movement greater than ever before."

He was given a tremendous ovation as he concluded his speech.

The official roll call showed that only five organizations voted solidly for the mine worker's leader. They were the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, International Association of Machinists, Mine Mill and and Smelter Workers, Tailors and the Draftsmen's union.

Mine Workers Split

The mine workers' delegation split their vote. Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois district; Robert Harlan, president of Washington district, and Alexander Howat, president of the Kansas district United Mine Workers, casting their total votes of 1,595 for Gompers.

Lewis, who, as a delegate, held 593 votes did not cast his ballot.

The railroad organizations, which were reported to have backed the Lewis boom, failed to support him two of the largest unions—Electrical and Railway Carman—voting solidly for Gompers. The building trades unions and a majority of the metal working organizations also supported the labor chief.

Cigar Makers for Lewis

J. Mahlon Barnes, of Chicago, of the Cigar Maker's union, of which Gompers is a member, cast his sixty-eight votes for Lewis.

The election of Gompers brought to a close one of the hottest political campaigns ever waged in the history of organized labor. The campaigning had gone on relentlessly since the convention opened and times proceedings on the floor of the convention were interrupted by the electioneering.

Charges and counter charges were hurled back and forth by both sides. Early in the campaign reports were published that certain anti-Gompers interests were operating among the delegates with $100,000 "slush fund." Efforts to bring about an investigation of these charges failed. At no time, however, did these charges involve the Lewis supporters, as they were all made against persons outside the ranks of organized labor.

Delegates to England

William J. Spencer of Washington, D. C., secretary of the building trades department, and James J. Forrester, of Washington, were elected fraternal delegates to the British trade union congress. Peter J. Brady of New York, who was nominated, withdrew his name.

John O'Hara, of Danbury, Conn., was elected as fraternal delegate to the Canadian trades and labor congress.

Cincinnati, Ohio, was selected for the site of the next convention over Fort Worth, Texas, by a vote of 22,482 to 14,221.

To Reinstate a Union

Before adjournment the convention disposed of several jurisdictional matters. The proposal to reinstate the United Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employes and Railway Shop Laborers, which was suspended in December, 1919, because of jurisdictional dispute, was referred to the executive council. The council was instructed to take necessary steps to assure the reinstatement of this organization with its membership of nearly 200,000. No opposition was voiced on the convention floor against the proposal.

Heated Words Exchanged

Heated words were exchanged by President P. J. Morrin, of the Bridge and Structural Iron workers and President Daniel J. Tobin, of the Teamsters over a jurisdictional dispute involving these two unions.

The iron workers contended that in certain cases the unloading of structural iron from wagons and truck was the work of iron workers. Tobin took exception to this. The convention settled it by referring it to a conference at Indianapolis with provision for referring it to three members of the executive council if the conference should fail.

Fashions in hats and neckwear may change but ham and eggs never go out of style.

It's a wise Holbrook citizen who has learned that he can't depend on the pictures in a mail-order catalogue.

A scientist says volcanic eruptions will increase sunshine. What most fellows want to know is how to increase moonshine.

We've noticed that the Holbrook man who works intelligently and honestly never has to explain why luck is against him.

Never count chickens before they hatch, and never buy a cider press until you know the apple crop won't be a failure.

There was a time when the all-important question was how to get the most bushels from a acre. Now it's how to get the most miles out of a gallon of gasoline.

Nowadays the Holbrook girl who has "nothing to wear" could go to some of our larger cities and be right in style.

When we figure railroad fare at about 4c a mile, with as much free dust and cinders as ever, a vacation at home looks better than ever.

Financially, Grover Bergdoll is worth half a million. In the eyes of the public, however, he isn't worth a tinker's dam.

Some Holbrook men are not hen-pecked. They just happen to have their nerve in their wife's name.

When a fellow reads out loud and pronounces the names of some of the new countries it sounds exactly like he was swearing.

Our idea of discretion is using the telephone when you want to call a man a liar.

It's just like hunting a needle in a haystack to hunt for a Holbrook boy who doesn't know exactly when school will start again.

We've also noticed that the man who lets his money do the talking always seems to have a lot of friends.

Say what you will, but the fellow who has a lot of horse-sense seldom makes a donkey of himself.

In the motion picture industry was adopted with provision that if a "conference did not settle the dispute independently within fifteen days the recommendation of the committee would be made effective."

Other Disputes
Other jurisdictional dispute referred to conference for settlement included that of the machinists with the carpenters and plumbers. The oil field, gas well and refinery workers were directed to discontinue jurisdiction over the boiler makers and iron ship builders. The steam and operating engineers were told that Chicago fire engineers properly were under jurisdiction of the fire fighters.

