OLD TIMERS SHOULD SHARE IN PROFITS
 The future of Cordova, and in fact the entire Territory of Alaska, never looked brighter and our people should not be slow in taking advantage of the fact that there will soon be an influx of capitalists and people to this coast and the benefits of this increased population should be enjoyed by the old residents. The live merchant will be quick to see the advantage of keeping his name and business prominently before the public.—Cordova Alaskan.

MANY PASSENGERS COME FROM SITKA ON GEORGIA
 The Georgia, which arrived from Sitka and way ports Saturday afternoon, brought 34 passengers to Juneau. Fourteen of them were from Sitka, and the others from Killisnoo, Tenakee, Hoonah and the Santa Rita at Funter bay. The passengers arriving at this place follow:
 From Sitka—Sam Guyot, Wm. Ferguson, A. Van Mavern, W. H. Daerden, H. Kittilsby, E. Carlson, W. Johnson, John Olson, G. Kumandrow, Henri Empole, E. Stasowski, L. B. Dustin, Jack McConnell, Chas. Warner.
 From Killisnoo—Dan Ablow, Nick Hanson, Mr. and Mrs. Chris Houger, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Lawler, I. Granass, Nick Olson.
 From Tenakee—F. Meyer, T. Donnahey, G. Isaacson, Grant Baldwin, Mrs. Grant Baldwin.
 From Hoonah—S. J. Lane and John Leary.
 From Funter Bay, passengers on Santa Rita—Tony Kovich, Sam Okoil, Nick Atlovich and Archie Abbot.

FATHER MONROE ASKS FOR EVIDENCE OF GRAFT
 Replying to criticisms of the missionaries in Alaska, which contended that they thought more of trading in furs and personal profit than in the betterment of humanity, Father Monroe, the veteran Jesuit priest of the Tanana valley, recently said:
 "Catholic missionaries have been in Alaska many years; the first to plant a cross on the Yukon shore came in 1862; if amongst the many priests that followed him you can find one that ever sent Outside even one single skin for trading purpose, and if you can prove to me that any of our missionaries ever attended to personal interests, instead of spending their lives and wealth for the welfare of others, as I claim they have all done, you are welcome to show me what has been their profit in the 'graft' and I will repay you the amount."

SEWARD SOCIETY ELECTS PROGRAM COMMITTEE
 The Seward Society of the Juneau high school at a meeting held Friday afternoon elected the following program committee:
 Florence Larson, freshman; Hazel Jaeger, sophomore; Almond Richards, junior, and Charles Sabin, senior. Almond Richards, having received the highest number of votes, was made chairman of the committee.

CLEANINGS OF GREAT NORTHERN EMPIRE
 Five final receiver's receipts were issued for placer mining claims in one day early this month at Fairbanks. Four of them were for Ester creek properties and one for a Cleary creek claim. Three of the Ester patents will go to E. R. Jenson, and one patent goes to E. R. and L. N. Jenson. The Cleary creek patent goes to C. E. Jones for No. 8 above, left limit.

A. M. Sterns, a rancher on Birch hill, Fairbanks district, was hit in the forehead by a spent rifle ball recently. He was stunned by the blow, but not seriously hurt. The ball had probably come from a great distance, as no report of the rifle shot was heard.

New Year's day there was the usual rush to undeveloped mining claims in the Tanana district, the workings on which expired with the old year.

The Newboy quartz mine at Fairbanks showed a decline in production in December for the first time in many months. The output was about $2,500. The operating expenses for the month were twice that.

Jack Claypool, son of Judge Claypool of Olympia, formerly a Fairbanks attorney, has entered the Annapolis naval academy.

Michael Mihalek, of Fairbanks, a brother of John Mihalek, the Ester creek and Renny Bullion operator, recently underwent a surgical operation in the East, and is on the high road to complete recovery, according to the Fairbanks Citizen.

They have a "Young Ladies' Art Club" at Fairbanks, and it recently held its first exhibition. The Citizen says the work of the members showed "considerable genius" on their part.

H. J. Atwell, of the Montana bar, was admitted to practice law at Fairbanks early this month.

Mrs. Jack Langdon and children returned on the Northwestern from a visit to the States.
