ENCOURAGE SUGAR BEETS

Appended hereto is a copy of a letter received from United States department of agriculture. Mr. Lore is getting together 25 samples that were grown from the trial seed and will forward these early next week. The government is nearly always slow, but they never seem to forget!

The letter follows:
September 30, 1921.
Mr. H. D. Lore,
Navajo-Apache Abstract & Title Co.,
Holbrook, Arizona.

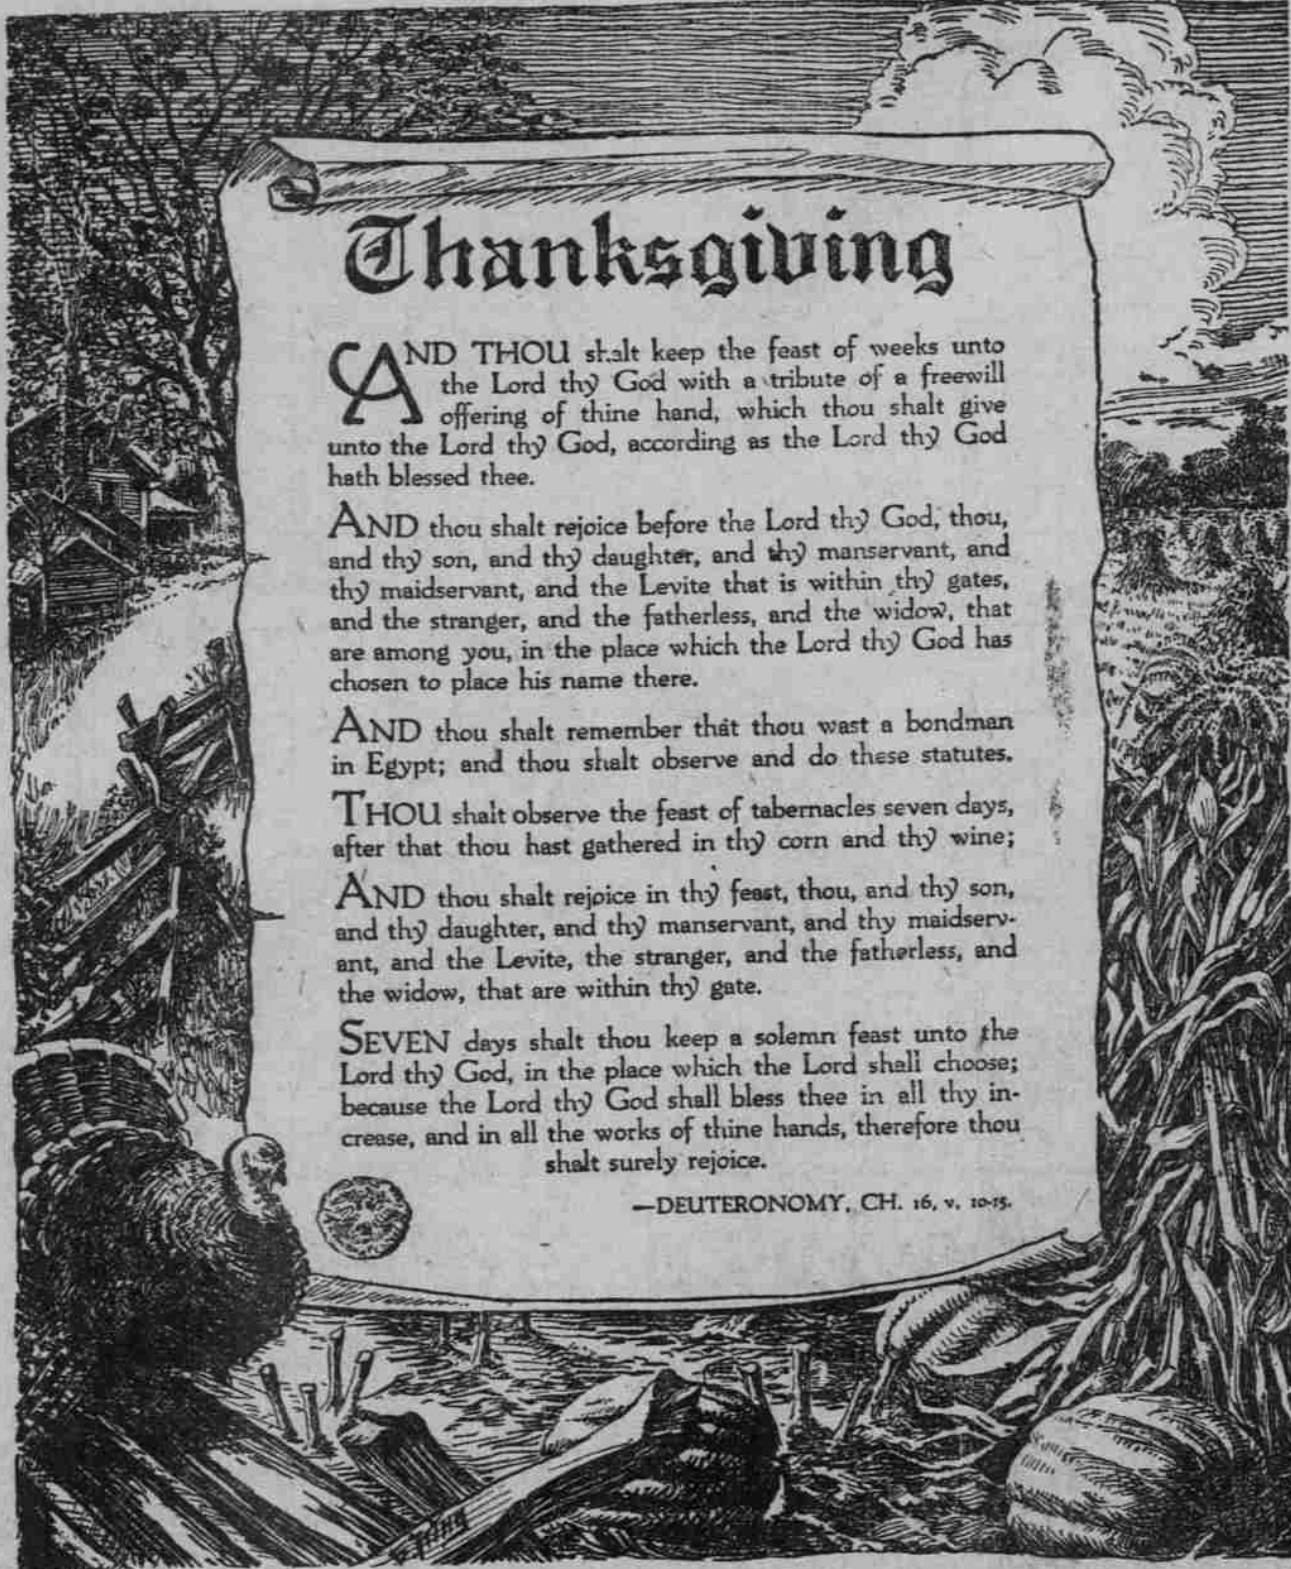

Dear Sir:
Last spring we sent you one pound of sugar beet seed for trial. I should be glad to know what success you have had in growing beets from this seed and a report from you would be greatly appreciated. I should also be glad to have a sample of the beets in order to determine their sugar content and purity. If you can send me four or five roots, please let me know and the necessary wrapping and shipping material, with directions for taking and shipping the sample, will be sent you so that the beets may be forwarded without cost to you.

The enclosed envelope for your reply does not require postage. Thanking you for any information you can give me, I am,
Very truly yours,
C. O. TOWNSEND,
Pathologist in charge
Sugar-plant Investigations.

