Chaminade's Music.

Dr. Rachel S. Skidelsky is one of the most successful woman practitioners in Philadelphia, a member of the County Medical society and of half a dozen other professional organizations. Recently at a meeting of the Woman's club she started her fellow clubwomen by a vigorous defense of the use of tobacco. First she pointed out what she regarded as the good results of the use of the weed by men. Then she declared that it could be used by women with equal advantage.

PRACTICAL KINDNESS.

It Is Like a Ray of Sunshine on a Dark Day.

"Oh, she has such a kind heart," the speaker gushed sentimentally.

"What does she do to prove it?" I asked.

"Why—er—it's just her disposition."

If you should ask me I should say she was a very selfish woman. Although she is profuse in her expressions of pity whenever she sees a beetle crushed or a mouse killed, I notice she does very little practical kindness. The other day I went shopping with her, and I noticed she made the poor tired saleswoman show her a whole lot of heavy fur coats when she had no intention of buying, but just wanted to see whether they were not prettier than hers, and she keeps her coachman waiting by the hour in the bitter cold for lack of a little forethought, and her horses' heads are checked unmercifully high on the hottest summer day.

TEACHES THE MAID TO CUT OUT A SHIRT WAIST.

Now, I do know another woman who shows the most practical kindness. She helps every person she comes in contact with. She teaches her maid how to cut out a shirt waist for herself. She lends her seamstress a good book to read. She sends the flowers from last night's dinner to the janitor's wife, who is ill.

If a face reveals sadness to her she tries in the most delicate way possible to find out the cause of it and to help bear it if she can.
