NOME NUGGET HAS LITTLE FAITH

While the Nome Nugget was a pioneer in the movement for self-government for Alaska and has never wavered for a minute in its devotion to American principles of government it has little faith that a territorial government will be secured very soon.

"The people of Alaska will receive no full measure, or even a partial measure, of home rule until they adopt a territorial or state constitution, and say to congress: 'We have done this, now what are you going to do?'"

"That Alaska has many sincere and warm friends in the congress will not be denied. But these men have their limitations. There are questions of party policy and expediency that cannot be ignored, and no matter how deep their loyalty to Alaska may be, their fealty to their party will be found stronger than their zeal to do justice to the people of distant Alaska."

Mr. Brewer is accompanied by T. S. Mathis, a mining engineer of San Francisco, who joined him at Ketchikan, and who is making his first trip to Alaska. They will go to Whitehorse tomorrow.

RHEUMATISM

When pains or irritation exist on any part of the body, the application of Ballard's Snow Liniment gives prompt relief. E. W. Sullivan, Prop. Sullivan House El Reno, O. T., writes, June 6, 1902: "I take pleasure in recommending Ballard's Snow Liniment to all who are afflicted with rheumatism. It is the only remedy I have found that gives immediate relief." 25c, 50c, $1.00. Sold by Kelly Drug Co.

NOTICE OF EXECUTION SALE

In the United States District Court for the District of Alaska, Division No. 3. J. J. Daly, plaintiff, vs. Seattle-Skagway Wharf and Storage Company, defendants.

The Seattle Post-Intelligencer says Jackson, who was sentenced from Skagway as a member of the "Soapy" Smith gang and who is seeking his release under habeas corpus proceedings, was not a member of the gang. That is funny. The P.-I. is frequently funny.

INDIANS SENT BACK TO LIBERIA

A native, his wife and children were deported from St. Lawrence Island to the Siberian shore on the late cruise of the Bear. The native had been tried on a charge of assault by Capt. Hamlet of the Bear, acting U. S. commissioner, but he was acquitted, there not being sufficient evidence to convict. He was a native of Siberia, and was deported from St. Lawrence Island, which is a government reservation, on the ground that he was an objectionable person.—Nome Nugget.

LIFE IN THE BALKANS.

An Obliging Woman Whose House Was a Nest of Smallpox.

Miss Edith Durham in her volume of travel, "The Burden of the Balkans," tells this little story of life in that region: "One night a man came to me mysteriously. He said that in his village there were three traitors. Before anything further could be done they were destroyed. They could not be shot for this would probably bring down the authorities, and it was impossible to buy poison because the law on the sale of it was very strictly enforced. But 'madama' (myself) was a friend of the doctor. No doubt if she asked him he would write her something that could be put in coffee. Then the three gentlemen could be asked to supper and their political differences quietly arranged. Nor had any doubt that I should fulfill this humble request."

Of the dangers of smallpox and like diseases Miss Durham says that the Balkan people show a childlike ignorance. She writes: "At one village when I was leaving I was asked to give a little backwash to the priest's wife. 'Poor woman!' she said. 'Two of her little children are ill of the smallpox, one has died, she has hid it herself and is not yet well, but she cooked your supper in her own house and brought it here for you!' Another time a woman rushed out of a house, seized me in her arms and kissed me upon each cheek until I struggled free. Her three children were down with smallpox, and this warm greeting was an appeal to me to give help."

POMPEII A TOY CITY

It Was Given Over to Imitation and Luxury, Emulating Rome.

Pompeii, as can be seen on every hand, was what Bulwer-Lytton describes it—a toy city, given over to imitation and luxury. Rome set both the example and the pace.

The excavations which have proceeded for more than a century and a half may be said now to be fairly completed. Nothing more is needed to enable the archaeologist to reconstruct the life of the ancient Roman colony—nothing else to startle the modern seeker after truth.

The temples, the villas, the theaters, the baths, the gardens, disintegrated at last, lie gasping to the skies in heaps of variegated marble and granite, whispering their story mayhap to the moon, yet telling it plainly enough to the passerby under the common light of day—a story of indolence and frivolity mistaken by the semibarbaric mind for pleasure, of gorgeous displays in public places, mysterious orgies in private, feasts tuncalculable, vicious flattery to the gods, gladiatorial combats, chariot racing, human beings fed to lions—all in mimicry of Rome, of Rome already beginning its downward course toward the fall.

Art they had to decorate the scene, within and without the peristyle, pictures and statues, arches and colonnades in bronze and alabaster, porphyry and Carrara, made luminous by Tyrian dyes and a local red we have not been able to repeat, though much of it is quite restored.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

England's State Records.

England's state records are kept in a great building known as the record office in London. Here are 130 strong rooms, and in these rooms the rolls and records for over eight centuries are kept. There is the chancery roll room, containing over 40,000 rolls of the chancery court, each roll consisting of thirty or forty skins of parchment stitched together and rolled up tight into a cylinder. Another set of rooms is set aside for the records of the king's bench and common pleas, the latter extending from the reign of Richard I to the present time. Each roll is formed of a number of long parchment skins fastened together at the head and inclosed in stout vellum covers. Each roll weighs from 100 to 200 pounds and contains from 500 to 1,000 skins of parchment.

Twin Earthquakes.

Earthquakes which consist of two shocks separated by a brief interval of quiet or of two maxima of intensity are known as twin earthquakes. In Great Britain one in about every twenty earthquakes is a twin, and the strongest shocks experienced in that country belong to this variety. It is believed that twin earthquakes are due to impulses arising from two detached foci, separated in different cases from four to more than twenty miles, but lying along the same fault in the earth's crust.

It's Different When It's Your Own.

"Young Dr. Keechly always impressed me as having nerves of iron, judging by the cool way he performs the most serious operations," remarked his friend, "but yesterday when I met him in consultation he was the most excited and rattled man I have seen in a long while."

Ivory Congratulations.

A very famous American dentist met the English husband of an American friend of mine with the genial congratulation: "My dear sir, I wish you sir! You have married a first rate set of teeth."—Fortnightly Review.
