Northern Life Pays $5,000 to Alaskan for Loss of Eyesight

Wrangell, Alaska, Sept. 12, 1914. Northern Life Ins. Co., Seattle, Wash.

Gentlemen: I hereby acknowledge receipt of your check for $5,000.00, in full payment of my claim for loss of sight, under my "3 in 1" policy, for $5,000.00. In looking back over my experience I cannot help but feel very thankful to your representative, Major Ransom, for his insistent "do it now" which he used when soliciting my business last February. At that time I wanted to put off taking the insurance for six months, thinking I would then be in better shape financially to pay for it, although I knew at the time that my wife and little girls needed the protection. As it was, the policy was only received by me a few days before the ammonia explosion which cost me the sight of both my eyes. I certainly appreciate the difference between the "Three in One" of the Northern Life and the Life Only policies as written by other Life insurance companies, which would have been a burden under my present circumstances, while as it is, I have received the face of the policy in cash and my Life insurance is not affected thereby. Again thanking the company for the prompt and satisfactory settlement, I remain Very truly yours, JOHN J. METAGUE.

For particulars regarding the Three in One policies see A. E. RANSOM, Division Superintendent, Northern Life Insurance Company, for Alaska, Cain Hotel.

NEW PEOPLE ARE DISCOVERED IN NORTH

NOME, Sept. 21.—Bringing news of an unexplored land and making its way by sail, with a dead engine, due to lack of gasoline, the Schooner Teddy Bear, Capt. Joe Bernard, which has spent the past five years in the Arctic ocean, arrived here today. Capt. Bernard had charge of an expedition promoted by a mercantile concern of Nome, and from his wanderings in the Far North he brings back tales of tragedy as well as word of new peoples in the North.

An incident of the cruise was a meeting with the explorer Stefanson, Capt. Bernard's partner was lost in a blizzard, after a visit to a Native village. Bernard says he passed through territory practically unknown, and inhabited by natives, who never before had set eyes on a white man. Bernard brought back an interesting collection of birds, fur, eggs and native copper implements.

"TEN COMMANDMENTS" OF GERMAN MANUFACTURERS

- At a meeting of English manufacturers in London recently the following "ten commandments" were read by Sir George Pragnell, who said they had been circulated in thousands throughout Germany during the last three years: 1. In all expenses keep in mind the interests of your own compatriots. 2. Never forget that when you buy a foreign article your own country is the poorer. 3. Your money should profit no one but Germans. 4. Never profane German factories by using foreign machinery. 5. Never allow foreign estates to be served at your table. 6. Write on German paper with a German pen and use German blotting paper. 7. German flour, German fruit and German beer can alone give you body the true German energy. 8. If you do not like German malt coffee, drink coffee from German colonies. 9. Use only German clothes for your dress and German hats for your head. 10. Let not foreign flattery distract you from these precepts and be firmly convinced, whatever others say, that German products are the only ones worthy of citizens of the German Fatherland.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

FOUR AUTOS LEAVE VALDEZ IN ONE DAY

VALDEZ, Sept. 19.—Thursday was automobile day, no less than three cars having left Valdez over the wagon road. The big "Kelly" truck, owned and operated by E. Nelson, was the first to get away with Fairbanks for its destination. Two passengers were aboard and a large quantity of fast freight was taken. Mr. Nelson arrived here on the steamer Evans from Juneau, where he has been operating the big truck. Buck Hoyt's "red devil" combination freight and passenger car was next to get away for Hoyt's headquarters at Gulkana. Buck went to Seattle and returned on the Evans with the Overland car. He expects to do a good passenger business between Valdez and Gulkana. He took a cargo of wet goods. Charley Day sent his Ford machine to Chitina, where he has sold it to Bob Sheldon. Mrs. Miller went as a passenger as far as Ernestine roadhouse. Joe Stanton, the Gulkana mail carrier, also got away Thursday with a big load of supplies for the roadhouses along the trail. Fred Edmunds, from the Gakona ranch also left this morning with a load of supplies for the ranch.

