HOPE THINKS WELL OF PORT WELLS

Tracy Hope, member of the well known family for whom the Hope mining camp in the Cook Inlet country was named, and himself a mining man of many years experience in Alaska, believes that the Port Wells district has a good future. He recently arrived from that section accompanied by Mrs. Hope and they are now visiting with friends in Juneau.

Speaking of the Port Wells country Mr. Hope said that there were two producing properties already operating successfully and one near that stage. The Granite mine in three months, he said, had cleaned up $64,000, milling only 20 tons per day. The Gold Eagle mine has just begun producing and the little 5-stamp mill is operating but as yet they have not made the first clean-up. The Ohm property is prospecting well and a good showing is being made.

"There are three other properties," said Mr. Hope, "that have been developed to the point where the owners are warranted in putting in mills—these are the 'Herman,' 'Hobo,' and 'George.' In addition there have been three important discoveries made during the summer, although prospecting has been greatly retarded by an especially wet summer."

STRONG BILL PREPARED FOR GRAND SATURDAY

An unusually strong bill has been prepared for the Grand theatre Saturday and Sunday evenings to include: Miss Maude Pearly in King Rene's Daughter Iolanthe, in her garden. A poetic drama from the Danish of Mendrick Heri, produced in three reels with a notable Thanhouster cast.

"His Crooked Career," or the largest vessel ever launched in the world sidewise. This is a side-splitting farce comedy.

The Animate Weekly contains a championship meet of athletes; a fake steamer crash; newsies at the ball; Orangemen's days; historical events, coaching club meet; navy yard inspection; fire fighters' reunion, aquatic sports, the Kaiser's jubilee, and motor boat races, etc.

VALDEZ MAN GETS WINTER MAIL CONTRACT

VALDEZ, Aug. 30.—W. E. Hansel, of Valdez, was the lowest bidder for the contract to make the winter mail from Valdez to Tonsina. The contract calls for two trips a month. No bond was required by the department with the bid but that when the contract is let the contractor is equipped to handle the mail.

WANTED—Woman for general housework. St. George House, 9-3-14.

PLANKED HIGHWAY IS NOW FINISHED

The last planks were laid this morning on the Willoughby avenue extension carrying the great waterfront thoroughfare across Gold creek to the solid ground of the Casey Shattuck addition. Residents of North Juneau may now come to the business section of town with dry feet and without making the long detour over the narrow hill road. One of the great advantages to be obtained with the completion of the new artery will be the elimination of much heavy traffic through the residence section and over the Calhoun Road.

It is probable that Councilman William Geddes, who has devoted nearly all of his time to this highway since active construction began, both in raising money among the people to assist the city government in the undertaking, and in seeing that the money was judiciously spent, will make a report at tonight's meeting of the council.

It is expected that the owners of the Casey-Shattuck addition will immediately open up the connecting thoroughfare from the end of the plank roadway to the government road leading through North Juneau to Salmon creek.

YUKON LOYAL TO MOTHER COUNTRY

DAWSON, Y. T., Aug. 24.—The citizens of Yukon are proving their loyalty to the Empire by sending men and money to the support of the mother country in the struggle with Germany. The response to a call for 500 volunteers has been answered, many of them being veterans in the service of Britain in former wars.

Former members of the mounted police were given preference but the enrollment embraces Montenegrins, Russians, Italians, as well as a few Americans. One young man born in Yukon is on the list. He is Charles O'Brien son of Thomas W. O'Brien, the Yukon pioneer.

The Dawson branch of the Daughters of the Empire have forwarded $6,500 toward the equipment of the hospital ship, which will be presented to the British admiralty by the women of Canada.

German residents of Yukon have been notified that they must not leave the territory in an effort to return to their native land to take up arms against Great Britain. There are a number of German reservists in the North, all of whom received the call to arms.

The first Yukoner to leave for the front was Jack Watt, who spent the winter in Chisana. He has seen service in India, China and Egypt, and left on the first boat after war had been declared.

BUSINESS TRANSLATED BY FLOATING COURT

VALDEZ, Aug. 30.—S. Mortomoro was brought here by the returning floating court party enroute to McNells, where he will serve ten years for the murder of another Jap at the Nushagak cannery.

D. S. Minor and Jose Tamago were brought here to be taken to the insane hospital near Portland, Ore.

Harry Robles and Jose Milindez were brought over to await trial, the first for attempted murder and the latter for murder committed at the Larson bay cannery.

Emil Anderson will serve 6 months in the Valdez jail and pay a fine of $250 for assault and battery.

Several witnesses were also brought to Valdez.

Court was held at all the ports from Bristol bay to Kodiak and then the cutter came direct to Valdez, but was held off the entrance to Prince William Sound by a heavy storm.

