

NINE MILLION WOMEN VOTES IN NOVEMBER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25. (Special to the Times).—About 9,000,000 women will vote in the November election and they undoubtedly hold the balance of political power. This statement is based on a computation from the woman's vote in the Maine election.

About 80,000 women voted in the Maine election. Based upon the census of 1910 that number is 32 per cent of the number of women 21 years of age who live in Maine. The Maine women number, according to the 1910 census, 248,309.

In the United States, according to the latest census statistics, there are 26,883,566 women of voting age. If the ratio of 32 per cent which existed in the Maine election prevails in all states, and it probably will as the women generally will want to vote for the first time, there will be cast in the November election an aggregate woman vote of 8,602,741, or nearly nine millions. In the northern states the per centage probably will be higher, and in the southern states lower because in the "Solid South" the black man is largely disfranchised, and the negro women will receive the same political discrimination in that section. But the nation's average probably will be about 32 per cent, which will give nine millions.

Similar statistics show that there are about 29,577,690 men of voting age in the United States. In the presidential election of 1916 there were cast 18,528,743 ballots, 62 per cent of the total male population of 21 years of age. It can hardly be expected that so large a percentage of the women will vote, but it may be safely said that at least 32 per cent of them will.

Therefore it is evident to all observers that the women now hold the political balance of power. In the Maine election about 75 per cent of the women voted the Republican ticket. If that percentage should prevail in all the states north of the Mason and Dixon line and in the West a Republican landslide of unprecedented magnitude would occur. That landslide is confidently expected by the Republican managers and indeed in Washington is practically already acknowledged by Democratic observers.

Put it will not require 75 per cent of the nine million women voting the Republican ticket to cause a landslide to Harding and Coolidge. If 32 per cent of the women voters in New York participate in the election it will add nearly a million votes in the Empire state. In 1916 Hughes carried New York by more than 100,000, the total vote being 1,706,354. Had the women voted then a 100,000 plurality would have been increased several times over.

In Pennsylvania a 32 per cent ratio would have added nearly 750,000 woman's votes to the total of nearly 1,300,000 cast for Hughes in 1916. Hughes carried Pennsylvania by 181,950, or about one fourth of the women votes that may be cast in Pennsylvania in November.

Wilson carried Ohio in 1916 by 89,503. In Ohio if the 32 per cent ratio occurs nearly half a million women will vote, eleven times Wilson's plurality in 1916.

There can be no question but that women now hold the key to the national political situation and can throw victory to the Republicans or Democrats. Judging from the way they voted in the Maine election it would seem that a great majority of the newly enfranchised citizens are preparing to line up through the country, except in the south, for Harding and Coolidge.

Every intelligent observer must agree that the result in Maine was a complete repudiation of the League of Nations by women, and a tremendous Republican victory, which is ominous of Democratic defeat in November. Women can justly claim a great share of the victory in Maine and had the women voted for the league the victory would have been equally significant of Democratic victory in November.