HOLBROOK-ST. JOHNS ROAD

W. B. eWast, state engineer, says that progress on the above named road is very good. Dirt is being moved fast; the surfacing material is being taken from the hillsides adjoining the road, and the engineer believes that this is the best gravel that he has had occasion to use in his work in Arizona. Let the good work go on

Work on the excavations for the new Scorse building is progressing rapidly. Dave Steel certainly is moving the dirt.

Thanksgiving

AND THOU shalt keep the feast of weeks unto the Lord thy God with a tribute of a freewill offering of thine hand, which thou shalt give unto the Lord thy God, according as the Lord thy God hath blessed thee.

AND thou shalt rejoice before the Lord thy God, thou, and thy son, and thy daughter, and thy manservant, and thy maidservant, and the Levite that is within thy gates, and the stranger, and the fatherless, and the widow, that are among you, in the place which the Lord thy God has chosen to place his name there.

AND thou shalt remember that thou wast a bondman in Egypt; and thou shalt observe and do these statutes.

THOU shalt observe the feast of tabernacles seven days, after that thou hast gathered in thy corn and thy wine;

AND thou shalt rejoice in thy feast, thou, and thy son, and thy daughter, and thy manservant, and thy maidservant, and the Levite, the stranger, and the fatherless, and the widow, that are within thy gate.

SEVEN days shalt thou keep a solemn feast unto the Lord thy God, in the place which the Lord shall choose; because the Lord thy God shall bless thee in all thy increase, and in all the works of thine hands, therefore thou shalt surely rejoice.

—DEUTERONOMY, CH. 16, v. 16-15.

DAY EXPRESSIVE OF A NATION'S GRATITUDE

Turkey and cranberry sauce, crisp weather, a general sense of well-being and football are in the air at the very mention of Thanksgiving, writes Marguerite Samuels in the New Orleans Times-Picayune.

But football and too much dinner are not, in the final analysis, all of Thanksgiving. There is a deeper, inspirational side to the day set aside through three hundred years of American history as the great national celebration of gratitude.

It was in 1621, the fall following the landing at Plymouth, that the Pilgrims celebrated the first Thanksgiving day. The little colony, one hundred and two souls who had fared westward from England for their conscience's sake, had weathered the storms of the Atlantic and the worse hardships of a New England winter, and they had won through at last to a sort of tranquility—comparatively speaking.

Back from the rocky coastline of Massachusetts, with its thunder of limitless waves, a little group of log houses crowded together behind the tall stockade, feeling safe in their negress to each other.

Garnered corn filled the barns and the storerooms of the houses were pungent with ripe apples. The colony felt firmly established in the New World of its seeking. Even the stent-footed Indians had begun to understand that there was room for them and for the pale faces too. The devout Puritan spirit of the travelers in the Mayflower felt that there was sufficient cause for thanking God.

The first Thanksgiving. And so it was that the first day of organized thanksgiving was set. The whole little colony, in its best buckled shoes and high hats, with blunderbusses across square shoulders, sallied forth from the stockaded homes through snow to the log church, there to give community thanks for the freedom of their stern lives.

Outside, the Indians crouched behind the firs and beeches, watching and wondering.

From the Pilgrim colony, the custom spread to others in the New England states. In 1630 the Massachusetts Bay colony set aside a day for thanksgiving, and frequently thereafter, until 1680, when it became an annual festival in the colony.

Connecticut appointed a day in 1639, and annually after 1647, except in 1675. The Dutch in New Netherlands set aside a day in 1644 and occasionally thereafter. During the War of Independence the Continental Congress appointed one or more thanksgiving days each year, except in 1777.

President Washington set aside Thursday, Nov. 26, 1789, as a day of national thanks, and again in 1793 he called the country together for such a celebration. President Madison, at the close of the War of 1812, appointed a day.

In New York state, from 1817 on, the festival was annual.

