

[From Friday's Daily]

Mr. D. C. King is going in to the restaurant business soon.

A brick in the road is worth two in the last.

A shooting scrape is reported from Yuma. No one injured. It seems that a Mexican tried his hand on C. Gensing.

Divide 1884 by four and you have an exact division, therefore the girls go home with the boys this year.

We don't hear of much mine jumping on New Year. The records of such jumps, and fights over property is yet to come.

Harry Woods, of the Tombstone press, and late candidate for city recorder that burg got his "m. m. p." at the late municipal election.

News reach town of a stage robbery on the Florence and Globe road a few nights ago. A well dressed man took in the stage and got $40 out of the box.

The new town at the Quijotas will be on the west side of the mountains where water is had at 85 feet. A town site has been laid off and lots are going rapidly. Logan City is on the east side of the mountain.

Mr. Vigus showed us an interesting old document to-day, in the shape of a copy of the treaty with the Potomattamie Indians for their reservation on the Tippecanoe river, Indiana, made in 1824. It is signed by a number of Indian chiefs, head men, and warriors with a "his X mark."

Mining Locations.

The following locations have been made in the county and mostly on Cave Creek since December 15 to the present date:

Last Chance, Silver Chariot, J. M. Asher, et al.; War Eagle, F. M. Ungas; Cleopatra, J. R. Bond; Silver Beauty, D. P. Wright; Yellow Jacket, Ida Mine, Philadelphia, Colorado; Joseph Mine, Iron Duke, Chas. E. Philis; Julia Mine, Wm. Tanlin, et al.; Homeward Bound, J. Chaney; Tenor, Lena and Stella Cox.

Military Orders.

HEADQUARTERS DEPARTMENT OF ARIZONA, WHITPLE BARACKS, PHOENIX, Dec. 31, 1883.

Private Frederick Donaldson, troop C, Sixth Cavalry, is transferred to the general service detachment of clerks on duty at these headquarters.

Private Milford E. James, troop I, Third Cavalry, is transferred to the general service detachment of clerks on duty at these headquarters.

Private M. F. E. Jones, general service detachment at these headquarters, is discharged the service of the United States.

By order of BRIG. GEN. MARTIN, Assistant Adjutant General.

Road to the Quijotas.

Mr. F. M. Fowler is circulating a petition among our citizens for subscriptions to build a road from Maricopa to the Quijotas, and to sink the necessary wells. This is a well timed and much needed enterprise and our merchants and farmers can put their money in nothing that will bring them a greater interest on the amount expended.

There is no doubt that the Quijotas mines will be one of the principal markets of the Territory, and if we do not help ourselves to get it we can be assured that somebody else will get it and reap the benefits thereof.

About $100 were on the list this morning. About $150 is expected from Tempe, and Maricopa will do something; but upward of seven hundred dollars will probably be needed to put the matter through in good shape, so give it a good liberal lift. The stage company, we understand, will generously assist in building the road and will put a line of stages on when built.

[From Saturday's Daily.]

Rain coming. More strangers looking up our valley.

The tall of collection day is still coming along.

A new Democratic paper for Phoenix is under way and it is reported, the luckier needs a long purse.

Billy Vigus is putting up the creating of the new court house to-day. It adds greatly to the appearance of the tower.

Mr. Gen. D. Wilcox arrived from Fort McDowell to-day on his way to Fort Huachuca on a little vacation trip.

The appointment of Mr. Chas. Vandever as post rider at Huachuca has arrived. We understand he will open there shortly.

Mr. J. T. Priest, of Tempe, paid our office a pleasant call this afternoon. He reports crops looking fine since the rain and business looking up.

The Odeon opens up to-night at the old St. Louis Hall with Sefiorita Marie as professor and manager.

Some of our contemporaries are talking of the kegs of Anheuser and boxes of pure bananas found under editorial tables on New Year's morning. Sic tunc ad extra.

El Progreso has changed from a secular to a religious paper and has adopted the new name of El Progreso Catolico. It is now the property of Father Blaise.

