URUGUAYANS DID NOT RECOGNIZE HUERTA
MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay.—Speaking for the administration, Senor Viera, the chief of the cabinet, declared in defense of President Jose Batlle y Ordonez that the latter had not given full recognition to General Huerta during the latter's rule in Mexico City. There has been considerable criticism directed against President Batlle y Ordonez to the effect that in view of the larger South American republics withholding recognition, Uruguay should not have been otherwise.

SHIP OWNERS FIND PANAMA CANAL GOOD
The steamship Pleiades, the first commercial vessel to pass eastward through the Panama Canal, arrived here from San Francisco yesterday. She belongs to the Luckenbach Steamship Company of No. 8 Bridge street.

SHIP OWNERS FIND PANAMA CANAL GOOD
She sailed from San Francisco July 24 and passed through the canal on Aug. 16. Deep with general cargo and lumber on deck, she made the passage from the Pacific to the Atlantic in less than eight hours. To pass through the lock from the Miraflores Lake up to the level of Gatun Lake took about thirty minutes.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Sept. 12.—J. B. G. Lester, the commissioner to South Africa on behalf of the Panama Exhibition is said to be highly satisfied with the result of his visit. He states that many influential bodies will send exhibits, in spite of the government's decision not to be officially represented.

SHIPS ENGAGED IN NORTH SEA BATTLE
The Mainz, the German cruiser reported sunk by the British, is rated as an unprotected third class cruiser, 4,232 tons, 388 feet long, with a draft of 18 1/2 feet, built in 1910, carried 12 4.1-inch guns, and a crew of 379. It developed 28 knots on its trial trip. The reports speak of a second cruiser described as one of the Koln class as being destroyed. The Mainz is one of the Koln class and all of this class are of substantially these dimensions and were designed for 27 knots.

The Amethyst, the British cruiser reported damaged in the action, is rated as a scout cruiser, 3000 tons, 350 feet long, 14 1/2 feet draft, built in 1905. It carries 12 4-inch guns and a crew of 296. Its speed is 23 1/2 knots.

The Queen Mary is 27,000 tons, 660 feet long, finished this year, has eight 13 1/2-inch guns and numerous smaller guns and 1900 men. Its speed is over 28 knots.

The Lion and the Princess Royal, built in 1912 with the same speed and armament, are slightly smaller.

The Madgeburg, reported destroyed by the Russians in the Gulf of Finland, is rated as a third class cruiser, but was slightly larger than the Mainz. It was 4500 tons, 446 feet long, built in 1912, had twelve 4-inch guns, a crew of 373 and a speed of 27 1/2 knots.

The Highflyer, the British ship that sank the converted liner Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, is a protected second class cruiser of 5000 tons, built in 1900, has 11 6-inch guns a crew of 456 and a speed of 20 knots.

SUMMER NATIONAL CAPITAL FOR WEST
DENVER, Sept. 5.—The long-talked of plan for a summer capital for the use of Presidents of the United States received a large boost when Denver's delegation in Congress announced that President Wilson had given his consent to the plan to have him lay the cornerstone of the structure this month, provided Congress had been adjourned. Invitations were issued for the cornerstone laying on Mount Falcon, fifteen miles west of Denver, in the foothills of the Rockies but the event was postponed until such time as it is convenient of the President to take part.

It is planned, however, to build a series of magnificent approaches and to buttress the natural precipice of a thousand feet, which the building will overlook on one side. This work will cost $200,000 or more.

It is planned to have the building held in trust by the governors of the twenty-two Western States. The Mount Falcon residence, it is pointed out, is almost in the exact geographical center of the country west of the Mississippi.

Mount Falcon, while not one of the high mountains of the Rockies, is several hundred feet higher than Denver. It is about midway between the extreme foothills and the continental divide. The nearest great peak is Mount Evans, 14,231 feet high.

At the base of Mount Morrison, a companion mountain, is located the celebrated park of the Red Rocks and Caves of the Titan. The peculiar red sandstone formation in this vicinity crops up in gigantic and grotesque figures. Several of these huge rocks form a natural amphitheater. It is pointed out that the President could speak here to thousands.

The Mt. Falcon home will command a view of the main range of the Rockies to the west and the great plains to the east. Seventy lakes on the plains can be counted from the mountain. The project is to be financed by popular subscription, chiefly in the western States. It is planned to have the main portion of the building completed by the summer of 1915.

FRENCH CROPS HAVE ALL BEEN HARVESTED
