A NEW YEAR'S GREETING

The Last of a Century

The Old Year is dead! However heavy and bitter its trials and disappointments, they have been many times over-balanced by its blessings and joys. It remains but to cover its grave with flowers of gratitude, wet with tears of regret for the many mistakes, sins of omission and commission now beyond recall. Knowing God's mercy and compassion for our shortcomings, we listen hopeful and with glad hearts as

Chiming bells ring out the old Ring in the new—

In the beauty and still unwritten record of this fair young year as yet scarcely beyond its rosy dawn, it must not be forgotten that it will go down as exceptionally memorable and important. Its close will complete a century crowned with jewels of progress, achievement, culture and opportunity heretofore unknown in the world's history.

In prospect a hundred years seems an eternity of time, and yet only twelve brief months are ours in which to prepare and grow strong for the duties, privileges and advantages which await twentieth century women. How shall we best improve them? How like unfinished songs are the years already counted from the rosaries of our lives, lingering only in memory. It is a very solemn thought, however, that the notes, whether sweet or discordant, those of triumph, joy, failure, or repentance, must in their influence go on forever even to generations yet unborn. We cannot live unto ourselves in this world, so certainly does what we are in thought, principle, character and conduct, impress and reflect upon those with whom we are associated either constantly or occasionally. The true woman will walk into the new century through wide-open doors leading to power and usefulness in many directions. Without neglecting any of them as far as time and strength permit, the center of her endeavor will be within her home, that realm for whose peace, rest and comfort she alone can be responsible. The Christian home has been beautifully compared to "a fountain sending forth sparkling streams of love, charity, blessing and brightness to those even afar from its source." To accomplish this the supply must not fail or the waters within its basin become impure—conditions that require constant watchfulness to avoid. To the home-maker how pertinent and assuring the words of Aristotle who says, "Some things we learn to do by doing them. Prayer by praying, love by loving, forgiveness by forgiving and God by godliness, which St. Paul calls knowledge according to (or in proportion to) godliness." May not this last year of the century be profitably spent in "learning to do, by doing these things," until all our years, whether many or few here below, shall be happy ones from the consciousness of duties well fulfilled in his sight? If we sometimes falter and fail we will not be disheartened but

Once more those words of kindness sound.
"Next year,"
The chorus heartfelt and profound
We'll hear.
The ills which gather and pursue
Will certainly give way unto
The good, the beautiful and true
"Next year."

tain, both in quality and quantity, the worst oftentimes ranking as the best through ignorance, or mistaken ideas of what it ought to be.

To return to the "bud," "without riches or beauty, she was so cultured, well bred and tactful as to become at once a general favorite," in other words "a success," the one thing most coveted by ambitious mothers. In reviewing her specified attractions justice compels that the triumph be credited to herself, rather than as a result of inheritance, position, or that all-important personage, grandfather! "Culture" was the first claim, doubtless in a degree to render her a bright, pleasant companion in whatever direction conversation chanced to lead. Familiar with books, pictures, localities, and in touch with topics and events of general interest, she was not dependent upon the small talk and gossip so wearisome and profitless.

We are also told that the little blossom of society's approval was also "tactful." Blessed be the woman possessed of that rare and admirable quality which means so much of comfort and happiness to others. Uniformly courteous and alike mindful of old and young, she is a source of pleasure to all. How beautifully she turns the awkward corners of life for those about her. The man or woman ill at ease are drawn into channels of thought and conversation until they are at their best, self-consciousness being lost in real enjoyment. The woman of tact says only kind things, avoiding discussion, criticism or condemnation of the words and deeds of others. To wound the feelings of another would, from her standpoint, be inexcusable—even cruel. That she may speak words of cheer and encouragement to others, she puts by her own burden of trial and perplexity. Her standard of true worth is not influenced by money, position or clothes, her closest friends often the plainest dressed women of her acquaintance.

In summing up: "What is the veritable woman of tact?" "She is the best type of Christian, in as much as her loving consideration makes other women long to imitate her. Under all circumstances and in every condition in which she may be placed she is truly courteous. She can receive the unwelcome guest with a smile so bright and a handshake so cordial, that in the effort to make it so greeting becomes sincere. The woman of tact is one whose love of humanity is second only in her life's devotion and whose watchword is unselfishness in thought and action." Christina Rossetti says, "Tact is a gift; it is likewise a grace. As a gift it may or may not fall to our share; as a grace we are bound to possess or acquire it." Whether hers as "gift" or "grace," the "sweet debutante" possessing this wonderful power for good, will unfold into the beautiful flower of perfect womanhood, as "heartease" in her home and the little world which is her sphere of love and duty. Supplemented by culture and tact we may be assured of the "best society," and possibly find ourselves enshrined as "saints" in the hearts of those who know and love us best. Who knows? One thing is certain, in cultivating tact aright we may make other lives happier and bless our own by a service acceptable in God's sight.—Ex.

WINE OF CARDUI
A SURE MEDICINE.
I have been suffering from female weakness for four years, and have taken many medicines, but Wine of Cardui and Back-Draught have done more for me than anything else.
MRS. CAROLINE EVANS
It is a mistake to take any and every kind of medicine when you are sick. There is danger in it. Most of the so-called cures for "female weakness" do nothing more than deaden the pain temporarily, and when the effect wears away the patient is weaker and sicker than before. It is never wise to take chances. You have only one life, and that is dear and precious. If you have any pain, ache, disorder or weakness in the feminine organs, nothing will help you like Wine of Cardui. It helps do away with morning sickness during the early stages of pregnancy, and modifies the pains of childbirth; recovery is rapid and future health is assured. The Wine is purely vegetable, being made of herbs whose medicinal properties act directly upon the organs of womanhood. It is a long-tried remedy, and has many years of success behind it. It is sure. Why take a chance medicine when you can get a sure medicine?
