

Empress Of Ireland May Be Raised

QUEBEC, via Prince Rupert, June 9.—It is understood that the same firm employed in raising the battleship Maine is sending divers to the Empress of Ireland wreck. A wrecking outfit is already on the scene. The vessel has a million and a half of treasure aboard. Divers will go after this and at the same time are to make a survey and determine upon the possibility of raising the vessel.

Storstad Sues C. P. R.
MONTREAL, via Prince Rupert, June 9.—The owners of the collier Storstad have entered a counter claim against the Canadian Pacific railway for $50,000 in connection with the collision of the collier and the Empress of Ireland, alleging negligence in the navigation of the Empress. The C. P. R. claim against the Storstad, on the other hand, is for $2,000,000. Each of the captains of the vessels maintains he followed the correct rules laid down, thus putting the blame for the accident upon the shoulders of the other.

Passengers Fought With Knives.
QUEBEC, via Prince Rupert, June 9.—The inquest held into the circumstances connected with the death of the victims of the Empress of Ireland indicates that there was a most terrible scene enacted on the vessel before she went down. The victims were caught in a trap and a fierce fight occurred as the steerage passengers, particularly, fought for their lives.

It is learned now from an examination of the victims whose bodies have been recovered that more than nine-tenths of them did not die from drowning. They lost their lives from other injuries.

Wounds have been found on many which indicate that they were inflicted with knives. To substantiate this, these weapons were found in the clenched hands of the victims.

Later, he will return and devote August and September to the missions of Southeastern and Southwestern Alaska, not going into the Interior until November.

While in Seattle Bishop Rowe will meet and confer with Archdeacon Hudson Stuck, Rev. Mr. Lumpkin and other missionaries, who will come North this summer to relieve those who are now on the ground doing work for the Episcopal church.

Archdeacon Stuck has been traveling in the East and in Europe since early last fall. He will come North at an early date and resume his work among the missions of his church in the Yukon valley and other sections of the Interior.

Rev. Mr. Lumpkin will accompany Archdeacon Stuck North, and relieve Rev. Charles E. Betticher, who has been in charge of the church at that place for several years. The latter, at the instance of the Bishop, will make a tour of the States, and lecture on Alaska during the coming year.

MISSING TACOMAMYN ON WAY SOUTH

Wenzel Hoder, whose wife recently died at Tacoma, and whose two daughters, aged 15 and 11 years, have been trying to locate him in Alaska, was discovered a few days ago by Chief of Police W. H. McBride, of Juneau, who informed him of the conditions that had developed at Tacoma. Mr. Hoder left on the Admiral Evans Sunday for Tacoma to get his children and care for them.

Mr. Hoder had been employed at Juneau, and had not heard from his children for some time.

The Empire received a letter in the last mail from Richard Bushell, editor of the Ketchikan Miner, asking that assistance be rendered in locating Mr. Hoder. Tacoma parties had written Mr. Bushell. Chief McBride had already located the missing man, however, and he was on his way home.

ROAD FUNDS SHOULD BE AVAILABLE EARLY

Thousands of dollars are being lost to the camp this spring through the failure of the government to provide adequate funds for the repair of the roads and trails throughout the district at a time when repairs are urgently needed. We appreciate the fact that the government has done very much for Alaska in the way of providing funds for the construction of a railroad, and it is not our wish to appear ungrateful in calling attention to the pressing need which now confronts us. We merely mention the condition of the local roads in the hope that a way out of the difficulty will be found if the proper authorities at Washington are apprised of our plight.

We do not believe that it is the intention of Congress or the administration to abandon the wagon roads in Alaska now that it has been decided to build a railroad. It must be recognized by the officials at Washington that the importance of our highways will be enhanced by the building of railroads, and we feel sure that the time will come when there will be many times more money expended annually in improving and extending the wagon roads than has been spent in the past. But there is an immediate need, and because there is not now money available for the work, the business and development of the camp are being retarded.

Not only that. The failure to make needed repairs at this time will necessitate the expenditure of a much larger amount of money and labor later in the season, and if weather conditions are not favorable later on, it will be impossible to repair the damage which has resulted from the spring snows and water.

