

'Petticoat Fever' Opens On August 3; Little Theatre Group In 3-Act Comedy

The on-base Little Theatre group will present a three-act comedy entitled "Petticoat Fever," at the Lake Louise playhouse, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week.

Described as "hilarious" and "fun all the way," and a bit risqué, the comedy will be played by a group of ten people, who have been rehearsing under the direction of Mrs. Marion Strickler, producer of "Poop Deck Panic," the highly successful variety show put on by many of the same group of talented players earlier this year.

The play, written by Mark Reed, has as its locale the coast of Labrador. It is a strictly non-serious play, and is not recommended for children. Lead parts are handled by Mike Blackwell, Nancy Pottinger, Chris Quartana and Don Anderson.

"There is nothing contagious about 'Petticoat Fever,' according to Mrs. Strickler, "except the laughs."

Tickets are available at D. and A.'s, Kraft's, Knudsen's, or call

3141 in town. On-base tickets may be purchased from department heads, Navy Exchange, Service clubs or at the ticket window on performance nights. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m.
