FORMER SKAGWAY
 MAYOR COMES NORTH

SKAGWAY, June 17.—W. B. King, former auditor of the W. P. & Y. R., but who left Skagway for Vancouver, B. C., on the 25th of August, 1911, came in on the Princess Sophia this morning and will leave for Whitehorse on tomorrow's train, where he will remain for several days.

Mr. King has been, since leaving Skagway, holding the position of auditor for the widely-famed Canadian firm of P. Burns & Co., wholesale butchers, dealers in poultry, butter, eggs, cheese and smoked and salted meats of all kinds which has a string of retail shops all over Western Canada, including Northern British Columbia and the Yukon Territory. He will audit the books of the company at the retail houses in the interior before returning to Skagway on his way back south.

"Bill" King was one of the most popular officials ever connected with the W. P. & Y. R. in any capacity and numbers his friends in this northern country by the score. He says for good and is eminently satisfied with the position he now holds with P. Burns & Co.

While in Skagway he served as mayor of the town, was Arctic Chief of Camp Skagway No. 1, A. B., and Exalted Ruler of the Enks' Lodge—(Skagway Alaskan).

Miss Ada Schonacker of San Francisco arrived yesterday from the South, to make her home here. She is a sister of Cliff and Al Schonacker.

Sam T. Kelsey, well known surveyor, has returned from California, where he has been spending several months. He spent a month in San Francisco, visiting the Fair and at home, in Northern California.

BARNETTE MAY BE CANNERYMAN

Capt. Eldridge T. Barnette, former banker of Fairbanks, was in Juneau this morning, on his way to the Kuskokwim, to look over the country with the view of establishing a salmon cannery. He is a passenger on the Kodak on the steamship Admiral Evans, and will charter the gasoline schooner Hunter for his trip to the Kuskokwim. The Hunter will be in command of Capt. Walter Finn, who also was aboard the Admiral Evans.

Will is Contested

An appeal from the decision of the probate court has been filed by Cecil Hopkins in the matter of the estate of Cecile C. Gallone, alias Babe King. Miss Hopkins claims that the statement purported to be a will, and which bequeathed to George Duvall the entire estate valued at approximately $3500, is not a true will and that it has not been proved. Miss Hopkins further states that shortly before the death of Babe King she herself was assured that the estate would pass to her. Steve Ragan represents Duvall and W. B. Stout will appear for Miss Hopkins. All parties are residents of Haines.

Gorman Escheat Case

The case of the U. S. vs. J. T. Martin, administrator of the estate of John Gorman, deceased, will be heard for escheat within a few days. The estate is valued at $1241.95 and the administrator states that he has no cause for contest except in the matter of several small charges for probate fees, stating that he has the money but does not know to whom to pay it. A. W. Fox will represent the administrator.

T. Thorclison was sentenced this afternoon to ten days in the city jail as penalty for drunkenness.

Paddy Morrissey, charged with assaulting Orville Otis with a dangerous weapon, to-wit: an Indian club, was this afternoon bound over to the grand jury by Commissioner J. B. Marshall. Morrissey's bail is $250 and he is at present detained in the Federal jail.

THREE VIEWS OF FAIRBANKS AS A
 QUARTZ DISTRICT

The Fairbanks Times presents three views of the Fairbanks region as a quartz district—one by the "Optimist," one by the "Pessimist," and one by the "Impartial Observer." They follow:

The Optimist
 In reply to the question, "Will the Fairbanks district make a quartz section?" The Optimist replied:

"Make a quartz camp; why it already is a quartz camp. This is one of the richest quartz countries in the world. Several men will make a fortune this summer if they can get their ore through the mill. I have been a hard rock miner all my life and I never saw a better looking quartz country than the country right around Fairbanks creek. And all the surface indications are that the ledges are not going to pinch out. I've been to all the properties around here and I tell you that there is not a single one that is not going to make a good quartz mine. The boys are working hard, and everyone is satisfied with the outlook, and that shows that they have the goods. When the railroad comes in Fairbanks will be one of the richest quartz camps in America; I've been all over the States, and I have never seen a better looking quartz country than this one is. This summer is going to see more activity than ever before in quartz around here, and I expect to see old Fairbanks creek produce a million dollars in quartz within the next year."

"In three years, placer will be a thing of the past. Every quartz district has a boom, then quietness, and then proves whether or not it is worth staying with. Well, quartz in this district had its boom, quieted down and has already proven that it is worth staying with. What more can you want than that?"

The Pessimist
 The impartial observer asked The Pessimist this question: "Will Fairbanks make a quartz camp?"

The Pessimist answered that it would not. The Pessimist was certain that there was no chance of Fairbanks ever being a quartz camp. Personally for the last nine years he had been a quartz prospector, he had sunk shafts and driven tunnels, he had discovered prospects, and he had done his assessment work regularly, and with his partner had worked steadily and earnestly. Therefore he ought to be in a position to know. His conclusions were that Fairbanks would never have quartz in paying quantities. He told the impartial observer that he had refused to have his claim bonded for one hundred thousand dollars, and that an English Syndicate had offered to do five thousand dollars' worth of work a month on his claim for a year, but as the corporation would not pay enough money down, The Pessimist had refused the offer. But still he works away trying to uncover something that does not exist, struggling with ceaseless energy to find that which according to his own word is not to be found in this part of Alaska.

