Russian and Japanese fleet engage in terrific battle off Port Arthur. The Russians lose their flagship and Admiral but continue to fight.

[Special Dispatch to Daily Alaskan.]

St. Petersburg, April 14.—The combined Russian fleet and the Japanese ships under Admiral Togo are engaged in the hardest naval engagement of the war off Port Arthur. The naval department is confident of Russian success notwithstanding the loss of their admiral and his flagship.

St. Petersburg, April 14.—While going to meet the Japanese fleet off Port Arthur the Russian battleship Petropaulovsk struck a mine in the outer roadstead this morning. The vessel heeled over and sank. The whole crew was lost. Four officers were saved. The Petropaulovsk was flying the flag of Vice Admiral Marakoff, who went down with his vessel.

The naval battle which ensued is still progressing off Port Arthur. It is estimated that 700 persons perished when Petropaulovsk sank. Twenty persons in all escaped, among whom was Grand Duke Cyril, who slightly wounded.

The reports of the disaster have spread broadcast and caused intense excitement. The Petropaulovsk was twice previously damaged in attacks on Port Arthur. She was a first-class battleship of 10900 tons and manned by 700 men.

The department is censoring the news of the battle at Port Arthur and this is leading to the conviction that the reverses are more severe than has been reported.

Americans and Spanish Greet One Another President May Appoint Gov. Brady Again

[Special Dispatch to Daily Alaskan.] St. Thomas, W. I., April 14.—The Spanish consul visited the United States cruiser Columbia today, returning the visit of Capt. Miller. The exchange of visits is intended to close in a friendly manner the recent incident between Spanish and American sailors. The Spanish consul received full honors, the band playing the Spanish national anthem while he was on board the Columbia.

A Washington dispatch in the Post-Intelligencer says: "Although several candidates have only just begun their campaign for the office, the indications are strong that the president will appoint John G. Brady, governor of Alaska, for a third term. The strongest indication of all in this connection is that Brady's reappointment is the president's deliberate intention at this time, and many critics to the contrary notwithstanding. Mr. Roosevelt does not frequently change his mind."
