

Lane and Goethals Plan Alaska Road

CONFEREES HAVE AGREED

Washington, Mar. 3.—The conferees on the Alaska bill have reached a final agreement on the Alaska railroad bill. They are now framing an entirely new bill partly from the Senate bill and partly from the House bill.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 3.—Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane and Col. George W. Goethals conferred at length yesterday regarding the construction of the Alaska railroad. They concluded that much of the machinery used in the construction of the Panama canal can be used in the Alaska work.

Congress to Act This Week.
WASHINGTON, Mar. 3.—It is expected that both houses of Congress will act on the report of the conference committee before the close of the day. It is believed that the report will be agreed to and that the President will immediately approve the measure.
The fact that Secretary of the Interior Lane is already making organization plans for the actual work of building the railroad is taken to mean that the administration will accept the amended bill, though, it is believed, that it preferred the Senate bill to the amended measure.

JUDGE OSTRANDER'S DEATH SHOCKS JUNEAU

The receipt of news of the death of Judge John Y. Ostrander yesterday caused a shock to the many people of this city who learned to know and to like him when he was a resident here and during the frequent visits he has made here since that time. Every where were heard words of profound sorrow.

Judge Ostrander was nearly 60 years of age, and a pioneer of Washington Territory and State. He was reared in Olympia, where his father, Dr. N. Ostrander, was a leading physician of the early days. Later he practiced law at Colfax, Whitman County, Wash. During the first Cleveland administration he was register of the land office at Seattle. Later he practiced law there in partnership with Joseph W. Gregory, specializing in land law. He was a strong character, the soul of honor and integrity and an able lawyer. He is survived by a widow and many relatives in Olympia and other sections of Washington, and by uncountable friends.

THIRD ORE BODY NOW BEING ENCOUNTERED AT KENSINGTON

J. R. Whipple, assistant general manager of the Alaska Gastineau Mining company and of the Kensington Mines company, returned from a trip of inspection to the Kensington mines and brings back some very satisfactory news. The ore body, which it was hoped would be found in the Johnson lead, running parallel to the Eureka and Kensington leads, has been encountered by Superintendent B. B. Neiding in the Kensington crosscut tunnel, which has been extended into the Johnson lead.

The ore encountered is very satisfactory but the extent of it is not as yet known. A great deal depends on the extent of the deposit. It is approximately that of either of the other leads the Kensington mine will have enough ore in sight to warrant the erection of a plant to work on an economic basis.

MODERN BUILDING TO REPLACE ANCIENT LOGS

Juneau's historic log church building at Third and Main streets, is doomed. The ancient structure is to be torn down to make room for the erection of a handsome new business block for the Eagle Brewing company. S. Zynda, proprietor of the brewery and owner of the property announced this morning that active work will begin just as soon as the architect can complete the plans. Yesterday engineers busied themselves establishing the lines of the property. The building will be completed this spring.

The new structure will stand immediately in front of the present brewery building, and will be 50 x 50 feet, three stories and basement, making four stories all told. The basement will be of solid concrete. The first or main floor will contain the offices of the brewery, bottling department and washroom for the brewery. The second and third floors will be arranged for either offices or lodgings.

The old log building holds many cherished memories. It was the first church building of the community in the early days. Within its walls sweet little babes in arms, now charming young ladies of Juneau society, received their christening.

RAILROAD BILL MAKES ALASKA PROMINENT

E. E. Fleming, one of the principal owners in the Glacier Fisheries company who arrived on the Admiral Sampson early yesterday and is staying at the Hotel Cain, says that everybody in Seattle is getting excited over the passage of the railroad bill and they are all anticipating great developments to the Territory and increased business for Seattle as a result.

"The Glacier Fisheries company's floating cold storage plant, the Glory of the Seas, will probably return to her post at Idaho Inlet about May 1," said Mr. Fleming. "The company expects to put up about the same pack as last year."

YOUNG COUPLE WED AND KEEP IT QUIET

Miss Mildred Erickson and Russel G. Casey, popular in Juneau's young society set, were quietly married at the Presbyterian manse Saturday night. Rev. J. B. Stevens officiated. The wedding was kept a profound secret and even the father of the groom was not aware of what had taken place until yesterday afternoon.

Both of the young contracting parties were reared in Juneau. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Peter Gravrock, and the groom is the son of W. W. Casey. They will make their home in the cottage Mr. Casey recently built.

LAYING FOUNDATION FOR MAIN BUILDING

Yesterday the construction crews began pouring cement into the forms that are set for the massive concrete foundations for the big steel structure that is to be the main building for the first unit of the Alaska Gastineau Mining company's ore reduction works at Sheep creek. By the time the steel reaches here for the superstructure the concrete will be firmly set and there will be no delay in the progress of erection.

The steel for the coarse crushing plant for this unit of the works is now in transit and has reached Seattle already. It will be at its final destination in a short while and the structure will be erected immediately on its arrival.

Tunnel Ready April 1.
"The Sheep creek tunnel will be finished by April 1," said General Manager B. L. Thane this morning and I am well pleased at the progress made all along the line. During February the big tunnel was extended 600 feet although there was a shortage of air for the machines on account of lack of power to operate the compressors to sufficient capacity.

"If the weather holds out as at present indicated we shall be able to resume construction on the Salmon creek dam and I expect we will be pouring cement by April 1."

Col. Jacking Coming.
Mr. Thane says that Col. Jacking expects to leave Seattle for Juneau about March 20. It is quite probable that he will steam up the coast in his new yacht, the Cyprus.

INSURANCE COMPANY SENDS THE CHECK

By the last mail C. T. Gardner was in receipt of a check from the Northern Life Insurance company for settlement in full on his insurance policy for the accident he sustained while skating last month. He informs the Miner that the company made no delay in setting up on receipt of the certificate of the physician attending him during the time he was incapacitated. This speaks well for the insurance company and will no doubt make them friends in this region. —Ketchikan Miner.

The successful store must do the same thing only in a different way. The goods must be on hand, the prices must be right, the service must be commendable, the trading must be square—the kind of square that has four equal sides and four right angles. And this is what the JUNEAU DRUG CO. is adding to do. Try us and see. Opp. Alaskan Hotel, phone 250.—3-2-tf.

CITY CO-OPERATES WITH GOLDSTEIN

At a special meeting of the city council, held last night, a contract was entered into between the city and Charles Goldstein whereby the latter is to advance $500 pay for the cost of installing the city rock crusher on the site chosen for it and the former is to furnish crushed rock to Mr. Goldstein at 35 cents per yard. It is estimated that he will require upwards of 1900 yards of crushed rock for the new concrete Goldstein building at Second and Seward streets. At the same meeting another contract was made whereby the city is to sell 600 yards of sand now lying on the school property to Mr. Goldstein at 75 cents per yard. The rock crusher will be installed and operated under the direction of the city engineer.

Under this arrangement the city gets the rock crusher installed without an outlay of cash and Mr. Goldstein is assured of getting an early start on the construction of his new business block. The sand sold was saved from the excavation made on the school property by the present administration and is piled up on the school grounds. It is a distinct advantage to get this sand and Mr. Goldstein expects to begin delivery of both sand and rock by the middle of April. The building will probably commence to take form early in May.

The President spoke deplorably of the possibility of being forced to armed intervention, and pointed to the size and power of the United States as being sufficient warrant for pursuing a patient course.

Yet, those who heard the President talk, were impressed with the evident fact that he has been thinking a great deal of the possibility, if, indeed, not the probability of ultimate intervention. It is believed that if it shall come to that there will be no weakness in the execution of the work.
