The Princess Alice arrived from the South last night making the first of four voyages that are to be made during the present summer season. Capt. J. A. McLeod is in command and very proud of his splendid ship. The Princess Alice is one of the largest vessels of the C. P. R. fleet operating on the North Pacific coast and is certainly one of the most commodious and luxuriously finished. She has been operating on the triangle run of Puget Sound and adjacent waters for nearly two years and is a great favorite. She can carry 1200 passengers and has 222 state rooms.

Capt. J. A. McLeod, who is in command of the Princess Alice, is the admiral of the Canadian Pacific fleet, and the regular master of the Princess Alice which he commanded for years.

A large crowd was on the dock to greet the vessel and hundreds of people took occasion to inspect the beautiful craft under the guidance of J. T. Spickett, agent of the company for Juneau. There were many round trip tourists aboard, some of whom will make the trip over the White Pass and Yukon to Whitehorse. The following went for Juneau: L. McMullen, C. Wharton, C. J. Opperman, Mrs. Irene Lindsay, W. Price, W. Raymond and wife, Mrs. Rasovich, William Rugg, J. Fishman, Mrs. Had, Mrs. Peoples and two children, Mrs. I. Brustern and two children, J. Martin, G. GRAND THEATRE TONIGHT

Entire change of program tonight, as follows: "Resurrection," is a very touching society drama. "The Rights of a Savage," a great "101 Bison" Indian feature. "The Logging Industry," educational production; logging camps in the Northwest. "A Friend to Children," a good comedy production. For Friday and Saturday—"Carmen" Marion Leonard in a three feature.

WATERFRONT RIGHT OF WAY EXPECTED

It is believed that with the proper showing the Interior Department will consent to the building of a waterfront thoroughfare in front of Auk Indian village for the purpose of connecting Willowoughby avenue or Indian street extension, with E street in the Casey-Shattuck addition, thus closing the only gap existing between Juneau's business section and the Gold creek estuary and the government road leading to the north. The city council has secured the co-operation of Gov. J. F. A. Strong, in bringing the necessity of this improvement to the attention of Secretary Lane and data is now being forwarded to back up the application for the right of way desired. The Indian street extension is now completed as far as Sixth street, or to the beginning of Auk village. Under instructions from the city council, Wetrick & Wilhelm, the well known engineers, have just completed a specially drawn plat showing a portion of the Juneau business section and waterfront, the Auk village, and the Casey-Shattuck addition. The completed portion of Willowoughby avenue is also shown and with it the proposed thoroughfare in front of Auk village. A comprehensive idea of the proposed improvement can therefore be grasped in a moment. This plat is to be sent to the Department of the Interior along with other data relating to the application for permission to build in front of the native village.

FORREST BUILDING PRACTICALLY DONE

The new Forrest building on lower Front street is now practically completed and a goodly portion of it already in use. It occupies a space facing 125 feet on Front street by 100 feet deep extending toward the Pacific Coast company's dock site. The building contains three store rooms facing on Front street, one store room facing on a passage way to the south of the building and two large shops at the rear and reaching the full length of the building. It is one of the most substantial frame buildings erected in Juneau. Two of the store rooms facing on Front street are for rent. The store room facing on the passage way has been rented to Dave Talbot for a plumbing shop. The third store room facing on Front street will be used for the stock and store of the supply depot of the Juneau Iron Works. Mr. Forrest stated this morning that it was his intention to carry a complete line of Standard and Regal gas engines and all the parts together with a complete and varied stock of water wheels and equipment. The offices of the concern are in the rear portion of the store room. The waterfront side of the building is already occupied by the machine and blacksmith shops of the Juneau Iron Works.

Garage Started.

Immediately south of the Forrest building and separated from it by an eight-foot passage way the new garage for the W. F. Merchant Motors company is being built. Active work on the construction was begun yesterday and the frame for the walls was raised yesterday. This building stands principally on the site formerly occupied by the Juneau Iron Works. This building is to be rushed to completion with the same spirit that marked the erection of the Forrest building. It also stands on ground owned by Forrest and is being erected by day labor under the personal supervision of Mr. Forrest.

DORTERO CASE SHOULD REACH JURY TODAY

The case of Sabina Dortero against the Home Power Co. of Skagway which has occupied the attention of the district court ever since the opening of the Skagway term was expected to reach the jury today. The action was brought to recover for personal injuries alleged to have been sustained through electric shock occasioned by defective insulation. There are two other jury cases to come before the court and many are beginning to speculate as to whether or not the court will adjourn in season for the officials to get home for the Fourth of July celebration.

GEORGE WELSH ALARMS THE EARLY LARKS

Simon Hirsch today received a letter from George Welsh who is starting the larks on the French ranch near Stockton, California, by his early rising. George says that he gets up at 4 a. m. each day and gets up steam in the engine after which all he has to do is attach the milkers to the patient kine and watch the pails fill. Taken altogether he is fond of his ranching experience and is feeling fine.

It is understood that the private purchasers will transfer them to Greece almost immediately. The original cost of the Mississippi was $5,629,183; and of the Idaho, $5,658,731. SEATTLE DEFEATS PROPOSED CHARTER

SEATTLE, July 1.—Returns are not yet all in from yesterday's voting on the charter submitted by the 15 freeholders who were elected at the last municipal election, but they are sufficient to determine that it was badly defeated. The majority may reach two to one. The proposal authorizing the granting of franchises without the "common user" clause likewise is defeated. It is thought that several if not all the bonding propositions may have carried. The new charter was defeated by the progressive voters, who favor a common commission government. The freeholders turned down the commission form of government for the managerial system with a large legislative council elected from districts instead of from the city at large. The voters have defeated their plan.

Light Vote Cast.

SEATTLE, July 1.—Out of nearly 75,000 votes registered only 20,000 were cast at the charter election yesterday.

The trouble here is the same as it is in all countries where they have universal suffrage. We have hundreds of people like President Wilson in Europe—braun, scholarly, cultured, charming, but theorists and impracticable believers in the capacity of the mass of non-property holders to govern themselves.