NONE MAKE FUN OF WILSON DIPLOMACY NOW

The United States has ordered her soldiers withdrawn from Mexico where they were no longer needed and the foreign policy of President Woodrow Wilson that was made sport of in Europe some months ago has been fully vindicated. Europe is not making sport of President Wilson's policy now. Only a few days ago the London News, in an editorial on diplomacy, used these words: "The example of the United States must hereafter become the model of the civilized world.—Whitehorse Star.

GERMAN COUNT IS PRISONER OF WAR

Count A. G. Frenzel, a well known character around Tanana for the past eight or ten years, is a prisoner of war at Dawson.

The Count is German by birth, and belongs to the naval reserve of the Fatherland. When the call was made by Germany for the reservists to return home he received notice to go. He had served in the German army during the Boxer trouble in China, and had several badges of honor and a commission as a naval officer. He is very patriotic, and when the news came that the fight was on he could not resist the temptation of showing these to some friends in the Tanana.

As an employee of the United States transport Jacobs he went to Eagle about six weeks ago and told some of his companions why he was going to quit at Eagle. From Eagle he went to Dawson with the mail carrier. In some way the mail carrier gained the confidence of the Count, and from what he heard while at Eagle concluded that he was in the presence of the enemy. This he reported to the military officers at Dawson. An investigation was instituted, the tell-tale badges and commission were revealed and the Count became an honorable prisoner of war, as there were no "ans or photographs of the defenses of Dawson found in his possession nor other evidence that would lead one to believe him to be a spy. He will doubtless be held a prisoner of war until the war is over or Canada is taken by the Germans.

Count Frenzel was at Grant creek prospecting a few years ago, and later took in the Indian river stampede. He has also engaged in various pursuits at Tanana. He is an expert violinist and composer, and we may look forward to several variations on "God Save the King."—Ruby Record-Citizen.

HOME RULE TO WAIT.

In view of the truce between the government and the opposition, it was merely an act of good faith to suspend for one year the operation of the Irish home rule bill. In the regular order of things it will take its place on the statute books upon the adjournment of Parliament and then remain ineffective while the national emergency forbids the renewal of political controversies. That a satisfactory settlement of the Ulster question was about to be reached was evident just before the outbreak of war. It is made more than ever certain by Mr. Asquith's renewed declaration that "any coercion of Ulster is absolutely unthinkable."

The one jarring note in the hour of conciliation was struck by Bonar Law, whose faculty for leading his party into awkward situations never fails him. His ill-timed display of partisanship and the conduct of his followers in leaving the House served to set in higher relief the attitude of John Redmond in expressing the hope that when the Ulsterites and Nationalists were fighting shoulder to shoulder a new spirit would arise in Ireland to make a real settlement possible.

It should be forever remembered to the credit of the Nationalists that in the grave crisis confronting Great Britain they were among the first to rally to the defense of the nation and to put all other considerations aside. The picture of Bonar Law, on one hand, threatening in time of war that the Unionist party, without conditions, would support Ulster by every means in resisting home rule, and of John Redmond, on the other hand, inviting the Premier to visit Dublin at the earliest date and promising to stand beside him in calling for recruits who would testify to the desire of Irish men to aid Great Britain, marks the difference between bigoted partisanship and patriotism.—New York World.

SOCIALISTS IN WAR.

Socialists, it seems, show themselves made of the same stuff as other people when it comes to a question of actual warfare affecting their country's interest. The volumes of anti-war professions of the Socialists of Germany, France and Belgium will remain to their credit even through the beginning of the conflict finds them supporting the government and serving in the armies. Belgian Socialists have sworn their strongest allegiance to the Kaiser. Two Socialists are members of the French cabinet, and surely that was a hasty and unthinking assassin who struck down Juarez at a time when he might have been of the greatest service to his country.

