Badly Tangled.

I married a widow who had a stepdaughter; my father married the stepdaughter; that made my wife the mother-in-law of her father-in-law, and made my step-daughter my step-mother.

Then my step-mother, the step-daughter of my wife, had a son. The boy, of course, was my brother because he was my father's son; but being the son of my wife's step-daughter, he was therefore my wife's grandson, which made me grandfather of my stepbrother.

Then my wife had a son. My mother-in-law, the step-sister of my son, is also his grandmother, because he is her step-son's child. My father is the brother-in-law of my son, because the boy's stepsister is my father's wife. I am the brother of my own son, who is also the child of my step-grandmother. I am my mother's brother-in-law, my wife is her own child's aunt, my son is my father's nephew and I am my own grandfather.

A young girl was painfully burned in a gasoline explosion in Kansas the other day, and the local paper concludes its account with this reflection: "Probably every fifth pew in heaven contains some parson who went there by the gasoline or coal-oil route, and sains who can't play their harps on account of their burned fingers are quite numerous.
Every once in a while St. Peter sniffs and says, as the great white gate opens:
'There's another one of those gasoline souls coming.'"

One night last week Mr. Higgins, while on his way up Chase Creek, found Miguel Trujillo lying down near Price & Co's store a badly wounded man. Trujillo claims that Francisco Balencia laid in wait for him and without warning cut him with a knife on the face twice and then pounded him over the head with a rock. The officers have failed to locate Balencia and it is thought he has left town.

Fred Cooper has moved his barber shop into the building opposite the Central hotel, and is better prepared than ever to accommodate his customers.

Ted Davis, member of the late grand jury, returned home yesterday.

A close observer tells Sub Rosa of the Londer Leader that he has noticed a smart maneuver again and again and again on the part of the pigeons in the Palace yard. A dozen or twenty of them will gather under the nose-bag of a horse, suddenly, and evidently prearranged, all the birds fly up. The horse, being startled, tosses his head; out comes some of his grain, and the pigeons settle down with a merry little twinkle in the eye.
"From this, dear reader," moral-izes Sub Rosa, "learn a lesson. If you want anything in the world you must combine with others as hungry as yourself. Then you must agitate so as to startle those who have what you want. Make them jump, and it's ten to one that in the scramble something is spilled from the nose-bag of privilege.
Then you must wolf it as hard as you can."
