Sparks From Douglas

DOUGLAS, Jan. 7.—Today is the Slavonic Christmas, and nearly all these people on the island have laid off from work and are celebrating the day at their club at Treadwell. This morning they marched to Douglas in a body and attended church, after which they returned to Treadwell, carrying the American flag and that of their native land.

The weather still continues disagreeable, and the snowfall continues. The jurors from the island who are serving on the Japanese murder case, are spending a few days at home, pending the arrival of witnesses for the defense, when the trial will be resumed. These witnesses are due to arrive on the Dolphin.

Douglas Camp, Arctic Brotherhood, will hold their regular meeting this evening, and a large crowd is expected, although the weather is bad. Business of importance will be up for discussion.

The boys of the machine shop and the foundry at Treadwell had an interesting bowling match last night, for a big dinner. The machine shop boys were a little too strong for their opponents, winning by about 80 points. The foundry boys are anxious, however, for a return game. The Dolphin is due tomorrow with a large mail.

Mrs. Wilson is out again, after being confined to her home the past week.

Another big ball is planned for the near future and it promises to be an attraction.

Today Gunnison & Marshall, attorneys for the three soldiers convicted of complicity in the highway robbery at Haines last September, filed affidavits in support of the motion for a new trial.