Apparently, the only Socialist opposition to the present war has been on the part of Keir Hardie and the British Labor party, and that has a subdued note. Patriotism fuses a lot of other isms all well enough in time of peace but of secondary importance when it becomes a question of National defense.—New York World.

Things are getting mixed up these days, and there are some things we can't understand. Take for instance Alaska's delegate to Congress. We could understand what it meant when he was first a Republican, then an Independent, then a Bull Moose, then a Democrat, then a Progressive Democrat, but now he has us stumped. A contemporary quotes him as declaring that he is not a Democrat, but a "Progressive Independent." Now what in the duce is that?—Cordova Alaskan.

MEANING OF WAR TO A FINISH

Those who hope for peace at an early date will find no encouragement in the new treaty between Great Britain, France and Russia. Binding themselves not to conclude peace separately, the duration of the conflict is made to hang not upon the necessities of the weakest but upon the interests and will of the strongest member of the alliance.

Unless all the conclusions of Admiral Mahan are wrong, sea power must ultimately exert a prodigious influence upon the results of this conflict. Armies may exhaust themselves in vain so long as the great navies of the belligerents remain afloat. Taken together, the fleets of Britain and France are three times as formidable as that of Germany.

War is a contest also between forces other than those that are in arms. The combined wealth of Great Britain and France, exclusive of dependencies, is three times greater than that of Germany. British and French commerce, twice that of Germany, is proceeding, while that of Germany is paralyzed. No matter what the ordinary fortunes of war on land may be, the time must come in such a struggle as this when the issue will have to be met at sea. Even a triumphant army cannot sustain a nation shut in from its neighbors and impoverished.

It has been estimated that at the time of Augustus, Rome ruled a population of 80,000,000 to 120,000,000. The British Empire has a population of 435,000,000. At its best, the yearly revenue of Rome did not equal that of Holland today, $84,000,000. The revenue of the United Kingdom, exclusive of dependencies, is $1,000,000,000.

The new treaty of London can have no other meaning than that all the resources of men and money of the greatest Empire ever known have been enlisted for the war and are to be thrown into the balance. It will take time to make them available, but with a resolute spirit behind them it is certain that eventually they will bear heavily upon their adversaries. The prospect is solemn enough to impress even those who are at peace, for it foreshadows a strain upon civilization such as was never before known.—New York World.

AISNE.

The department of Aisne is on the northeastern French frontier. It has been the scene of bitter fighting during the German retreat—for in this department the Kaiser's troops turned upon the pursuing Allies. Area: 2,866 square miles. Population, (1906) 534,495.

The surface of the department consists of undulating and well-wooded plains, intersected by numerous valleys, and diversified in the northeast by hilly ground, which forms a part of the mountain system of Ardennes. Among its principal rivers is the Aisne, on the north side of which the Germans halted after retreating from the vicinity of Paris.

Large tracts of the department are under wood. The chief forests are those of Nouvion and St. Michel in the north—Cocuy and St. Gobain in the center, and Villers-Cotterets in the South.

The department is served chiefly by the lines of the Northern Railroad, but the main line of the Eastern Railway to Strasburg traverses its extreme southern sections. Its military center is Amlens, which is the headquarters of the Second Army Corps.

SHOT HEARD AROUND WORLD

When the young Slav of-Bosnian birth fired his deadly shots at the Austrian archduke a bitter hatred of those whom he regarded as his country's oppressors steaded his aim. The double murder accomplished, a sense of his own deathless glory overcame him and he boasted in grandiloquent terms of his cowardly deed.

Little did he dream, however, of the consequences of his mad act. The name of Gavrilo Prinzep is quite likely to be forgotten as completely as is that of that great self-advertiser of ancient days, "the aspiring youth who fired the Ephesian dome" in a vain hope of thereby acquiring immortal renown. Yet it was Prinzep's hand on the trigger that let loose the dogs of war, the flash of his powder that precipitated what promises to become the greatest and most bloody conflict that the world has ever experienced.—Dawson News.
