are only forging fetters to chain themselves to the more firmly to conditions which make for nothing so seriously and rapidly as the enslavement of the common people to a powerful plutocracy. Knowing the power of money and the venality and covetousness of wealth, the Republican party has built its policy upon its ability to so manipulate the financial affairs of the country as to perpetuate its existence. By legislation and by acts of favoritism it can and does make and unmake millionaires. It can and does throw vast sums of money into the hands of men who will do its bidding.

The National City Bank affair is but a simple of what the Republican party and its cohorts can do in the way of favoring the rich and establishing a plutocracy. The scheme is as plain as it is startling and revolting.

The Standard Oil Company, one of the most powerful and grasping of the trusts, is the largest depositor and backer of the National City Bank of New York. This company itself wields a most beneficial influence over the liberties and rights of the people. Secretary Gage, upon the orders of Messrs. McKinley and Hanna, makes the National City Bank the depository for all the internal revenues of the Government, amounting to nearly $1,000,000 a day, or over $300,000,000 a year. Thus it is said the McKinley administration enters into full partnership with this big bank and with the Standard Oil Co. The National City Bank pays not a cent for this magnificent favor. The annual income on these three hundred millions is at the least calculation six per cent.—often many more—about twenty millions. This princely sum is parcelled out among the capitalists of the National City Bank and its cohorts. It is purely a mutual affair. The Republican party will receive in return an enormous corruption fund.

Please remember that this is only one instance of the devices but exceedingly profitable financial schemes that have found their origin under Mr. McKinley's administration. The war, with its vast array of contracts and political favors, has been a veritable cornucopia for the big syndicates and contractors of the country. Men have grown richer in less time under the present administration than ever before in the history of the country. The Republican bosses tell you that times are good and that prosperity is in full swing. Verily this is the case—with the money kings. To them times were never so happy or prosperous.

Viewing the situation as it unfolds itself to an observant person, will anyone doubt that millions can be had for the re-election of Mr. McKinley this year? Would these big money kings who have added so fabulously to their riches during the last three years, be so foolish as to throw down a President and his supporters who had been so willingly their tools? Even a poor philosopher can not fail to size the situation up as it now stands. It is money versus the people—plutocracy against Democracy.

THE HON. JESSE REPLIES.

We have received another cholerick communication from Mr. Jesse S. Williams of McHenry. We were quite sure Mr. Williams would continue to read THE HERALD even if he did stop his paper. We suppose Mr. Williams intends this letter for publication, and so we give it in another column, in its full salty length. The Hon. Jesse complains that we "violated all the rules of decency" by saying anything in public concerning his former letter. Now, if Mr. Williams did not want to put his foot in it, he should not have opened his mouth. If he had just dropped us a card or letter saying, "please stop my paper—time's out," or a blunt "stop my paper," his request would have been granted willingly and nothing thought of the matter. But this was not sufficient for his revengeful feelings. In order to gratify his spleen and vent his displeasure, he must take up two large pages of closely written letter heads in a tirade against THE HERALD's policy. It was his privilege to stop his paper at any time, but it was not necessary for him to write a malicious "personal" letter to the editor in order to do so. He was in no wise compelled to read THE HERALD nor support it in any way, if its policy did not suit him.

The Hon. Jesse says he believes "THE HERALD is a Democrat for revenue only," and he "does not believe any Brown man can get fair treatment at the hands of THE HERALD even at advertising rates." To prove the malicious falsity of this insinuation, we will say that we have never charged him a cent nor can we show our receipt for anything of his published in THE HERALD only for that which was legitimate advertising. Even his letter of today, which, owing to its vicious and mendacious character, should be worth 25c a line, is published free, verbatim. Every year of its existence THE HERALD gives on an average of $100 in advertising and job work to the cause of Democracy, for which it receives no "revenue" whatever. This is outside of our editorial support, on which there is no price and which is always given free to the maintenance of the party. THE HERALD has always treated the Brown men fairly, and it was only after Mr. Williams had first attacked us—viciously and without cause or provocation—that he received a mild set-back for his pains.

If, however, in the future Mr. Williams should want to stop any political or religious journal he may be taking, he will find it much pleasanter and more profitable to just drop the "advice a card" when the time for which he has paid has expired, discreetly refraining from any harsh or unjust criticism of the said journal's course or policy, and simply dropping out, without flourishing his hos-pistols, or indulging in abuse of the editor because views happen to conflict.

"Going to Live to Vote for Bryan."

James B. Ireland, who lives near Hawesville, Ky., opposite Camelton, Ind., is probably the only man in the Central States who has lived in three centuries. He is 102 years old, having been born in 1797 in the house where he now lives. Mr. Ireland is the father of Judge W. W. Ireland, one of the leading lawyers and Democratic politicians in Evansville, Ind. Judge Ireland was present at his father's celebration New Year's day. The old man is active and is able to get around, in spite of his advanced age. He says he is determined to live long enough to vote for William Jennings Bryan for President in November, 1900.

FREE SILVER AMENDMENT

To the Gold Standard Bill--Bryan Will be the Candidate of Three Parties.

(Special to THE HERALD.) WASHINGTON, Jan. 8, 1900.

As soon as Congress re-assembled, the hammering of Secretary Gage for his favoritism in depositing Government money in national banks was begun. Senator Allen and Representative Sulzer offered resolutions calling for all letters, telegrams, agreements between the United States Treasury and the City National Bank and the Hanover National Bank of New York City. Mr. Sulzer's resolution was referred to the committee on Ways and Means, and Mr. Allen's is on the table of the Senate. The hammering will be continued.

