Bayne in Race for Blonde Eskimos

To discover the remains and records of Sir John Franklin and at the same time to beat Vilhjalmur Stefansson in a race to Victoria Land, the habitat of the blond Eskimos, Capt. Peter Bayne, Civil War veteran, miner, explorer and whaler, known far and wide in the Northland as "Old Cap," will sail from Seattle early in June in the little schooner Duxbury, a vessel well known for its work in the Arctic. Stefansson's representatives are now outfitting the old whaling schooner Karluck at Vancouver. His ship will fly the Canadian flag, as $75,000 of the money necessary was subscribed by the Canadian government. The National Geographical Society will have an expedition in the Arctic next summer, headed by Captain Bartlett, who accompanied Peary on many of his Northern expeditions in search of the North Pole. Roald Amundsen, discoverer of the South Pole, will enter the Arctic next year in search of an unknown continent in Beaufort Sea. He will be in command of the Fram, the celebrated Norwegian ship, which accomplished the Farthest North and the Farthest South.

Capt. Louis Lane sailed a few weeks ago for the Arctic with a party of scientists. His plans contemplate a trip along the coast of Siberia and a possible dash to the land of the blond Eskimo with a moving picture machine. Although there will be a number of expeditions in the Arctic this summer, several traders already being in readiness to make a dash from Nome in the hope of finding good business among the newly-discovered natives. Captain Bayne is not backed by any of the scientific societies but is making the trip on funds subscribed by friends. He recently concluded negotiations with Ira M. Rank, a Nome trader, for the Duxbury. Power will be installed in the vessel immediately, and the wood will be sheathed with Austrian ironbark, one of the few woods that will resist the scraping effect of ice on the bow. Bayne will leave on June 1, which will enable him to reach Point Barrow, the northernmost promontory of the continent proper by August 1, before which time the Arctic is not clear of ice.

Reform.
 "Do you intend to make a speech favoring tariff legislation?"
 "No," replied Senator Sorghum; "one of the tariff reforms I am advocating is in the nature of less oratory on the subject."
Responsibility.

 "In some respects. If he owes you something and says he can't pay you, you can place absolute reliance in his word."

AMERICANS FORCED OUT OF MEXICO

DOUGLAS, Ariz., April 30.—J. S. Douglas and S. W. Applewhite, the American owners of the Cananea Consolidated Copper Company of Mexico, who were reported to be held by Mexican rebels for a ransom are still in this city. They escaped from their mining property when it was reported to them that the Mexican state officers were going to insist that they give employment to all the idle laboring men in the vicinity of their property. They had closed down some of their property, but were supplying all those that had been thrown out of work on account of their action in provisions, but claimed that they could not give employment to more men. So rather than to take chances on having to explain or meet a force of rebel troops that were coming toward their property, they escaped to the United States.

Every thing that will please a smoker may be found at BURFORDS.
 Forced out of business by owner of building. Sale to run only 10 more days.

Fisher's Blend Flour
 Separate machinery is provided for grinding hard and soft wheat. Every grain is washed in the famously pure Cedar River water and thoroughly dried before being ground. It is no little boast to say that this product is the cleanest, most scientifically blended, most economical flour offered for sale today. Combining as it does Eastern Hard Wheat and Western Soft Wheat, it gives to public and private bakeries a material which has all the advantages of both hard and soft wheat flours, is better than either, and decidedly superior to any other blend heretofore produced.
