Wickersham Announces Candidacy For Re-Election

The mail from Washington this morning brought the announcement of the candidacy of Delegate Jas. Wickersham for re-election to the fourth term as Delegate from Alaska. The announcement does not state whether Judge Wickersham will make his campaign as the candidate of any of the political parties or as an independent; however, as the letter is addressed to the people at large and places no limitations or qualifications upon his candacy, ti may be taken for granted that he is an independent candidate, but that he would accept the endorsement of such political organizations as might agree with his position on the issues of the day, which are set forth.

The Delegate announces that he will support the progressive Alaskan policy of President Wilson in case he is re-elected, and enumerates the things that he will work for.

Text of Announcement.

The following is the text of Delegate Wickersham's announcement:

Washington, D. C., June 4th, 1914.

To the People of Alaska: I shall be a candidate for re-election as Delegate from Alaska at the November election. This announcement is made upon the request of many people in Alaska, and because my duties as your Representative in Congress prevents me from coming home at an early date to make it in person.

In case of my election in November it will be my purpose to work for Congressional enactment:

1. In support of the progressive Alaskan policy declared by President Wilson in his message to Congress, December 2d, 1913.

2. To continue appropriations in aid of government owned and operated railroads in Alaska.

3. To secure better administrative control over railroad and steamship lines in Alaska, a reduction of the present confiscatory rates, and permanent dissolution of the monopoly, which has so long controlled transportation facilities in Alaska in violation of the Sherman act.

4. To secure an additional appropriation of $450,000 for the immediate completion of the capitol building at Juneau, and other appropriations for other needed public buildings in Alaska.

5. To secure the construction of a safe and suitable harbor at Nome, and the improvement of Dry strait.

6. To secure the passage of a fair coal leasing bill so the mines may be immediately opened for development without monopoly.

7. To secure appropriations for aids to navigation, and for roads, trails and bridges.

8. To protect our fisheries from destruction and moponoly, and to compel them to pay their just proportion for the support of Alaskan government.

9. To create the commission form of control in the administration of national affairs in Alaska, so that our public lands, fisheries, coal mines, forests, roads, game, Indians, and educational, charitable and penal institutions may be managed in Alaska by a single commission headed by Alaskans.

10. To procure the reservation of sections 16 and 36, in each township of public lands surveyed, for the sup-

ELKS' DANCE LAST NIGHT WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

The Elks' dance last night at Elks' hall was one of the most delightful social events that have ever been given by that order that never does anything that it does not do well. The attendance was large, and everything possible was done for the comfort and pleasure of the guests. Electric fans kept the air in motion; ices and punch were served, and notwithstanding that the night was warm, the hall was comfortable and the evening enjoyed. The music by Prof. Sumpf's ten-piece orchestra, was doubtlessly the best dance music ever heard in Juneau.

C. J. SKUSE GETS PATENT FOR HOME

C. J. Skuse who has for a number of years been conducting a ranch at Mendenhall river and supplying Juneau and a number of outside places with vegetables from his homestead, has been granted a homestead patent to his lands. His entry consists of 151 acres at Mendenhall and is one of 23 claims in the forest reserves that were thrown open yesterday and restored to entry in the Chugach and Tongass reserves.

A patent has also been issued to the Pacific American Fisheries company for 94 acres on the east side of Excursion inlet, as a soldiers additional homestead.

The land office has recommended that patent to the Feed group of coal claims be repected. This is a group of coal claims eight in number in the Bering river district. These claims were sold by the original locators to a company known as the Alaska Anthracite Coal company of eight stockholders, who paid for the claims nearly $10,000. The company applied for patent, and the government charges that the original locators made unlawful location in that they all agreed to let their agent Freed have an interest in the locations, or that their several interests constituted realy a common interest, and that they did not open or improve a coal mine on each of the locations. The decision is that the government has failed to prove any of the charges of fraud, except that one of the claims was located solely in the interest of the agent Freed, who admits the charge, and that none of the locators at the time of location had opened or improved a coal mine. The decision was one that was controlled by the hearing in the Cunningham and James Wardell cases. F. P. McDonald acted as agent for the purchasers. The land office has recommended that the applications for patent be rejected.