Senator Chandler, who is one of the Republicans who acknowledges fear of the committal of his party to the single gold standard, has offered an amendment to the gold standard bill, now before the Senate, providing for more continued bamboozling in the shape of a continuance of the alleged efforts to secure international bimetalism.

Senator Allen put a quick stop to the rumor that he was to be brought out by the Nebraska fusionists as their candidate for President, by declaring that he was not a candidate, would not be, and would not accept the nomination if it were unanimously tendered to him. He eloquently added: "Mr. Bryan undoubtedly will be the candidate of the Democratic, Populist and free silver parties for the Presidency, and Nebraska will give him a united, active delegation to all three conventions." Senator Allen also took occasion to say that there was absolutely no foundation for the stories of trouble in the fusion ranks because of his appointment to the Senate; that his appointment had been determined upon by the Governor before Mr. Bryan knew anything about it, and that the relations between Mr. Bryan and Mr. Hitchcock and himself were of the most harmonious character, and would continue so.

There may be a minority report from the Roberts committee, not concerning the polygamy of Roberts, which is regarded as having been proven, but on the right of a member of Congress with proper credentials to be sworn in. Most Democrats have been of the opinion from the first that the proper way to proceed was to swear in Roberts and then take a vote as to whether he should be expelled from the House. This same opinion is held by many Republicans, but their party organization is so rigid that they are not likely to vote their convictions. When orders issued this week by the War Department are carried out, the United States Government will own and maintain two lines of ocean steamships, one from San Francisco to Honolulu and Manila, and one from New York to Cuban and Porto Rican ports. In view of this, it would seem to be about time for the Republicans to stop calling them out, and to let the Government should own all transportation lines, cranks. If it be right and proper for the Government to own two steamship lines, what would be wrong about its owning all the railroad, steamship and telegraph lines, if the people so will?

Brutal ty in the School Room.

MARYSVILLE, OHIO, January 8.—Coroner Argus B. Swisher and Prosecuting Attorney James E. Robinson were summoned to Richmond this afternoon by a telephone message announcing the near death of Albert Gill, the fourteen-year-old son of Henry D. Gill.

He has been ill since punished by Superintendent W. H. Nagers, of the public schools. When the Coroner arrived he made a thorough examination, and found that there were still some signs of life, but the boy's death is hourly expected. His eyes remain closed, and he is apparently dead.

The Coroner returned here and left the Prosecuting Attorney there to notify him the moment the boy dies. There is considerable excitement in the village over the serious condition of the lad, and many threats have been made. The Coroner will hold an investigation as soon as the boy's death occurs. Nagers admits punishing the boy, but says he only slapped him on one side of the face and then on the other and took him by the coat collar, when he fell to the floor.

Mr. Williams to THE HERALD. January 8, 1900.

EDITOR HERALD:—My attention has been called to an editorial in THE HERALD of last week under the caption of "Mr. Williams and THE HERALD," in which you take occasion to use a letter addressed to you marked "personal." I was of course surprised that you should violate all the rules of propriety and decency in making public use of a private communication. I was not, however, surprised at the misstatements of facts, misquotations and malicious criticisms, for this is a characteristic of Goebel journalism. Since you have taken the liberty to make public use of what was intended to be a private letter, why not publish the letter in full and let your readers judge whether you were justifiable in saying:

But for the man who expresses the sentiments of Mr. Williams—he be Democrat, Republican or Brown man—we have little patience. If things don't go his way, he resorts to spite and abuse, and he seems to think, in his egotism, that people should consult him before forming or expressing their convictions. We will, however, get out another issue of THE HERALD—and perhaps a few more after that one—and in place of Mr. Williams' name we have added twelve new ones.

The above statements lead me to infer you are not sincere in any of the statements made, nor do you intend to suspend publication, for the "twelve new subscribers" in lieu of mine will certainly compensate you for the loss of mine, unless they be Goebel men who have paid their subscriptions with future promises, as Mr. Goebel has endeavored to pay his henchmen. You say: "I might here say with all due apology to Mr. Williams for our oversight in this matter. We entirely forgot to ask him at the beginning of the campaign what policy THE HERALD should pursue. We just didn't think of it and the fault is clearly ours. We were not in the habit of consulting him in these matters and the thing slipped our mind."

The sin of the whole matter is not that THE HERALD failed to consult me, but that I failed to consult THE HERALD before forming and daring to express an opinion of my own. Hence this trade of abuse and unjust criticism. There be those who think that the time has come when no one should have or express an opinion of his own until he has consulted the political bosses and self-styled leaders. Unlike THE HERALD, I have no apologies to make. Quoting again:

We hope, however, he will forgive us—just this once—and try and remember what THE HERALD and the Democratic party has done for him in days gone by, when he was a candidate and glad of the support of most any old thing that would elect him to office. He should not let the views of ingratitude and prejudice overcome his obligations to old friends and supporters. Those who remember the time when I was a candidate, Col. John P. Barrett was my competitor before the primary, and in the general election every line and every word that was printed in my favor was charged to my account at advertising rates, as I have receipts to show. I believe then as I do now, that THE HERALD was a "Democrat for revenue only." I do not believe any Brown man can get fair treatment at the hands of THE HERALD even at advertising rates. I dislike newspaper notoriety, and have no time for a newspaper controversy. I am out of politics, and along with my brothers engaged in an honest effort to make an honest living and try to retrieve the lost fortunes of our family to whom I am more loyal than to any person or party or political boss. J. S. WILLIAMS.