A small cannon used by the Russians at Unalaska when that point was a trading port for the Russian Fur company was brought here by the court to be placed on the lawn at the court house. The cannon is probably more than 100 years old and will be interesting to the tourists who call.

TERM OF COURT AT RUBY IS FINISHED

FAIRBANKS, Aug. 29.—Judge Frederic E. Fuller and other court officials returned to Fairbanks today from Ruby, where they have been holding a term of court. They report the lower river camp as being optimistic of its future. A term of court will be held here at an early date, the jurors having already been drawn.

TELEGRAPH HEADQUARTERS ARE MOVED TO VALDEZ

The headquarters for the United States military telegraph lines in the interior of Alaska has been removed from Fairbanks to Valdez.

U. S. MARSHALS TO BE PAYMASTERS

Funds have been created in the United States marshal's offices throughout the country for the payment of salaries to judge and other court officials, and the United States marshals throughout the country will have the duty of paying such salaries as soon as the law goes into effect which will be October 1, 1914. The new act also provides for an increase of the bonds of United States marshals so affected.

In the case of United States Marshal H. A. Bishop, of Juneau, the bond must be increased from $30,000 to $40,000 and he is made custodian of four new funds and will pay salaries which have heretofore been paid at Washington, D. C.

The funds created are for the salaries of the Judges of the District Court, United States District Attorney, United States Marshal, Clerk of the District Court, clerks to the United States District Attorney, regular assistant District Attorney, and deputy United States Marshals.

Mr. Bishop received letters from Washington yesterday apprising him of the new order of things, also copies of the act. The paragraph in the act applying to the situation in Juneau follows:

"From and after Oct. 1, 1914, it shall be the duty of United States marshals to pay, under regulations prescribed by the attorney general, the salaries of all Judges of the United States courts, except the justices of the Supreme Court of the United States, the salaries of judges retired under section 714 of the revised statutes, and the judges, officials, and employees of all courts whose sessions are held in the District of Columbia, whose salaries shall be paid through the disbursing officer of the Department of Justice as hitherto provided, United States District Attorneys, their regular assistants, clerks, and messengers, and United States marshals and their deputies; Provided, that every United States marshal operating under bond executed prior to the passage of this act shall give bond effective thereafter for the faithful performance of the duties of his office, including the payment of salaries above mentioned."

THE LOSS OF THE ADMIRAL SAMPSON

The loss of the fine steamship, the Admiral Sampson, is to be sincerely regretted, chiefly, of course, because of the sad loss of life accompanying it, but also because in the Admiral Line Seward has always had a staunch friend that always tried to give this city the best service and the best treatment possible.

The loss of the Sampson is not due in the least to the line and Seward's old friend, Capt. Zim Moore, was second to none in the care given to his ship and in ability as a navigator, but it is felt, in spite of all that, that the company and its officers feel a personal loss in the sinking of the vessel that had become so familiar to them as well as to ourselves, and it may not be regarded as assuming too much to express through this paper the regret that the company has met with such a mishap.

For the poor members of the crew who had stopped off at Seward so often and who have now lost their lives there is nothing but regret. From the general Capt. "Zim" himself to the humblest member of the crew none ever showed anything but the greatest consideration for those who travelled up and down on their vessel. Like all the officials of the line they were men with whom it was a pleasure to be acquainted and it is not at all saying too much to state that in those who were drowned Seward feels that she has lost those who were close to her.

What better panegyric could be uttered about the same crew than to repeat the story of the wreck: "Capt. Moore refused to leave the ship—Of ten men drowned eight were members of the crew—Of those eight three were chief officers—The rest were a stewardess whose duty it was to look after the women passengers, a watchman, the wireless operator whose post must be held to the end in honor, and a humble mess-boy—The captain, the chief engineer, the third officer went down with vessel when all the women were saved with the exception of one who, no doubt, forgot herself in caring for her helpless charges."

That is the story of the Sampson wreck—the story which in itself speaks louder than any words of duty nobly done.—Seward Gateway.

CAPT. ZIM MOORE.

Capt. Zim Moore is dead. He lived a man's life and died a man's death. No greater praise can be given any man. Commanding the Admiral Sampson with fifty-five passengers aboard, by his presence of mind he saved fifty-three of the passengers and all but nine of the crew, when his ship was hit a mortal blow by the Princess Victoria in the fog. One of his passengers died in the arms of his chief engineer, A. J. Noon. It was a splendid record and the people of the North, who have known Capt. Moore for many years, are not surprised that in dying he left the remembrance of a heroic death. We are all sorry that Capt. Moore has been taken away, but we are all proud that in the going he left us the memory of a noble end.—Valdez Miner.
