PROSPERITY DEPENDS UPON KEEPING PROMISE.

THOSE that remain of the people who fear that disaster will follow the passage of a low tariff bill are troubling themselves over superficial things.

The confidence of the people in the institutions of their country would be sadly shaken if the Democrats, coming into power as they have, with a mandate from the people so plain that its meaning cannot be mistaken, should fail to do what they have promised to do and what they have been directed to do.

The fact that there has been a stiffening of the "market" since the assurance has gone out that the Underwood bill will be a promise-keeping measure, and that it will pass, and since the New York legislature passed the bills regulating the New York stock exchange, is, itself, indicative of the soundness of this reasoning.

How thankful "Jethro Bass, of Conniston" must feel that Winston Churchill got him comfortably out of politics before he invited President Wilson to make his summer home in the Hampshire hills!

TAFT'S INSPIRING EXAMPLE.

The example presented to the American people by former President Taft in surrendering the reins of authority as the Nation's chief executive and taking up his new work in the classroom of a university is inspiring.

Other great Americans, whose political ambitions have been unfulfilled because a majority of their fellow citizens disagreed with their ideas of what should be done, like Mr. Taft, have quit public service to become schoolmasters.

But, as said, these and other examples too numerous to mention, but accentuate the value of all of Mr. Taft's action. The wholesome manner in which he has returned to the duties of an every-day citizen of the Republic is a token of the sincerity that was in his heart when he, with beaming and enthusiastic countenance, congratulated his successor at his inauguration and told him that he hoped that his administration would be a success, and assured him that "we will all be behind you."

The Allies seem determined to go into Constantinople while going is good.

The city is to be congratulated by the manner in which the new City Council is taking up the matter of fire protection for the city. The suggestions made by Councilman Hurlbutt at Friday's meeting are worthy of the highest praise.

AN EASTERN TRIBUTE TO WILLIAM J. BRYAN

"Stand-pattism is dead," said Mr. Bryan in his speech at Des Moines. In stating the lesser fact Mr. Bryan omits the greater fact. Not only is stand-pattism dead but Hannalism is dead.

It was Mark Hanna Republicanism that put the United States government into partnership with Big Business. It was Mr. Bryan's free-silver campaign of 1896 that gave Hanna and Plutocracy their opportunity. In trying to escape the evils of a debased currency the country swung to the other extreme.

As a result of the 1896 campaign Washington moved to Wall Street, and Wall Street became the capital of the United States. The government was frankly and cynically administered for the profit of privilege. Plutocracy became as arrogant and despotic as slavery. If Wall Street wanted legislation, legislation was enacted. If Wall Street wanted laws suspended, those laws were suspended. If certain government policies meant dividends for Big Business, those policies were adopted. If Wall Street wanted to exploit the resources of the country, those resources were placed at his disposal. The very expression, "stand-pat" was coined by Mark Hanna to encourage the Republican machine to resist the public demand for honest tariff revision, and it soon became a battle-cry against every assault upon public abuses and public wrongs.

Mr. Bryan can take pardonable pride in the death of stand-pattism. He has lived to retrieve the mistakes of his past. His free-silver campaign drove the country to plutocracy, but his battle for Progressive Democracy in 1912 emancipated it. To his efforts the country owes the nomination of Mr. Wilson for president and the effective realization of the new policies that have taken the United States government out of the hands of Wall Street. Without William J. Bryan we would have no Woodrow Wilson. Mr. Bryan's cast is unique. There is no other instance in American history in which a statesman atoned so brilliantly and so beneficently for his blunders.—New York World.

EVEN WILSON FALLS FOR BASEBALL GAME

President Wilson's acceptance of a season's pass from the Washington baseball club goes to show that if people keep on trying they will find the weak spot that indicates that a man is human no matter how much of a front he puts up in the effort to conceal it.—Pittsburgh Gazette-Times.

LEWIS CAUSES SUN TO BREAK INTO POETRY

If e'er I damned, I bless these eyes that watch the Pink Aurora rise incarnadining happy skies, Jim Ham Lewis! O, fluttering, brilliant, flashing thing, bright butterfly of gorgeous wing, East, South and West far journeying, Jim Ham Lewis! A paragon of many graces, a myosotis of a face, in Beauty's Jack king, Jack and ace, Jim Ham Lewis! I see the Senate lights turn pale, I see Martine, of Plainfield quail; thou makest the "plain people" all Jim Ham Lewis. Voice sweeter than the peter bird, emitter of as matchless word as e'er the throat of Bryan stirred, Jim Ham Lewis! Born wast thou in states forty-eight (not counting territories); elate, each wreathes thy brow deliberate, Jim Ham Lewis! Gray Washington awaits thy flames Potomac hankers for her James, Cook county's joy, the flower of names, Jim Ham Lewis!

J. M. DAVIS, Referee.

WALLACE DENIES HE IS TO GET AN OFFICE

A Washington dispatch in the Seattle papers denies that Hugh Wallace will be ambassador to France. It quotes Wallace as saying that the appointment has not been offered to him and that he is not an aspirant for a place at all. The dispatch follows: "After an absence of a week in New York, Hugh C. Wallace, of Tacoma, returned to his home in this city last night to find several scores of telegrams awaiting him to congratulate him on his rumored appointment as ambassador to France. Mr. Wallace said this evening that there was no truth in the rumor, and that he had no desire for appointment to office."