The Impartial Observer
 The impartial observer is not a quartz expert, he is not even a miner, but he molded all the stories he heard and everything he saw in the quartz belt together, and reached this conclusion:

Fairbanks has excellent quartz prospects. Experienced hard rock miners say that the quartz belt has all the appearances of turning out well. There are many stringers that can be and are being worked at a profit. No quartz miner believes that the Fairbanks quartz district has been given a fair test. A mill with a larger capacity is essential to successful prospecting. The men who are giving their time and spending their money believe that this will ultimately be a quartz camp, but that much more time will be required to prove that it is. There is not a single shaft deep enough to definitely show whether the ledges are lasting. With the proper equipment for handling the ore, Fairbanks creek would produce one million dollars a year for five years with the amount of ore now in sight. No mine or prospect is being worked all the time. Most of the prospectors have no place to put their ore after it is mined, and before it is run through the mill. Better roads are needed in the quartz belt, so that the ore can be hauled to the mill at a reasonable rate. There is not a quartz mine in the district as yet, but there are a hundred prospects that if they were on the Outside would be gobbled up by capital in less time than it takes to tell about them.

HOMESTEAD CLAIM DENIED.
 This morning's mail brought to the local land office the decision of the Commissioner in regard to the case of the United States vs. James Girwood in connection with a homestead claim filed by the defendant at Glacier, Alaska. The claim comprises 80 acres and is declared forfeited because Girwood failed to comply with the homestead law. The land in question is located on the line of the Alaska Northern railway in Turnagain Arm, and at one time was occupied adversely to the government's claim by a small town made up entirely of construction workers to the number of about three hundred, who were employed on the railroad.

COAL CLAIM DENIED.
 Notice has been received by the local land office of the decision of the Commissioner in regard to the case of the United States vs. Wendell McLaughlin, assignee of E. J. Rathbone. McLaughlin had filed a coal claim in the Berling river district and the government sustains the charge of fraud in that McLaughlin failed to open a coal mine, as required by law.

C. L. Hibbard, of the Hibbard-Stewart Fur Co., of Seattle, passed through to Knik on the Admiral Evans today. He was accompanied by Mrs. Hibbard.

W. J. Erskine, a Kodlak merchant, went through to the Westward on the Admiral Evans today.

POLICE CHIEF MAY BE INVESTIGATED

Charges of misconduct were preferred against Chief of Police Emory J. Sliter, by Mayor John Reck when the city council met in regular session last night. Mayor Reck said today that he had ordered an investigation of Mr. Sliter, by the police committee, of which Alderman F. Wolland is the chairman.

Mayor Reck told the council last night that "bad" stories about the chief were in circulation, and intimated that in justice to the city administration, and to the chief, a probe should be made. Other members of the council indicated they felt that Mayor Reck had been given a wrong "tip" about Mr. Sliter. "We are backing up the chief, to a man," two of the members of the council said. Chief Sliter denied the stories point blank.

Another member declared that an investigation had already been made. "It produced no evidence of misconduct in the chief's office, and as far as we are concerned, the incident is closed," he said.

OREGONIAN WILL START SHEEP RANCH

With two hundred sheep, four horses, seven cows and a large shipment of farming implements, H. A. Murphy of Coquille, Oregon, passed through to the Westward on the Admiral Evans today accompanied by his family. He will start a farm at Uyak. On the same boat, and bound for Uyak, were Mrs. Edna Westenberg and Master George Westenberg, the wife and son of Mr. Murphy's partner.

WEATHER MAN TAKES VACATION.

If anything should happen to Juneau's ball game tomorrow or any of the picnic parties that have been planned, it might be charged to the circumstance that Weather Observer C. R. Reed is not on the job. Mr. and Mrs. Reed left this afternoon for Auk Bay where they will spend Sunday as the guest of Perry Wiley. Mr. Reed is interested with Mr. Wiley in mining properties at Auk Bay.

A daughter was born to Mrs. C. H. Hackworth, in St. Ann hospital this morning. Mr. Hackworth is a member of the Juneau Realty Co.

The automatic baseball tent has been taken down and the apparatus was shipped south yesterday. The device was established on the lot across from the customs house.

Every Man Should Join a Fraternal Order

No man should deny himself the privilege of joining a fraternal organization. He owes it to himself, his wife and his children, that he associates himself with the men of his community in fraternal organization, that when misfortune comes, as it may come to all of us, and he is unable to help himself and his loved ones, aid may be at once forthcoming, not charity, but real assistance from the members of his order, for that is the object and teachings of every fraternal order.

The Loyal Order of Moose is over 26 years old and has no political connections, but stands for P. A. P. Three great principles, Purity, Aid, Progress.
