

Dead Man Was Dan McGinnis

Dan McGinnis is the name of the man found dead near the Twentysixmile roadhouse below Fortymile about a month ago. McGinnis went to Eagle from Dawson last fall. He found little to do, and was supported by subscriptions gotten up by the people of Eagle. He left Eagle to return to Dawson on foot with his blankets, February 23. Evidently he was lost in a storm and was frozen where found.

Indian Boy Is Well

The Indian boy, of Caribou, whom Bishop Compas sent to a Vancouver hospital seven or eight months ago, suffering from a deformity, returned on the Princess May completely cured. He left on the train for Caribou this morning.

Pure Ice Cream at Muir's

Every family should be supplied with a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. For cuts, bruises, burns, scalds and similar injuries, which are of frequent occurrence, there is nothing so good. It soothes the wound and not only gives instant relief from pain, but causes the parts to heal in about one-third the time required by the usual treatment. As it is antiseptic all danger from blood poisoning is avoided. Sold by Kelly Drug Co.

EXPOSURE

To cold draughts of air, to keen and cutting winds, sudden changes of temperature, scanty clothing, undue exposure of the throat and neck after public speaking and singing bring on coughs and colds. Ballard's Horehound Syrup is the best cure.

Mrs. A. Barr Houston, Texas, writes, Jan. 31, 1902: "One bottle of Ballard's Horehound Syrup cured me of a very bad cough. It is very pleasant to take. 25c, 50c, $1.00. Sold by Kelly Drug Co."

Department of the Interior, Washington, D. C., April 19, 1900. Sealed proposals for the construction of school houses at Killisnoo, Wrangell and Jackson, southeastern Alaska, for teachers' residences at Klawoek, Prince of Wales Island and Skekan, southeastern Alaska, and for school houses with teachers' residences attached at Unerine on the Arctic coast, and Haines and Kake in southeastern Alaska, will be received at the department until 2 o'clock p. m., Saturday, June 19, 1900, and will be opened immediately thereafter, in the presence of such bidders as may desire to attend. Blank forms of proposal, containing specifications, may be obtained on application to the department, or to the Commissioner of Education, where drawings showing details may be inspected. Plans and specifications may also be seen and obtained from Prof. William A. Kelly, at Sitka, Alaska; at Juneau and Douglas, from Livingston F. Jones; at Junesau; and from the respective U. S. Commissioners at Ketchikan, Wrangell, Skagway, Seward, and Valdez, Alaska. E. A. Hitchcock, Secretary.

Lake Labarge is Now Impassable

Travel across Lake Labarge with freight has suspended. Horse teams quit attempting to get across the ice several days ago, and it is believed that dog teams are not attempting it now. For the first year in a long time there will be practically no freight intended for Lower Labarge that will not reach its destination this year. The freighters begun work earlier than usual this year and the conditions were favorable for quick delivery.

A Positive Necessity

Having to lay upon my bed for 14 days from a severely bruised leg, I only found relief when I used a bottle of Ballard's Snow Liniment. I can cheerfully recommend it as the best medicine for bruises ever sent to the afflicted. It has now become a positive necessity upon myself. D. R. Hynes, merchant, Deversville, Texas. 25c, 50c, $1.00. Sold by Kelly Drug Co.

DISCRIMINATING LADIES.

Enjoy Using Herpicide on Account of Its Distinctiveness.
 The ladies who have used Newbro's Herpicide speak of it in the highest terms, for its quick effect in cleansing the scalp of dandruff and also for its excellence as a general hair-dressing. It makes the scalp feel fresh and it allays that itching which dandruff will cause. Newbro's Herpicide effectively cures dandruff, as it destroys the germ that causes it. The same germ causes hair to fall out, and later baldness; in killing it, Herpicide stops falling hair and prevents baldness. It is also an ideal hair dressing, for it lends an aristocratic charm to the hair that is quite distinctive. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Old Comrades Meet

