

Shelters are being erected over the cooking fires and tables at the Girl Scout Camp. The girls cleared the brush and debris from the campsite. They did all the cooking and chopped most of the wood used, and carried water from the lake. The fathers erected the tents.

It's chow time at the Island Lake Girl Scout Camp.

'Miss Rose' Leaves Baptist Mission

Miss Rose Graziano, house-mother at Kodiak Baptist Mission, left last week for Anchorage and entered Providence Hospital for sinus surgery.

Miss Graziano, who has spent 16 years here, first came as assistant housemother and then as house-mother at the Mission, and spent most of the time at Ayer Cottage. She is affectionately called "Miss Rose" by the children, most of whom have known no other mother.

Miss Graziano will leave in August for Nutley, N. J., where she will visit her relatives. In September, she plans to enter the Baptist Institute for Christian Workers at Bryn Mawr, Penn., for a year's training.

a pretty little girl. This was Helena, of course. When I asked her for a date in December she thought I meant dinner, and she ate up my four dollars and thirty cents while I had one cup of coffee.

"This so intrigued me that in April I asked her to marry me. We were married just in time to start for San Francisco and my new station. We crossed the country in a hundred dollar car with a broken front spring and got to San Francisco on May 23, 1943. Four days later I left on a ship. I saw Helena two years later when we were ordered to the Naval Training Center in Sampson, New York. In one year we lived in five or six places, then in Hawaii, Houston and Corpus Christi. I had over four years in destroyer tenders Dobbin and Dixie before I joined the Kearsage and saw my first jet landings and take-offs aboard a carrier. We did have three years in Boston and there we brought forth two children. After that tour and one in California, we went to Camp Lejeune, North Carolina, thence to Kodiak.

Helena Vaughn added here that "We crossed the country in a jeep with two little boys and a dog. You know, an Alaskan Cadillac. I'm sort of accustomed to this moving around because I was an Army brat and as such, lived all over the country 'til my early teens. Back in 1923 our family drove all the way from the East coast to Nebraska in an open touring car. That was like a covered wagon with a motor. There were no paved roads in those days; it was quite an experience. We took the same route in our jeep three months ago and it was so different, it was amazing."

We wanted to know what the Vaughns liked to do. The Chaplain drawled that he guessed it was raising kids. Helena said, "We like to do everything, mostly eat. I like to sew, play the organ and dance to any kind of music whatever. I like interior decorating and my favorite topic is psychology. I've read everything I could get my hands on from Menninger to Gezelle. Most chaplains do it now days so their wives have access to quite a bit of information. The field of pastoral psychology has come into its own in the last ten years and I guess it spills over a little into our family.

"The trouble with counseling is that you can't follow through with thirteen thousand people in the service."

The chaplain interjected here, "But sometimes your chickens come home to roost. The Navy gets smaller and smaller the longer you stay in it, and you run into some of these people and see what has happened to them."

We observed that after all these thousands he has counseled, he is still very fond of people, obviously.

"Yes, very much, in spite of me. I don't think you can work with people and not like them, can you?" Helena Vaughn said, "You get to appreciate people's efforts just to live," and the chaplain continued, "You learn to share problems without assuming them."

Do you have any magic formula for children? For bringing them up? Mrs. Vaughn laughed and made a swatting motion with her hand. "If you just appreciate the humor of children you can get along with them . . . most of the time. There's nothing funnier than to see a little boy run down an alley and jump on a horse. He throws his leg over in the act of mounting, and thud . . . he forgets the horse isn't there. His imagination is so wonderful that he believes in it with all his heart."

We admired the faultless taste with which Helena Vaughn has furnished the family quarters. With her talent for interior decorating she has joined comfort and beauty in a most pleasing manner; yet we were aware, not so much of decor, as we were of great happiness. It filled the room and warmed the heart.
