WHITEHORSE BECOMES FOX FARM CENTER

Young foxes are very numerous this season, thirty-seven having been brought in on one steamer a week ago. Nineteen arrived on the Nasutlin Monday night and several other bunches of from four to six and eight have also been brought in during the past few days. Ed. Marcotte, who showed up last Thursday night after a trip to Lake Arkell, has seven fine animals, one black and six cross. Jack Swansen who works for Robert Lowe, captured a fine silver grey and a cross less than a mile below town. The Indians are bringing in many of the young animals and, taken all around, the fox business is assuming large proportions in this locality. The prices paid, however, are not nearly so high as last year and before the law prohibiting their exportation without regulation was passed.

Chambers Klusne Farm. Compared with the manner in which Harry Chambers is getting into the fox business, the other Yukon fox ranchers are still in the blossom stage. "Shorty" already has purchased one hundred and forty young foxes this season and has turned down nearly half that number within the past ten days. He says it costs him $25 per day to feed what he has, requiring four men to keep them supplied with rabbits, gophers and ptarmigan. All these young animals were taken within a few miles of Champagne and at Silver, on Lake Klusne, forty more are awaiting Chambers' arrival next week when he takes the mail there.

Among the stock already purchased by Chambers and now in his corrals at Champagne are several blacks and silver greys, all the others being crosses. The Indians have devoted all their time to the fox-catching industry ever since the season opened, which was June 1. J. R. Algure of the White Pass hotel, is going into the fox business on rather a large scale, having already acquired twenty-six young animals, all of which are of good variety, mostly crosses but some silvers.—Whitehorse Star.

DAWSON INTERESTED IN BASE BALL

An invitation from Dawson to Whitehorse to send a baseball team to that place is an echo from the past and one which revives pleasant recollections of days when Dawson was the most enthusiastic baseball town of its size on the continent of North America—and Whitehorse was equally enthusiastic in proportion to her size.—Whitehorse Star.