THE BISBEE BANDITS.

Big Dan Dowd Taken in Corralitos, Chihuahu.

The Pursuit by Deputy Sheriff Daniels of Graham County, A. T.

On December 23, Daniels learned in Bisbee, from some Mexicans, just in from Sonora, that two men answering the description of "Big Dan" and Billy D. Lany, were in Bisbee, Sonora. Satisfying himself that the information furnished by the Mexicans was correct, he communicated with the sheriff's office, and after making all necessary arrangements, started on the morning of December 24th for that place.

Accompanying the officer was a Mexican, named Lucero, on whom Daniels knew he could rely as a guide, and also on his gameness in case of a fight. On the morning of the 26th, after a ride of about 200 miles, Daniels and his companions, having picked up another Mexican at Fronteras, reached Bisbee. Here it was learned that Dowd had separated five days previously, the former going, it matters not where to our readers, and Dowd remaining in Bisbee, which point he had left that morning about an hour prior to the arrival of Daniels and posse. Additional inquiry elicited the information that Dowd had struck across the Sierra Madre for Janos, in the state of Chihuahua, distant about 75 miles. After taking needed rest and perfecting plans for the capture of Delaney, the officer started in pursuit of the other bandit. The route of travel led through the DEFILES OF THE SIERRA MADRE by a rocky and precipitous trail, and it was not until the morning of January 1st that Daniels reached Janos, where he learned that, as at Bisbee, the band had broken up, leaving Janos a few hours ahead of him for Corralitos, distant about 27 miles. Procuring fresh horses, the posse started at once for Corralitos, which place was reached about 8 o'clock that evening. The town is the center of a mining country, and is composed principally of Mexicans, there being but a half dozen Americans in the place. The whole neighborhood as described by Daniels seems to belong to the Corralitos Mining Company, of which Mr. Ad. Muenzenberger is the superintendent. Daniels went at once to him, and communicating the object of his visit, learned that "Big Dan" had arrived a short time previously and was then in what was known as the house of the Amer. cans. The superintendent, having learned the character of Dowd, was only too willing to assist.

IX HIS CAPTURE, and under cover of the darkness he and Daniels proceeded to the house prior to reaching it, it was agreed that the superintendent should enter the room in advance of Daniels, in order to prevent any possible interference by the Americans who were in the employ, in the capture of Dowd. As agreed, the superintendent entered the room first, Daniels at his heels. Dowd was sitting on a table facing the fire, and the rest of the party clustered about the room. On the table was setting also a bottle of megal, which had not been uncorked. He did not even look around when the men entered the room, and his first knowledge that he was in the merciless clutches of the law was when Muenzenberger, who had reached his side, caught hold of his arm and throwing them above his head, said: "THROW UP YOUR HANDS."

Daniels at the same time, with cocked pistol in hand, made the demand "surrender." A word from the superintendent to the Americans present, showed Dowd who was unarmed at the time that he was powerless to escape, and he quietly submitted to being manacled. Daniels remained until the following morning, when he was furnished with an ambulance and escorted by the superintendent, and driven to San Jose station on the Mexican Central railroad, 110 miles distant, and about 90 miles south of El Paso del Norte. Here he telegraphed to Sheriff Ward of the capture, and putting his prisoner on board the train started for home, upon nearing Paso del Norte, he feared Dowd might raise the question of extradition and put him to much trouble, so he made arrangements with the railroad officials, and together with his prisoners was locked in the express car until reaching the American line. Nothing of interest occurred on the trip worthy of note. The prisoners seemed completely cowed. At Bowie station Sheriff Ward who left town a year and a half ago, met the party and accompanied it to Contention, where he had previously stationed Deputy Sheriff Bob Hanch and Fred Worth. The trip into town and placing in the cell of Dowd was accomplished without the knowledge of the community. There is now but one of the gang at large—Billy D. Lany—and Daniels assures the reporter that his capture or death is certain within the next ten days at farthest.

