Mirrored Reflections

By Sig Digree

It may have seemed strange to many of you who read the National Bank of Alaska ad in the Kodiak Mirror last week.

The caption read: "Would you like to earn 10% on your money? The line following, telling you how was left out. It should have read: "We will pay $1.10 for each 100 pennies."

Isn't anything sacred anymore? That's what the teachers in Kodiak must be asking themselves since Tuesday. And well they might ask, too. Some of them have been subjected to Gestapo tactics—hidden mikes, recorded conversations on the telephone, and that sort of thing, some of them occurring during the earlier hours of the morning.

As if this weren't enough, they have had these same conversations played back before a group of people who were subjects of the telephone conversations. Some of them, needless to say, were pretty choice observations about their fellow teachers.

Before you get the idea that this is all part of a state program, or is being carried on by the local police, it might be well to mention at this point the whole thing was done in the spirit of good clean fun. How clean it turned out is beside the point. But it did result in some fun, and was generated in the fertile mind of Kodiak's genial postmaster, Bill Lamme. Program chairman for the annual Rotary Club teachers dinner, Bill got on the phone and called up various teachers asking them to appear on the program slated for Tuesday evening. Asking leading questions, he recorded the conversations, playing them back at the dinner, much to the amusement of the group gathered there.

But the genial program fixer-upper, was fixed up pretty good himself before the night was out. A sampling of how may be gleaned from a poem composed by a group of teachers following all the phone calls. It went something like this:
LAMME'S PHONEY ON THE PHONE

Lamme phoned about Bikinis
Said to wear one, said to show it
Said he needed entertainment
Sounded fishy—wel you know it!
Lamme called about a husband
Said he saw a blonde in tow
Asked if all was on the level
Seeds of discord tried to sow.
Lamme's phoney on the phone.
Lamme sleepeth late or never
Works acrostic thru the night
Phoned at midnight for an answer
Phoned again, it wasn't right.
Lamme's phoney on the phone.

Lamme called inventing gossip
Did you quarrel with your house-mate?

Victim asked about his own house
How, with Lillian, do you rate?
Lamme's phoney on the phone.

Lamme phoned about the budget
Need information now, he said
Is our money being wasted?
Better I had stood in bed.
Lamme's phoney on the phone.

All Affected By Astrology

Show business and astrology may be as far removed from each other as the two Poles. But Jewel White, currently playing at the Montmartre Inn, has combined the two, one as a vocation and the other as an avocation.

Asked as to how she happened to become an authority on a subject so far removed from show business, she said: "Well, I was in a head-on automobile accident a few years ago and was hospitalized for over a year. Doctors told me I would probably never walk again. It was a bad time for me. I started to observe Astrology as a hobby and I found it so fascinating that I never stopped studying it."

"Human nature is a very complex thing," Miss White continued. And Astrology helps you understand your own emotions and helps you become more tolerant of another's viewpoint."

The dancer further stated that modern Astrology is supported by extensive research and is accepted as scientific fact. Every human being has characteristics that are related to the position of the planets at the time of birth, and although environment may influence them, the true character is always there. "People who live near the water, and especially those who sail or fish are respectful of the tides and seasons. And it is the Sun and the Moon that affects the tides and seasons. From Nostradamus through history, wise men have charted our destinies through the science of Astrology.

The science of Astrology holds out great hope for Kodiak. A community such as this, which is dependent largely on its fisheries, will welcome the predictions of astrology as to the future. Miss White said: "We are now in the Aquarian age, and will be for two more years. This means abundant water, flooded rivers and, of course, abundant fishing. "But, she said, the Arian Age will follow, which is just opposite, dry. Due to limited space we are unable to delve further into this interesting subject in this issue. Miss White has graciously consented to
