Additional Local.

The Cotton Belt pay car will arrive tonight and pay the employees off Saturday morning.

Misses Myrtle Price, of Stuttgart, and May Quilling, of Pendleton, are visiting the Misses Dewoody on West Fourth avenue.

Mr. Harvey Hogg returned this morning from Quincy, Ill., where he attended a commercial college during the past several months.

Justices Garrett and Vance were two of the most conspicuous participants at the Plum Bayou barbecue. They saw they had a "hot time" and danced the two-step and waltz as well as any of the younger bloods.

Mr. Leo M. Andrews returned this morning from Hot Springs, where he has been sojourning for the past few weeks. Mrs. Andrews and children will remain for several months longer. Mr. Andrews was called home on account of the illness of his plantation manager, Z. Ganter, who is some better today.

Miss Kathryn Staley, a most pleasant and accomplished young lady, of the Jessamine Institute for girls, of Nicholasville, Ky., is in the city stopping at Mrs. W. S. Rowell's on West Second avenue. She is a reader and vocal instructor of that school and is traveling in the interest of that institution.

A dispatch from Chee Foo quotes Edwin Wildman, correspondent, as follows: I learn from thoroughly trustworthy Chinese source that the army of the allies reached Peking last Monday. I have every reason to believe the army forced an entrance and that the envoys and their friends were rescued today.

Mr. A. B. Cooper, a most genial and competent hotel clerk, has accepted a position as night clerk at the Trulock hotel, succeeding Mr. W. E. Caruthers, who is now connected with the Hub clothing house. Mr. Cooper for some time presided over the desk at the Merchants hotel in Little Rock, and is no stranger to Pine Bluffians.

We return our thanks to the "Old Reliable" and enterprising fire insurance agency of R. H. M. Mills & Sons for a most useful "New Coleise Atlas of the World," which contains full page maps of every country and civil division upon the face of the globe. It is one of the most complete publications of its kind yet gotten out.

Time System.

"The twenty-four hour system of keeping time has just become the official standard in France," said Mr. Jules Lacori, of Paris, at Chamberlain's.

"The twenty-four hour clocks are already an established institution in Russia, and I believe that their official sanction in our country will lead to the adoption of the system on French railroads, which would surely lead to the extension of the plan throughout Italy, Switzerland and Spain. I should think, considering the manifest merits of the new way, the railways of the United States, which are the most progressive in the world, would soon take it up and have done with the ancient system, so confusing and misleading through the enforced use of a. m. and p. m. The twenty-four hour clock system is an ideal one for the railways, absolutely preventing all danger through the duplication of hours for day and night. It is the coming system, and I look to see it in operation in America in the near future."—Washington Post.

One-Third of Our Life

is spent in bed. The bedroom should be cozy, cheerful and full of comfort. We are making a special cut on chamber sets which is a perfect beauty. The wood is nicely finished, and each piece is well put together and firm. You may have an offer like this again, but we doubt it.

Telegraphed Up One Flight.

That New York is a big city which the stranger seldom learns very well, was quite forcibly impressed upon a certain well known Californian a few days ago. He was charging about in the business district and suddenly remembered that he wanted to telegraph to a friend whose offices are at 195 Broadway. The Californian dashed into the nearest telegraph office, wrote out his dispatch, and covering it with a coin, passed it through the wicket to the receiver. The receiver smiled. "What is the matter?" demanded the Californian. "Why this is 195 Broadway," said the receiver, "and your man is up just one flight of stairs." There was a confused period that lasted about a second, and when the Californian got his nerve back he calmly said: "I know that. Let it go anyway. I guess I can telegraph across this room or this counter if I want to and have the money. We do that thing out in California every day for a joke." The receiver may have been bluffed, but as receivers go they are hard to impress.—San Francisco Chronicle.

When Patti Sings.

The following lines were written (in French) by Adelina Patti in response to a request that she would describe briefly her feelings while singing: "I have never been able to take proper account of my feelings during those few moments. I know that on the day of the performance I am nervous and agitated, and as the time draws nearer and nearer I suffer more and more from stage fright. When the moment arrives for me to leave my room and go before the footlights, my whole being is dominated by a sensation of abject terror. My feelings while I am actually singing defy analysis; they differ according to the role, the number of artists around me, etc.—they are so varied that I simply can not describe them. I should be obliged to enter into all the many details which, petty as they may be, at times impress us very strongly. When all goes well I experience a something which carries me away and I forget where I am."—New York Telegram.

Old-Time Surgery.

A grim souvenir of an old-time war was on view in a cutler's window in the east end of London recently. It is an ebony-handled saw, which, according to an inscription on a brass plate attached to the instrument, was used by a surgeon of the British army to amputate the limbs of wounded soldiers at Bismarck, Malplaquet and Hamillies.

Where George Eliot Wrote Her First Book
The house, No. 8 Parkshot row, Richmond, where George Eliot wrote her first book, is shortly to be pulled down. It is one of a row of single-fronted houses of a semi-genteel character; and she and Mr. Lewes only rented a couple of rooms in it. It remained their home for more than three years. There the "Scenes from Clerical Life" were written, and a considerable portion of "Adam Bede." The tiny sitting-room was the common study for both the writers, and George Eliot used in after years to tell how the "scratching of another pen" used to affect her nerves until it "nearly drove her wild."