A young man in central Illinois lost six ounces of brain last week and still lives. Brain is a drug on the market in this state.—[Chicago News. Not wholly a drug we imagine, but badly adulterated.—Philadelphia Call.]

The Indians who sell hay to the government out west have been detected placing large rocks in the bales. That comes of teaching the Indians to read, so they can study the daily papers and become posted in the tricks of the whites.—Peck's Com.

Quijotas Road Notice.

The subscribers of the Quijotas road fund are requested to meet at the court house this evening at 7 o'clock to elect a Superintendent of the work to be done and a Treasurer.

Among the various kinds of beads large and small, which are used to embellish and add finish to the modern toilet the large Roman pearls are just now more fashionably worn for evening decoration than beads of any description. The newest strings are exquisitely tinted in sherry hues of gold, and silver, pearly, and sea green.

THE BISBEE BANDITS.

Big Dan Dowd Taken in Corralitos, Chihuahu.

The Pursuit by Deputy Sheriff Daniels of Graham County, A. T.

On December 23, Daniels learned in Bisbee, from some Mexicans, just in from Sonora, that two men answering the description of "Big Dan" and Billy D. Lany, were in Bisbee, Sonora. Satisfying himself that the information furnished by the Mexicans was correct, he communicated with the sheriff's office, and after making all necessary arrangements, started on the morning of December 24th for that place.

Accompanying the officer was a Mexican, named Lucero, on whom Daniels knew he could rely as a guide, and also on his gameness in case of a fight. On the morning of the 26th, after a ride of about 200 miles, Daniels and his companions, having picked up another Mexican at Fronteras, reached Bisbee. Here it was learned that Dowd had separated five days previously, the former going, it matters not where to our readers, and Dowd remaining in Bisbee, which point he had left that morning about an hour prior to the arrival of Daniels and posse. Additional inquiry elicited the information that Dowd had struck across the Sierra Madre for Janos, in the state of Chihuahua, distant about 75 miles. After taking needed rest and perfecting plans for the capture of Delaney, the officer started in pursuit of the other bandit. The route of travel led through the DEFILES OF THE SIERRA MADRE by a rocky and precipitous trail, and it was not until the morning of January 1st that Daniels reached Janos, where he learned that, as at Bisbee, the band had broken up, leaving Janos a few hours ahead of him for Corralitos, distant about 27 miles. Procuring fresh horses, the posse started at once for Corralitos, which place was reached about 8 o'clock that evening. The town is the center of a mining country, and is composed principally of Mexicans, there being but a half dozen Americans in the place. The whole neighborhood as described by Daniels seems to belong to the Corralitos Mining Company, of which Mr. Ad. Muenzenberger is the superintendent. Daniels went at once to him, and communicating the object of his visit, learned that "Big Dan" had arrived a short time previously and was then in what was known as the house of the Amer. cans. The superintendent, having learned the character of Dowd, was only too willing to assist.

IX HIS CAPTURE, and under cover of the darkness he and Daniels proceeded to the house prior to reaching it, it was agreed that the superintendent should enter the room in advance of Daniels, in order to prevent any possible interference by the Americans who were in the employ, in the capture of Dowd. As agreed, the superintendent entered the room first, Daniels at his heels. Dowd was sitting on a table facing the fire, and the rest of the party clustered about the room. On the table was setting also a bottle of megal, which had not been uncorked. He did not even look around when the men entered the room, and his first knowledge that he was in the merciless clutches of the law was when Muenzenberger, who had reached his side, caught hold of his arm and throwing them above his head, said: "THROW UP YOUR HANDS."

