Holbrook News Notes

Dr. Bazell is practically recovered from his illness and will return home Sunday or Monday next.

People who attended the Pioneer Day Celebration at Snowflake Monday were well repaid for their trip. They all report a splendid time.

Miss Olive Clarke, deputy clerk of the Superior Court, is out on the coast for a two week's trip.

Sheriff R. L. Newman returned from Phoenix Thursday morning.

Chief Bank Examiner, H. M. Moritz, stopped in Holbrook for a day this week.

The Little Colorado has threatened practically everybody with inundation who live close to it. Monday night the water was up as far as Warren's blacksmith shop on this side of the river.

The News will be glad to obtain copies of the 1921 Blue Book for all those who desire them. They are free.

G. C. Hall, president of the Hall Lumber Co., was down from Winslow Sunday.

B. B. Neel is coming right up in banking circles. He only recently was selected to fill the vacancy of vice president in the Bank of Winslow created by the illness of Geo. H. Keyes, jr.

The preliminary trial of Mrs. Elsie McLennon, charged with the murder of her husband, will come up before justice Walton August 20th.

The Black Canyon Oil Company are improving the road from Holbrook to their well.

Atty. Thorwald Larson and wife are spending some time in Phoenix because of the illness of Mr. Larson.

Atty. Arthur LaPrade of Phoenix is in Holbrook on legal business.

Frank O'Connell is rapidly getting the Shamrock into shape for drilling. He has an able associate in Mr. McDonald.

Jos. Schmedding of Kears Canyon put into port the latter part of last week for a day. Mr. Schmedding is the proud father of a big girl born in June.

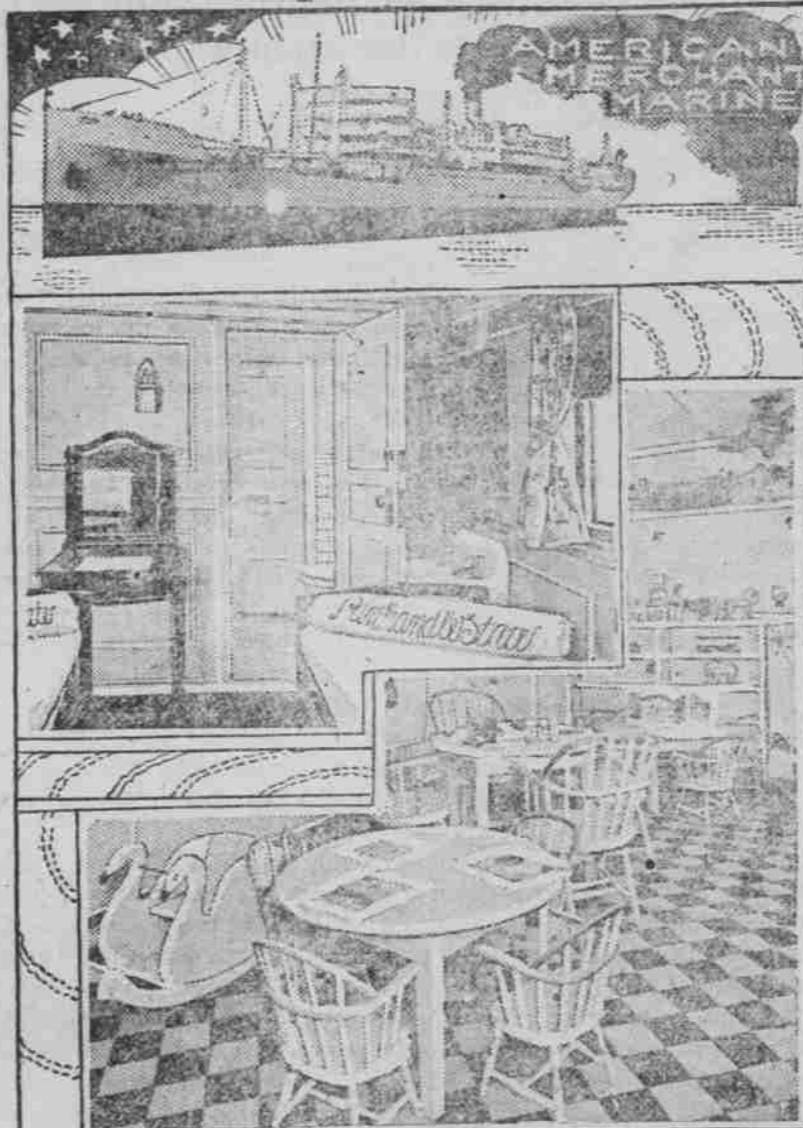

R. N. Pincett, popular manager of Babbitt's, is trying to negotiate the south country this week. Mr. Pincett will shortly leave for a visit with his parents in Las Vegas.

Sheriff Lee Newman and family have returned from Utah. They report a fine restful trip.

Rees Brothers have dissolved partnership, Frank Rees assuming complete ownership. Everybody will be glad that Frank is going to remain with us.

Dick Schuster returned from the coast Monday night. Dick says he had a nice, quiet time.

American Ships Now Sail Seven Seas

Twin Bed Staterooms, Private Baths and Nurseries for the Children Give Hints of Luxuries Provided on Ships of the New American Merchant Marine

ANYWHERE in the world on an American ship! Americans no longer need go to sea or ship their goods in foreign bottoms. That, to-day, is the proud message from the National Capital to the American people.