The local representatives of the road commission are doing what they can to put the roads in condition for use. They doubtless will make their limited funds go as far as possible toward relieving the situation. But they can not improve conditions much until additional money is available, and it is with the object of hastening another appropriation that we mention the matter at this time. The need is urgent, and it will be money saved to the government if the additional work is authorized in time.—Fairbanks Times.

JONES MAY BECOME FISHERIES HEAD

Dr. E. Lester Jones, deputy United States Fish Commissioner, who is now enroute to Juneau and who will devote the next four months to an investigation to the fishing industry of the North, may succeed to the head of the fisheries bureau, according to Washington newspapers.

A recent Washington Post says: "Dr. E. Lester Jones, of this city, may be named by President Wilson to succeed Hugh M. Smith as Commissioner of Fisheries in the Department of Commerce. Mr. Smith is a holdover, having been deputy commissioner in the Taft Administration. Dr. Jones is at present deputy commissioner."

"Dr. Jones leaves this week for Alaska, where he will make a four months' study of the salmon industry along the Pacific and Bering sea coasts. A number of restrictive measures relating to the salmon industry are pending in Congress. The trade of Alaska amounts to $16,000,000 a year, and the Administration is suspicious that there is considerable waste.

"For some time there have been reports of friction in the Fisheries Bureau."

Dr. Jones will arrive here on the Admiral Sampson, and will join the United States fisheries boat Albatross.

LANE'S PROGRAM COUNTS FOR PROGRESS

There is sound sense, practicability and constructive statesmanship in the suggestion made by Secretary Lane for the creation of a commission, to take charge of all of the resources of Alaska, to do that work well in that territory which is now done badly or not done at all by half a dozen or more different governmental agencies, all limited in what work they can do by the constant necessity of referring everything to bureau officials in Washington City.

In the form of a report made to the senate and the house committees on territories Secretary Lane marshals the arguments in favor of his scheme. The real recital in this report of the manner in which matters affecting Alaska are now parceled around among the different bureaus and departments, is a sufficient argument in itself for the adoption of some simple, comprehensive and workable plan, and he has outlined such a plan.

There should scarcely be any question that all matters affecting the public domain should be administered, not alone in Alaska but everywhere else, by one bureau of one department of the general government. The forestry service belongs to and should be entirely under the jurisdiction of the interior department, for one thing.

But as far as Alaska is concerned, all the matters affecting it and the development of its resources should be left under the control of a single commission of competent men, on the ground, with full power to act, unhampered by the bureaucratic methods of Washington City, but free to deal with every situation as they find it. This is the diametric opposite of the bureaucratic methods under which Alaska has been hotted-up for so many years and that very reason affords a strong argument for it. Secretary Lane's report on the subject should act upon his recommendations, which have already been embodied in bills now before congress.—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

FIRE BURNS FOUR BUILDINGS AT LATOUCHE

SEWARD, June 3.—Four buildings were destroyed by fire at Phoenix, near Latouche, on the night of May 26. The fire originated in "Billie" Little's saloon and spread to L. L. Kimball's store and two small residences.

Ote Little, brother of the saloon keeper, was asleep in the building when the fire started at 12:16 in the morning. He had a narrow escape from being overcome by smoke. He fired several shots to arouse the neighbors, but the fire had gained too much headway to be controlled. Kimball devoted his time to saving $3,000 worth of furs he had in the attic and lost his store stock.

The total loss on all four buildings is estimated at about $8,000.

Kimball started the first grocery store in Seward eleven years ago, and moved to Latouche about seven years ago.—Seward Gateway.

VALDEZ, June 4.—Superintendent W. R. Millard, of the Granite Gold Mining company, reached Valdez last evening with $6,000 worth of gold bullion, the result of 13 days' run with the small Lane mill on the claims. Superintendent Millard also reports that the development work is demonstrating the fact that the ore body is larger than at first expected; that it carries high values and that the property is certain to become one of the largest producers in this section. The ore body is 14 feet wide and the company have blocked out ore enough to run the mill for a year and further development work is contemplated and the extent of the ore body is to be demonstrated.