[Original.]
 "Prisoner at the bar, have you anything to say why the sentence of death should be passed upon you?"
 "Well, judge, seeing that these honorable twelve gentlemen has brought me in guilty, it would be highly disrespectful for me to say anything against their verdict. However, maybe they wouldn't mind my saying that when the crime was committed here in Arizona I was fightin' the dugos in Cuba."
 "Why did you not bring forward evidence of that during the trial?"
 "Well, judge, the regiment I fou't with wasn't recruited from those parts, and most o' my comrades left their carcasses on San Juan hill. No, there wouldn't be no use tryin' to prove a alibi. I've had a fair trial. You, judge, have made the persecutin' attorney treat me right, and the jury has convicted me on the best kind o' circumstantial evidence."
 There was something so honest appearing in the old soldier's manner that judge, jury and spectators were visibly affected. One of the spectators edged around to where the judge sat and whispered something in his ear.
 "This gentleman," said the judge to the prisoner, "says that he was in Cuba during the Spanish-American war, and perhaps you might prove your case by him."
 "Don't remember ever to have seen the gentleman," remarked the prisoner, scrutinizing the person referred to suspiciously.
 "You say," said the man, "that you were at San Juan hill?"
 "I was."
 "What regiment?"
 "The—th New York."
 "It's plain you're lyin', since no such regiment went up the hill."
 "Reckon there wasn't, but there was a man as got separated from that regiment and fell in with the—th Illinois, the company on the right end o' the line, and the feller that fell in was myself."
 "Why, you cussed liar, I commanded the company on the extreme right of the—th Illinois myself."
 "You didn't—no sich thing. You're playin' some game on me. Got some grudge to send an innocent man to the hangman."
 "I ought to know," said the other indignantly.
 "I tell you," roared the condemned man, "Cap'n Josh Bingham commanded that company."
 "And I tell you," retorted the other angrily, "I'm Cap'n Josh Bingham."
 At this the captain lifted his overshadowing sombrero to mop his brow, and the prisoner scrutinized him.
 "Great Scott, cap'n, how you have changed!" he said at last. "I'd never ha' knowed ye."
 But the other would not admit the acquaintance.
 "Judge," he said, "this man has undoubtedly got hold of my army record and is endeavoring to make something out of it. I never saw him before in my life."
 "You set there, Cap'n Josh Bingham, and say you never saw me before in your life! Do you forget how when we got to the top o' the hill a dirty dago started to club you with the butt of his rifle and how a man stepped in and, after receivin' the blow on his shoulder—here the veteran tore open his shirt and exposed a holed wound—"run his bayonet through the dago. Do you mean to say you don't remember that?"
 "Yes, I do remember that, but you wasn't the man that saved my life. That man carried me off the field a few moments later when I was wounded, and he got a Spanish bayonet in his forehead that left a wound like a Turkish scimiter. I'd know that would anywhere."
 "What was his name?" the prisoner demanded, growing angrier and shouting louder with every word.
 "Jim Hicks."
 The spectators started. The prisoner had been tried under that name.
 "Jim Hicks; yes, that war him—Jim Hicks, and that war me. You'd recognize the scar anywhere would ye, cap'n? Well, what d'ye think o' this?"
 He pushed aside a lock of shaggy hair and displayed a scar the exact counterpart of a scimiter. The captain started.
 "Why, Jim! Can it be! No—yes. How you have changed, Jim! That campaign has told on us both. You, hand, old comrade."
 While he was speaking he was edging around to where the prisoner stood, and, first grasping his hand, he afterward took him in his arms. The spectators, having witnessed this dialogue, on which a human life hung, no sooner saw the denouement than they set up a shout that made the log courthouse ring. The judge rapped for order, charged the jury to retire to reconsider their verdict and to bring in one in accordance with the new evidence. This they did, pronouncing the prisoner not guilty. Jim Hicks and his "yet" companion left the courtroom together and sauntered toward the outskirts of the settlement, their arms around each other's neck, followed by the good wishes of every settler. When they reached a point where two horses were hitched they mounted and rode away.
 "Somepin beautiful in that friendship," remarked one of the observers to another.
 "Beautiful! Takes battlefields to make them friendships."
 A few hours later a sheriff rode into the place, described Captain Bingham and said that he wanted him for horse stealing.
 It was then that the judge, the jury and the spectators discovered that they had been sold by two of the worst desperadoes, murderers and horse thieves that disgraced Arizona.
