JUNEAU LADS ARE 1914 CHAMPS

Gastineau-Juneau won the 1914 championship on Douglas-Treadwell in a sensational 1-0 game on the Juneau Recreation park grounds yesterday afternoon. It was one of the finest exhibitions of baseball ever seen in the North and the most interesting of the series of fifteen agreed upon by the management of the contending teams. Each team had previously won seven games and each was determined to take the last and honor game of the series.

The winning run was made in the last half of the seventh. Hester hit safe to right; Reid followed with an infield fielder's choice which Kertis fumbled with a bad throw to second and both men were safe; they advanced on a passed ball; Cy Wright, instead of sacrificing tried to kick the ball and struck out; Molloy toyed with the bat and Hester scored on a wild pitch; Molloy hit to first and Reid was nipped at the plate; Molloy tried to purlin second and was caught, thus retracing the side.

The Juneau girls in the grandstand nearly had heart failure in the opening half of the next inning when Connors lined out a long one that passed Reid between left and center and rolled into the creek. It was good for three and looked like a homer. Molloy retrieved the ball and threw to Callen, who in turn made a lightning and perfect peg to the plate, nipping the runner and shutting off the run which would have caused a tie and perhaps the loss of the game. This was the best chance the Island lads had during the game.

Pittman and Ford, star twirlers of the two teams were on the firing line and honors between them were about even. Ford struck out 8, and Pittman 7, but the latter walked only one, while Ford let four get away. The wild pitch made by Pittman allowed the winning run for Juneau.

DAWSON, Aug. 7. — The Dawson News says: Major Moodie, commander of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police in the Yukon, has just received advices from Constable Bowen, in charge of the post at Snag, on the White river, saying a report had reached there that Andy Taylor, A. Beiswanger and "Windy" Johnson were held up and robbed of $60,000 in gold from the Chisana. The story was brought to Snag by mushers en route from the Chisana. The holdup is said to have occurred on the Chittistone river, on the trail from Chisana to McCarthy, and the gold is reported to have belonged to Ives and company. The report from Snag is dated July 27.

J. H. COBB FRIEND OF NEW ATTY.-GEN.

J. H. Cobb, the lawyer of this city, is a friend of Thomas Watt Gregory, yesterday appointed by President Woodrow Wilson to be Attorney-General of the United States to succeed James C. McKeenrolds, promoted to the Supreme Court bench.

Attorney-General Gregory, Postmaster-General Burleson and Mr. Cobb were members of the first class in the Law School of the University of Texas. The Dean of the Law School at that time was Oran M. Roberts, "the Old Alcalde," known as one of the great Chief Justices of Texas. There were only fourteen in the class, and two of these are now Cabinet members. Another, R. A. Pleasants, is Chief Justice of the Court of Civil Appeals of Texas. Mr. Cobb naturally feels very proud of his old classmates.

T. W. Gregory first came into fame as a lawyer in the prosecution, as special counsel for the States of Texas, of the Waters-Pierce Oil Co., in which he secured a conviction and a fine of $3,000,000. The case was taken through all the courts till it finally reached the Supreme Court of the United States, where the case was affirmed, and the fine ultimately paid.

Mr. Gregory was the leader in the pre-convention campaign in Texas in 1912, which in the primaries went overwhelmingly for Wilson; and Texas was the only one of the larger States, which in the convention, never cast a vote from the beginning to the end, for any other candidate. Through that memorable five days' battle Gregory, as one of the Delegates-at-Large from Texas, was one of the most active and earnest supporters of the President.

For about a year past Mr. Gregory has been in charge of the government's side in the controversy with the New Haven railroad.

Speaking of the new Attorney-General, Mr. Cobb says: "His natural ability, which is of the highest order, as well as his wide experience, preeminently qualifies him for the high place to which he has been appointed."

WATERFRONT STREET COMPLETED TODAY

The last gap in the long contemplated waterfront thoroughfare connecting the docks and business section of Juneau with the government road and the territory to the north of town was completed today. The last stretch consisted of 550 feet lying in front of Auk Indian village and reaching from near West Sixth street to the north-westerly limits of the Alaska Light and Power company's property. This stretch was commenced about eight days ago and the work has continued night and day.

This gives the City of Juneau a much needed highway, a water level street from the docks and down town business section to the government road running north from town and which formerly could only be reached by passing over a tortuous and narrow congested road leading over the hill. It offers direct communication to the attractive territory north of the city and will offer inducements for home builders to settle there.

The building of this street has been the dream of many of the older citizens of the place, but the attitude of the Federal government and objections of the inhabitants of Auk Indian village have been a stumbling block in the way. The city council immediately preceding the present body committed the city to the plan and took some first steps toward the accomplishing of the work but were halted for lack of funds and other reasons. The present city council promised before election that they would put the street through and have worked as steadily toward that end as a depleted city treasury would permit.

William Geddes, members of the former city council as well as the present, has given the work his undivided attention. When the city adopted the policy of furnishing the lumber as far as the property owners cared to go on condition that the latter furnish the piling and do the work, it was up to somebody to see that money was raised to meet the city's agreement in front of Auk village. The inhabitants of the village of course would not pay and there were other stretches where government property could not be levered on for this purpose. Consultant Geddes and Tom Knudson went out among the owners and settlers on the property beyond and secured the necessary funds, and they have watched every cent of the money expended to good advantage.

The Alaska Electric Light and Power company built the roadway in front of their holdings at their own expense and the owners of the Casey-Shattuck addition are building a good solid street from the present terminus on their property to the government Salmon creek road.

Plans are now being considered for providing slips and mooring quarters for the growing fleet of small craft at some convenient place along the thoroughfare. Already much building activity is in evidence along the new street by owners of private interests.

The native Indian population and owners of the property of Auk village will profit greatly through the construction of the new roadway. It is estimated that the improvement will increase the value of their holdings to three times its former worth and make new ground accessible for them besides offering better waterfront facilities than they could ever have under old conditions. The city is bound by agreement not to claim title to the ground occupied by the thoroughfare and to protect the Indians from interlopers or jumpers if any should attempt to secure possession of any of the tide lands abutting on this stretch of roadway or parallel to it. Residents and owners of property beyond who worked so hard to get the roadway through also feel very strongly on the subject and will lend full support to the protection of the native Indians in their rights to this property.
