Bound over to the Grand Jury the other day was Harry Neibling, charged with attempted assault with a dangerous weapon, on the person of Sammy Mogg at a hearing held before U. S. Commissioner C. C. Tanner.

S. W. Taggart, manager of the Nome Lumber Company, who was an outgoing passenger yesterday aboard the Pacific Alaska Airways Electra plane appointed Art Brown of Nome to take care of the business affairs of the Nome Lumber Company during his absence in the States.

Mr. Brown stated this morning that business is being carried on as usual, and that Mr. Taggart expects to return in about six weeks.

J. S. Stangroom, Cashier of the Miners and Merchants Bank of Nome received a wire today from Pres. G. R. Jackson in Seattle saying that he was leaving immediately for Washington, D. C., and while there would look into the matter of the proposed Nome Federal Building, in an attempt to have it approved and work commence by the arrival of the first boats.

M. J. Walsh, and perhaps others, heard over the radio last night, in new broadcasts from Station KFQD, Anchorage, that the $10,000 delegated to Nome in the war department appropriation bill, was to be used for the Dry Creek basin, in the Nome harbor.

The telegram received by the Nugget did not mention what it was to be used for and left the impression that it would be merely for the harbor. Perhaps, this is a special appropriation for the basin and a large one will be made for general maintenance work of the harbor.

Italian Seamen Desert Vessels In U. S. Ports

Peak Reached in Desertions When Ethiopian Conflict Started

(By The Associated Press) Washington, D. C., March 13.—Evidence that many Italian seamen prefer the shores of the United States to those of their native land—or perhaps are avoiding the heat of Ethiopia—was contained in reports of the United States immigration and naturalization service.

Despite Premier Benito Mussolini's frequent assertions that all Italians are behind the African war, official figures show that the number of deserters from foreign ships arriving here increased to 1212 in 1935, compared to 972 in 1934, J. F. Wixon, deputy commissioner of immigration, declared.

"Italian desertions exceeded those of other nations."

Italian desertions are apparently declining, although they continue to lead those of other nations. These desertions, it was reported in other quarters, reached their peak when the Italian campaign in Ethiopia got in to full swing. Italian seamen leave their ships on arrival here in the hope of finding homes in this country, but many are located and deported.

There is nothing in the immigration laws to prevent seamen from deserting foreign ships here, but such men are required to re-ship again within 60 days. Few seamen desert these days, however, unless they hope to remain in this country, an official explained, because the depressed condition of shipping makes the obtaining of new jobs difficult.

Most of the Italian desertions are from small ships, it was said. The masters are required to report desertions to immigration officials before sailing. Some of the seamen who were seized were said to have explained that they feared they would be drafted for service in Ethiopia.