In some of the southern states a national Thanksgiving day met with opposition as a relic of Puritan bigotry, so utterly at variance with the Cavalier ideals of the southern colonists; but by 1858 proclamations were issued by the governors of 25 states and two territories.

Is New England Festival. Perhaps it is natural that the South, so far in thought and experience from the colonizers of New England, should, even yet, be less whole-hearted in its celebration of Thanksgiving than is the eastern section of the United States. With its commemoration of hardships of 1620, with its ceremonies of the harvest, Thanksgiving is essentially a New England festival. And to see it truly carried out, you must see it there.

In Massachusetts, it is the signal for great family reunions. From California, from the high seas, from the neighboring town, the sons and daughters and cousins and aunts and uncles foregather at the old homestead on Thanksgiving day. With the first snowfall of the season, generally scheduled for the last week in November, the roomy sleighs and the vast bearskin rugs are hauled out of their summer mothballs; and from early morning until noon, there is a gay jingle of sleigh bells going and coming between the railroad station and the farmhouse.

After the dinner—a tremendous affair—the old people sit half dozing about the open fire, telling stories of the New England that is gone.

"Do you remember?" says one; and they are off in a glorious revel of recollection of their own youth, when automobiles were unknown, and Boston might have been 1,500 instead of 15 miles away.

deeply wrapped in fur coats and rugs, already had dashed off along the slippery roads to Cambridge and "The Game."

The Harvard stadium on Thanksgiving day was a view of serried rows of excitement never to be forgotten. The grey rhythmic curves of the coliseum all flamingly gay with banners and flowers and girls' holiday hats. Along the Harvard section, red roses and crimson sweaters bloomed in the menagerie of fur coats and rugs.

Where the Yale contingent cheered for the building, the blue of Parma violets was like a twilight mist along the rows of spectators.

A whistle—and the game is on. Tensely leaning forward, the 80,000 watch as if life and death were being decided in the arena below. At the first touchdown the winning side goes mad with joy. Flags wave, arms and hats are promiscuously pitched about, perfect strangers pat other perfect strangers on the back; and thrilled girls shake hands with boys they never saw before.

Meanwhile the snow comes down softly, in a powdery rain, and the final goal sees frozen hands and feet respectively glad to race off to warm dormitory teas, where the victory is celebrated in English breakfast, or the defeat drowned in orange pekoe, cakes and laughing chatter.

In Boston Thanksgiving morning great crowds fill Trinity, or whatever church has been designated for the union service. The pigeons in Copley square flutter over them—tame friendly doves of "peace on earth, good will to men."

Thanksgiving in New Orleans.

Here in New Orleans several of the churches hold special union services, and the day is commemorated in replica New Orleans fashion—thanking God by giving others something for which to be thankful. Magical basket dinners, containing everything from turkey to dessert, are given to the hungry poor of the city by the Elks, the Shriners, the Salvation Army, Kingsley house and other benevolent organizations. School children remember, with fruit and nuts, the sufferers at the Home for Incurables.

Adamana Oil & Land Co.
Holbrook, Ariz.

The necessary delay in operations caused by the collapsing of the casing in the Adamana well, gives us time in which to prepare for a rapid completion of the well upon the arrival of new casing.

At present we are overhauling everything in and about the derrick from machinery to tools that there may be nothing to hinder us in reaching the sand with all possible speed as soon as the casing can be set. We want a mighty quick drilling campaign, to finish this well and everything points to this, as we are not sparing ourselves in any way to accomplish this end.

We propose to bring this well in not later than January 1st., and in order to assure this we are taking every possible precaution against accident and general conditions.

It is stated that when we reach oil it will be of a high gravity, let us suppose it will be not better than 35 gravity. This would be a far superior oil to the California product, and as far as value is concerned a 500 barrel well today is worth more than a thousand barrel well three months ago.

"Any oil here should be of high gravity, from 35 to 40 degrees Baume, and should command a good price. A steady demand for this type of oil is found on the Pacific Coast."
DORSEY HAGER, Geologist.