Daniels at the same time, with cocked pistol in hand, made the demand "surrender." A word from the superintendent to the Americans present, showed Dowd who was unarmed at the time that he was powerless to escape, and he quietly submitted to being manacled. Daniels remained until the following morning, when he was furnished with an ambulance and escorted by the superintendent, and driven to San Jose station on the Mexican Central railroad, 110 miles distant, and about 90 miles south of El Paso del Norte. Here he telegraphed to Sheriff Ward of the capture, and putting his prisoner on board the train started for home, upon nearing Paso del Norte, he feared Dowd might raise the question of extradition and put him to much trouble, so he made arrangements with the railroad officials, and together with his prisoners was locked in the express car until reaching the American line. Nothing of interest occurred on the trip worthy of note. The prisoners seemed completely cowed. At Bowie station Sheriff Ward who left town a year and a half ago, met the party and accompanied it to Contention, where he had previously stationed Deputy Sheriff Bob Hanch and Fred Worth. The trip into town and placing in the cell of Dowd was accomplished without the knowledge of the community. There is now but one of the gang at large—Billy D. Lany—and Daniels assures the reporter that his capture or death is certain within the next ten days at farthest.

A young man in central Illinois lost six ounces of brain last week and still lives. Brain is a drug on the market in this state.—[Chicago News. Not wholly a drug we imagine, but badly adulterated.—Philadelphia Call.]

The Indians who sell hay to the government out west have been detected placing large rocks in the bales. That comes of teaching the Indians to read, so they can study the daily papers and become posted in the tricks of the whites.—Peck's Com.

Quijotas Road Notice.

The subscribers of the Quijotas road fund are requested to meet at the court house this evening at 7 o'clock to elect a Superintendent of the work to be done and a Treasurer.

Among the various kinds of beads large and small, which are used to embellish and add finish to the modern toilet the large Roman pearls are just now more fashionably worn for evening decoration than beads of any description. The newest strings are exquisitely tinted in sherry hues of gold, and silver, pearly, and sea green.

THE BISBEE BANDITS.

Big Dan Dowd Taken in Corralitos, Chihuahu.

The Pursuit by Deputy Sheriff Daniels of Graham County, A. T.

On December 23, Daniels learned in Bisbee, from some Mexicans, just in from Sonora, that two men answering the description of "Big Dan" and Billy D. Lany, were in Bisbee, Sonora. Satisfying himself that the information furnished by the Mexicans was correct, he communicated with the sheriff's office, and after making all necessary arrangements, started on the morning of December 24th for that place.

Accompanying the officer was a Mexican, named Lucero, on whom Daniels knew he could rely as a guide, and also on his gameness in case of a fight. On the morning of the 26th, after a ride of about 200 miles, Daniels and his companions, having picked up another Mexican at Fronteras, reached Bisbee. Here it was learned that Dowd had separated five days previously, the former going, it matters not where to our readers, and Dowd remaining in Bisbee, which point he had left that morning about an hour prior to the arrival of Daniels and posse. Additional inquiry elicited the information that Dowd had struck across the Sierra Madre for Janos, in the state of Chihuahua, distant about 75 miles. After taking needed rest and perfecting plans for the capture of Delaney, the officer started in pursuit of the other bandit. The route of travel led through the DEFILES OF THE SIERRA MADRE by a rocky and precipitous trail, and it was not until the morning of January 1st that Daniels reached Janos, where he learned that, as at Bisbee, the band had broken up, leaving Janos a few hours ahead of him for Corralitos, distant about 27 miles. Procuring fresh horses, the posse started at once for Corralitos, which place was reached about 8 o'clock that evening. The town is the center of a mining country, and is composed principally of Mexicans, there being but a half dozen Americans in the place. The whole neighborhood as described by Daniels seems to belong to the Corralitos Mining Company, of which Mr. Ad. Muenzenberger is the superintendent. Daniels went at once to him, and communicating the object of his visit, learned that "Big Dan" had arrived a short time previously and was then in what was known as the house of the Amer. cans. The superintendent, having learned the character of Dowd, was only too willing to assist.

IX HIS CAPTURE, and under cover of the darkness he and Daniels proceeded to the house prior to reaching it, it was agreed that the superintendent should enter the room in advance of Daniels, in order to prevent any possible interference by the Americans who were in the employ, in the capture of Dowd. As agreed, the superintendent entered the room first, Daniels at his heels. Dowd was sitting on a table facing the fire, and the rest of the party clustered about the room. On the table was setting also a bottle of megal, which had not been uncorked. He did not even look around when the men entered the room, and his first knowledge that he was in the merciless clutches of the law was when Muenzenberger, who had reached his side, caught hold of his arm and throwing them above his head, said: "THROW UP YOUR HANDS."

