TURKS MEET A GREAT SLAUGHTER

Alaskans Are Found in Far-away Tahiti

Alexander M. Archangelski and wife are in Juneau having come from Sitka on the last trip of the Georgia, and will leave on the Curacao tomorrow.

They are enroute to Tahiti, one of the Society Islands, an oceanic group, about 12 days' run from San Francisco and on the path of the Australian boats.

Mr. and Mrs. Archangelski are among the oldest pioneers of Alaska. The former is a Russian by birth and came to Sitka 20 years ago as a Russian school teacher. He became fascinated with mining and went to Berkeley California where he took the course in the College of Mines. Afterward returning to Sitka, he became the engineer in charge of the development of the DeGroff mine, now known as the Chichagoff mine. This property was developed to the producing stage without the investment of a single dollar of coin. Mr. Archangelski employed natives and sacked enough of the float quartz found near the lead to pay for opening up the mine and the erection of a small four-stamp mill. This was in 1905; afterward the property passed into the hands of another company through consolidation with the Mills property and a 20-stamp mill has now been in successful operation for several years. Mr. Archangelski says the mine is on a true fissure vein and that it has a very fine future.

Mrs. Archangelski was formerly Miss Paulina Cohen and she came to Sitka as a child 40 years ago. Her father, Abraham Cohen was present when the Stars and Stripes were first hoisted at Sitka. She taught school and later became the postmistress, holding the latter position for twelve years. They are both very fond of Alaska and their old time friends, many of whom live in Juneau.

Mr. Archangelski still retains an interest in the Hirst mine, just opposite the Chichagoff mine. This property is now being developed.

Two years ago Mr. and Mrs. Archangelski made the journey to Tahiti and remained there fifteen months, establishing themselves in a bamboo house to which they are now returning and which is to be their future home—but of course, they say Alaska will always be their real home.

Wants To Know About F. Dunn

Marshal Herbert L. Faulkner today received a letter from Thos. E. Lane of Springfield, Massachusetts, making inquiry into the history of Frank Dunn, who was killed at the Dundas Bay Cannery last July.

The letter states that Mrs. Lane had a brother named Frank Dunn, who came West with the Alaska gold fever; that he was then only in his teens.

They have not heard from him for a long time. Frank Dunn, the missing man was then in San Francisco.

Marshal Faulkner, replied giving all the particulars in his possession and as good a description as possible. The only photograph of the dead man known to exist is an exhibit in the custody of the court.

School Teachers' Hazy Geography

The Governor's office this morning received inquiries from four teachers in various parts of the United States, seeking positions in the schools of Alaska, all of the letters having been addressed to Sitka instead of Juneau. In the same mail were several other letters addressed to the Governor at Sitka, among them being one from the president of an agricultural college in the Middle West, and another from a man in Seattle who is evidently a writer on legal subjects. The Governor says that fully half of the whole number of inquiries received from school teachers are addressed to him at Sitka.

The Greeks to Attack Constantinople From Sea

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Feb. 7.—A statement issued by the Bulgarian war office gives out the main object of the Bulgarian armies, aside from reducing Adrianople. Bulgaria proposes to force a passage through the Turkish lines and thus reach the Dardanelles. As soon as this is established the Greek fleet will be enabled to enter the Sea of Marmora and attack Constantinople directly from the sea.

There has been much talk of an Austrian-German-Jewish intrigue. In circles favorable to the late Cabinet large quantities of money are said to have been distributed. The affair is even connected with the German delay in subscribing to the joint note of the powers. It is impossible to say how much truth there is in such reports.

NEWS FROM THE WESTWARD

SITKA, Feb. 5.—Dr. White has sold his fine gasoline launch, Goldenrod to Messrs. Newell and Young, who intend to convert it into a halibut fishing boat.

Mr. Henry came up from the Springs, much improved from his short stay there.

Besides the passengers on the Dorothy M., from the Springs, there was a nine hundred-pound halibut in tow.

The Elk is in from Chichagoff with usual brick of gold—good for the eyes. Mr. Freeburn, the superintendent of the Chichagoff mines, came in on the Elk.

Dr. White has sent for material to build a boat 72 feet long and 22 feet wide, in which he expects to install a 160-horse power Diesel engine.

The halibut boats are fishing in this vicinity with success. A number of them have gone to Petersburg, Ketchikan and Seattle with their catches, while a few local fishermen are shipping from here.

Supt. W. G. Beattie has been spending a few days here looking over the government Indian school.

Miss Esther Gibson, who for the last 16 years has been the nurse and the medical department for the Sheldon Jackson mission school, is going to fill a like position for the government under Supt. W. G. Beattie, at Kake. There is great fear here that it might be permanent. Miss Gibson is highly esteemed here and everyone regrets to see her go.

PELTY PROSPECTOR LIKES THE COUNTRY

C. L. Dunbar, formerly of Nevada, but more recently from Yukon Territory is in Juneau but will leave in a few weeks for Seattle.

Mr. Dunbar has put in about eight months at prospecting in the Pelly river watershed and speaks favorably of that section as a field for the prospector. The Pelly has not been prospected very thoroughly. Mr. Dunbar says. In fact there are vast areas that show no evidence of having been visited by whites or even Indians.

There is a schist-porphry formation in one section of the Pelly watershed that offers alluring inducements to the man who makes prospecting his calling. Mr. Dunbar, who has prospected nearly all his life and who knows the Nevada hills like an open book, is particularly impressed with this section. He says that there are splendid surface indications of good quartz deposits but absolutely no prospecting has been done along this line.

Mr. Dunbar became interested in a placer prospect. He never reached bed rock and so feels rather diffident about expressing himself on the subject. "It looks good to me," he said, "and I'm going back." Further than this Mr. Dunbar refuses to be quoted. Gold is encountered in the gravel as far down as he had sunk and evidently in encouraging quantity.

From Seattle Mr. Dunbar will proceed to Vancouver and secure some pack horses. He expects to come up in April and go in over the lee with his pack animals and outfit. There is a trading station belonging to Taylor & Drury about 200 miles up the Pelly but Mr. Dunbar will evidently pack a part of his outfit cross country. There is no one in his section of the country but himself.
