THIRD BIG PRODUCTION FROM PICKFORD STUDIO AT EMPRESS TONIGHT

When she reaches her fourteenth birthday, Mavis Hawn, a Kentucky mountain girl, decides that books, not bullets, are essential to her life's success. So thinking, she mounts the family donkey and sets out for the Lowland school, to find the strangest thing she has even seen—a railroad train, which she thinks is a threshing machine.

But this is only one of many incidents, humorous, pathetic, appealing, which go to make up "The Heart of the Hills," Mary Pickford's third big production from her own studios, of which her mother is business manager.

The same beloved Mary, with her smiles and tears, her loves and hates, her whims and winning ways, in an entirely new characterization. You will fall in love all over again with her, in this story of her loyalty to "Pap" in the feudist battles of the Kentucky mountains. She can shoot—and she shoots to kill. She can ride—and she heads the famous Kentucky night riders in their wild chase over the mountains.

Mary Pickford, the greatest actress, in the strongest story of a noted author, John Fox, Jr., is the big attraction at the Empress tonight. A picture in which Mary's own quaint humor and comedy break the dramatic tenseness of the tale—a picture with a big, smashing, surprising climax that will leave you well satisfied.

A News reel, and an extra good Harold Lloyd comedy complete this attractive program.

MAKE EFFORT TO SAVE SHIP STORM STRUCK

EUREKA, Cal., March 3 (by Associated Press).—Attempts are to be renewed next month to save from a sandy grave the wreck of the steamer Corona, a former Pacific Steamship Co. vessel, which a storm hurled over a jetty here fourteen years ago. The wreck lies about 1,500 feet from the water, the shoreline having receded, since the boat came ashore.

Last year about half the hull was uncovered when a sudden winter storm swept the sand back, burying the vessel, and undid in a week an expensive task of several months.

Frank Johnson, contractor, who bought the vessel two years ago for $5,000, financed last season's unsuccessful work. This year he intends to bulkhead the wreck in from the encroaching sands, and pump the sand from outside and inside the hull at the same time.

There is a shipment of steel rails and other goods of unperishable nature in the hold, according to Johnson. He said recently that he has a standing offer for the engine and boilers which will net him a profit. Hope has also been expressed that possible the hull, made of Norway iron, may be dragged back to the shoreline and launched.

NORTH CAROLINA TOWN OF THOUSAND PEOPLE OWN PUBLIC UTILITIES

RALEIGH, N. C., March 2 (by Associated Press).—Besides owning and operating its own water works, electric plant, ice plant, opera house and a railroad four miles long the little city of Warrenton, Warren county, North Carolina, with a population of less than 1,000 is also building a hotel to cost $140,000 to be paid for by a bond issue.

The municipally owned railroad runs from Warrenton to Warren Plains, where it connects with the Seaboard Air Line railway, it being the only line entering Warrenton.

"We have made a profit on all of our municipally owned enterprises, except our opera house, and we haven't lost much on it," declared Tasker H. Polk, prominent lawyer and member of the Warrenton board of aldermen.

Warrenton is one of the oldest towns in the state. Horace Greeley was married there in 1836.