Daniels at the same time, with cocked pistol in hand, made the demand "surrender." A word from the superintendent to the Americans present, showed Dowd who was unarmed at the time that he was powerless to escape, and he quietly submitted to being manacled. Daniels remained until the following morning, when he was furnished with an ambulance and escorted by the superintendent, and driven to San Jose station on the Mexican Central railroad, 110 miles distant, and about 90 miles south of El Paso del Norte. Here he telegraphed to Sheriff Ward of the capture, and putting his prisoner on board the train started for home, upon nearing Paso del Norte, he feared Dowd might raise the question of extradition and put him to much trouble, so he made arrangements with the railroad officials, and together with his prisoners was locked in the express car until reaching the American line. Nothing of interest occurred on the trip worthy of note. The prisoners seemed completely cowed. At Bowie station Sheriff Ward who left town a year and a half ago, met the party and accompanied it to Contention, where he had previously stationed Deputy Sheriff Bob Hanch and Fred Worth. The trip into town and placing in the cell of Dowd was accomplished without the knowledge of the community. There is now but one of the gang at large—Billy D. Lany—and Daniels assures the reporter that his capture or death is certain within the next ten days at farthest.

A young man in central Illinois lost six ounces of brain last week and still lives. Brain is a drug on the market in this state.—[Chicago News. Not wholly a drug we imagine, but badly adulterated.—Philadelphia Call.]

The Indians who sell hay to the government out west have been detected placing large rocks in the bales. That comes of teaching the Indians to read, so they can study the daily papers and become posted in the tricks of the whites.—Peck's Com.

Quijotas Road Notice.

The subscribers of the Quijotas road fund are requested to meet at the court house this evening at 7 o'clock to elect a Superintendent of the work to be done and a Treasurer.

Among the various kinds of beads large and small, which are used to embellish and add finish to the modern toilet the large Roman pearls are just now more fashionably worn for evening decoration than beads of any description. The newest strings are exquisitely tinted in sherry hues of gold, and silver, pearly, and sea green.

THE BISBEE BANDITS.

Big Dan Dowd Taken in Corralitos, Chihuahu.

The Pursuit by Deputy Sheriff Daniels of Graham County, A. T.

On December 23, Daniels learned in Bisbee, from some Mexicans, just in from Sonora, that two men answering the description of "Big Dan" and Billy D. Lany, were in Bisbee, Sonora. Satisfying himself that the information furnished by the Mexicans was correct, he communicated with the sheriff's office, and after making all necessary arrangements, started on the morning of December 24th for that place.

Accompanying the officer was a Mexican, named Lucero, on whom Daniels knew he could rely as a guide, and also on his gameness in case of a fight. On the morning of the 26th, after a ride of about 200 miles, Daniels and his companions, having picked up another Mexican at Fronteras, reached Bisbee. Here it was learned that Dowd had separated five days previously, the former going, it matters not where to our readers, and Dowd remaining in Bisbee, which point he had left that morning about an hour prior to the arrival of Daniels and posse. Additional inquiry elicited the information that Dowd had struck across the Sierra Madre for Janos, in the state of Chihuahua, distant about 75 miles. After taking needed rest and perfecting plans for the capture of Delaney, the officer started in pursuit of the other bandit. The route of travel led through the DEFILES OF THE SIERRA MADRE by a rocky and precipitous trail, and it was not until the morning of January 1st that Daniels reached Janos, where he learned that, as at Bisbee, the band had broken up, leaving Janos a few hours ahead of him for Corralitos, distant about 27 miles. Procuring fresh horses, the posse started at once for Corralitos, which place was reached about 8 o'clock that evening. The town is the center of a mining country, and is composed principally of Mexicans, there being but a half dozen Americans in the place. The whole neighborhood as described by Daniels seems to belong to the Corralitos Mining Company, of which Mr. Ad. Muenzenberger is the superintendent. Daniels went at once to him, and communicating the object of his visit, learned that "Big Dan" had arrived a short time previously and was then in what was known as the house of the Amer. cans. The superintendent, having learned the character of Dowd, was only too willing to assist.