The factional dispute of the oil field workers was placed again in the hands of Secretary Morrison and Vice President William Green, who were to continue efforts to bring a settlement.

A resolution dealing with gold and finance was referred to the executive committee. When the convention adjourned at 5:51 the convention hall was half empty.

The Sunflower in Russia.
Sunflower cultivation has become an industry in southern Russia, where the people have found the seeds a substitute for olives in making oil. The Russian eats the kernel. An acre of sunflowers yields about 40 bushels of seeds, and these in turn yield more than 50 gallons of oil.

GREAT TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD

Warning Here to Those Who Neglect to Set Down Their Priceless Discoveries.

A noted author in the Satorpost writes: "The commonest sign of fatigue is found in feeling of weariness."

There are times when we are almost led into believing that this is true. Equivocal and ambiguous as the statement may seem, at the first reading, it becomes clearer when read over four or five times. In fact, we don't know when the proposition has been stated with more clarity, after one masters the language in which it is couched.

Have you not often read things and said to yourself: "How often I have thought that very thing. Why did I not put it down in imperishable words?"

It is so with this. Doubtless, in your humble way you have often thought that your weariness was a sign of fatigue. At those times you thought a living truth, but did you write and tell some magazine of your priceless discovery? No. You allowed somebody to come along, perhaps years after, and do it.

The moral is that when you think a great thought, put it down on paper at once. Even if you do put it away somewhere and forget it, posterity may find it.

Now, many times in our career we have had feelings of weariness. Some of our friends have been misguided enough to attribute it to laziness—an awful word, particularly among friends. But, when we were weary, it was not laziness that ailed us. It was fatigue.

And we never knew the truth until we read the magazine article mentioned. We have been slandered for years by a wrong idea.—Exchange.

HIGH HONOR FOR SMALL GIRL

Face of Ten-Year-Old Has Appeared on Millions of Coins of the United States.

The government of the United States in 1835 made an offer of $1,000 for the most acceptable design to be placed upon the new cent coin soon to be issued. Some Indian chiefs traveled from the northwest to Washington to visit the Great Father and then journeyed to Philadelphia to see the mint, whose chief engraver was James Barton Longacre, who invited them to his home.

The engraver's daughter, Sarah, aged 10, greatly enjoyed the visit of her father's guests and during the evening, to please her, one of the chiefs took off his feathered helmet and war bonnet and placed it on her head. In the company was an artist, who immediately sketched her and handed the picture to her father. Mr. Longacre, knowing of the competition for a likeness to go upon the cent projected, under the inspiration of the hour, resolved to contend for the prize offered by the government. To his delight the officials accepted it, and the face of his daughter appeared upon the coin, which was circulated about the nation for nearly a century. There were more than a hundred competitors. The cent bearing the face of Sarah Longacre has gone into more hands than any other American coin.

How England Grows.

A great deal of interest is taken in England in the question of coast protection. The ocean, assailing the cliffs, gradually tears them away, but this very process furnishes a defense for the land by building up long beaches of sand and shingle which arrest the waves before they can attack the cliffs. An effort is making to prevent, or better regulate, the removal of this material for construction and road building, because in many places its removal has permitted the sea freely to exert its power of erosion.

The ordinance survey has ascertained that in the last half century England has lost 6,640 acres by sea erosion and gained 48,000 acres through re-claiming land the existence of which is mainly due to material brought down by the rivers.

Growth of the Cities.

A Cleveland editor once said that Cincinnati's chief business was "pork and politics," observes Girard in the Philadelphia Press.

You have been told in advertisements a million times that a certain beer "made Milwaukee famous."

Everybody knows that Washington, D. C., has one big industry—holding down government jobs. The new census figures from these cities, all above 400,000, are significant. Pork population increased only 10 per cent in a decade, while beer population expanded 22 per cent. Both look small compared with the growth in government job population of 32 per cent.

Two Vials.

"A fellow 'way down there on Fiddle Creek found a bottle floating in the water tuther day," related an acquaintance. "In it was a note from a lady, saying she was being held for ransom by a band of brigadiers, or whatever you call 'em." "Humph," replied Heck Tarpy of Straddle Ridge. "Tobe Swoller found a bottle in the road, whur it had probably struggled loose from some feller, and it was half full of bone-dry lick-er that made Tobe holier than he was so tough he could climb a honey locust tree backwards with a wildcat under each arm and never get a scratch."—Kansas City Star.

Think Before You Adventure.

It is said that the most beautiful women in the world are the women of the Tehuantepec tribe of Mexican Indians. In addition to this fact we might say that these women are carefully guarded by the men of the tribe, that the journey is a long one, and traveling, especially in winter, is precarious.