From every port in the country now sail stately and luxurious vessels, under the American flag, carrying passengers and cargo to every country in the globe.

The nation, through the United States Shipping Board, is finishing a new Declaration of Independence to the world, independence of foreign vessels for American travelers and commerce.

With a proud merchant fleet numbering 3,700 vessels of 19,533,890 deadweight tons (not including small ships) according to official figures compiled to May 1, it is now "up to" the people of the United States to keep that fleet on the seven seas. Of this great total the United States Shipping Board owns and controls 1,120 vessels of 11,124,406 deadweight tons.

"We must take the huge corporation, the largest the world has ever known, and make it an institution of which every American will be proud," declares Albert D. Lasker, chairman of the United States Shipping Board.

"Our Merchant Marine must be sustained if it is to be permanent," declares Rear Admiral W. S. Benson, commissioner of the United States Shipping Board.

Not only in quantity does the American fleet excel, but in quality. Here are some of the features of many American passenger vessels to which the travelling public has been accustomed only on big foreign liners—public rooms with palatial lounges and music rooms; palm garden verandas and writing rooms; half rooms, glass enclosed promenades, swimming tanks, twin beds, shower and tub baths.

After forty-six years service in the United States Navy, during which time he saw the American flag, except on ships of war, almost disappear from the ocean, and now chief officer of the greatest single fleet of merchantmen ever constructed, Admiral Benson is asking his countrymen to support their fleet.

"We have the ships," he declares. "The United States Shipping Board is using every endeavor to build up this vast fleet into a profitable enterprise, but we need the cooperation of every American."

SO WOULD SHE
 "My dear," impatiently asked the husband next morning, "where in the world is my hat? I can't keep a thing in this house. It's a shame the way things disappear without any apparent reason. I would like to know where that hat is."
 "So would I," replied his wife sweetly. "You didn't have it on when you came home last night."

LOOK WHAT HE GOT
 A miser was scoring a hired man for his extravagance in wanting to carry a lantern when calling on his girl.
 "The idea," he scoffed. "When I was courtin' I never carried no lantern. I went in the dark."
 The hired man proceeded to fill the lantern. "He," said sadly, "and look what you got."—New York Daily News.

The county is entertaining a young man who says that fellow travelers on Santa Fe No. 10 frightened him so badly with wild tales about what they were going to do with him, that he jumped from the train in an effort to escape them. He is scratched up pretty badly, due to plowing thru cinders.

HOLBROOK VS. GALLUP SUNDAY
 Manager Lee is offering a dandy base ball event Sunday. Holbrook will play Gallup. Both teams are exceptionally good, and most certainly merit your attendance. The game will start promptly at 2:30 p.m. at the Court House grounds.

OIL SITUATION
 There are a good many things which develop in the oil game in the Holbrook field, which according to Newspaper ethics cannot be detailed to the reading public, because the newspaper man is on his honor not to give out the information until given permission to release same. That is why you do not always get oil news of a startling nature. Yet there are fine things developing that we would like to tell you, and will tell you—but not now.

In Other Words, Self-Control.
 True enjoyment lies always along that royal middle ground—the use of all functions and powers, but with the imperial hand of mastery upon all. Otherwise, there are always heavy penalties to pay.—Ralph Waldo Trine.

Blind Man's Direction Finder.
 To enable him to get about without the aid of a cane a Seattle blind man has invented a direction indicator, consisting of a compass and buzzers worn on a belt, the buzzers sounding when he deviated from a set course.

Petrificado, Jr.
 It's poor consolation to the Holbrook man who has been stung by a bee to learn that stinging anyone kills the bee.

A sport headline reads: "Dempsey Did Not Forget His Mother." No, and we can't forget that he didn't go to France.

There's one thing we ought to be thankful for that we're apt to overlook, and that is that Russia isn't located where Canada is.

Calling the weather harsh names helps some, but it's still necessary for fat men around Holbrook to keep on mopping.

At that, it's more profitable to argue with a fool than with a policeman.

More than one man's bravery is largely due to the fact that he happens to know the other man is a coward.

The Holbrook man who doesn't own a garden has at least one thing to be thankful for—he doesn't have to cuss cutworms.

According to a government report there's an increased number of swine in the U. S. over last year. They're probably counting in the rent hogs, too.

Still another thing that leads us to believe the world is getting better is to see every now and then a fat girl acting jolly instead of trying to be stylish.

Some Holbrook men can't make up their minds whether their wives can't understand them, or whether they know them too well.

A Detroit man returned home from marching in a parade and shot himself. Someone must have told him how he looked.

Sleeping sickness may be contagious, but it doesn't seem to have gotten around yet to the roosters of this neighborhood.

If you think the average Holbrook housewife isn't notionate, try helping her with the house-cleaning and see how many different ways she wants the dining room curtains hung.

Still another advantage of being a bachelor is your razor is used for shaving only, and not for trimming corns.

More than one honeymoon has gone out the back door and jumped in the rain barrel when she said: "I'll be back in a moment," and then didn't return for an hour.

We've many kind of combinations in Holbrook but so far we haven't struck anything that outclasses corn and beans.

Never judge the merit of a joke by the laugh of a woman who has a pretty dimple or pretty teeth.
