BUYER FOR LARGE
FUR DEALER IS HERE

Louis Levy, who came to Sitka, Alaska in 1868, an event that he does not remember very distinctly, is a recent arrival in Juneau from the South. Mr. Levy who is the son of one of Juneau's pioneers and a pioneer of the town himself is not here very long at a time of late, being connected with an establishment that requires considerable travel of him.
Mr. Levy is buyer for Joseph Ullman, of New York, the largest fur dealer in the United States and is now enroute to Yukon Territory and the interior of Alaska on business for the great fur house. He will leave for Whitehorse about May 15.
A gasoline launch, expressly for his convenience, to be used on the Yukon and its tributaries, is now being built and will be shipped to Whitehorse about the first of April.

SITKA SEEKING BETTER FACILITIES

It is reported that the people have organized a company in Sitka and subscribed enough money to build a heavy class gas launch to be used as a ferry boat between Sitka and Petersburg. The infrequency of boats to the ancient capital of Alaska has prompted the citizens to devise means of overcoming the present handicap.
The growing fishing industry has made the move almost a necessity. The distance to Petersburg is only 118 miles and it is intended to have this boat make bi-weekly trips to the great fishing town of Petersburg which is on the path of all the steamers plying on Southeastern Alaska.
The new craft is to be 100 feet in length and will cost about $15,000.