IX HIS CAPTURE, and under cover of the darkness he and Daniels proceeded to the house prior to reaching it, it was agreed that the superintendent should enter the room in advance of Daniels, in order to prevent any possible interference by the Americans who were in the employ, in the capture of Dowd. As agreed, the superintendent entered the room first, Daniels at his heels. Dowd was sitting on a table facing the fire, and the rest of the party clustered about the room. On the table was setting also a bottle of megal, which had not been uncorked. He did not even look around when the men entered the room, and his first knowledge that he was in the merciless clutches of the law was when Muenzenberger, who had reached his side, caught hold of his arm and throwing them above his head, said: "THROW UP YOUR HANDS."

Daniels at the same time, with cocked pistol in hand, made the demand "surrender." A word from the superintendent to the Americans present, showed Dowd who was unarmed at the time that he was powerless to escape, and he quietly submitted to being manacled. Daniels remained until the following morning, when he was furnished with an ambulance and escorted by the superintendent, and driven to San Jose station on the Mexican Central railroad, 110 miles distant, and about 90 miles south of El Paso del Norte. Here he telegraphed to Sheriff Ward of the capture, and putting his prisoner on board the train started for home, upon nearing Paso del Norte, he feared Dowd might raise the question of extradition and put him to much trouble, so he made arrangements with the railroad officials, and together with his prisoners was locked in the express car until reaching the American line. Nothing of interest occurred on the trip worthy of note. The prisoners seemed completely cowed. At Bowie station Sheriff Ward who left town a year and a half ago, met the party and accompanied it to Contention, where he had previously stationed Deputy Sheriff Bob Hanch and Fred Worth. The trip into town and placing in the cell of Dowd was accomplished without the knowledge of the community. There is now but one of the gang at large—Billy D. Lany—and Daniels assures the reporter that his capture or death is certain within the next ten days at farthest.

A young man in central Illinois lost six ounces of brain last week and still lives. Brain is a drug on the market in this state.—[Chicago News. Not wholly a drug we imagine, but badly adulterated.—Philadelphia Call.]

The Indians who sell hay to the government out west have been detected placing large rocks in the bales. That comes of teaching the Indians to read, so they can study the daily papers and become posted in the tricks of the whites.—Peck's Com.

Quijotas Road Notice.

The subscribers of the Quijotas road fund are requested to meet at the court house this evening at 7 o'clock to elect a Superintendent of the work to be done and a Treasurer.

Among the various kinds of beads large and small, which are used to embellish and add finish to the modern toilet the large Roman pearls are just now more fashionably worn for evening decoration than beads of any description. The newest strings are exquisitely tinted in sherry hues of gold, and silver, pearly, and sea green.

THE BISBEE BANDITS.

Big Dan Dowd Taken in Corralitos, Chihuahu.

The Pursuit by Deputy Sheriff Daniels of Graham County, A. T.

On December 23, Daniels learned in Bisbee, from some Mexicans, just in from Sonora, that two men answering the description of "Big Dan" and Billy D. Lany, were in Bisbee, Sonora. Satisfying himself that the information furnished by the Mexicans was correct, he communicated with the sheriff's office, and after making all necessary arrangements, started on the morning of December 24th for that place.

Accompanying the officer was a Mexican, named Lucero, on whom Daniels knew he could rely as a guide, and also on his gameness in case of a fight. On the morning of the 26th, after a ride of about 200 miles, Daniels and his companions, having picked up another Mexican at Fronteras, reached Bisbee. Here it was learned that Dowd had separated five days previously, the former going, it matters not where to our readers, and Dowd remaining in Bisbee, which point he had left that morning about an hour prior to the arrival of Daniels and posse. Additional inquiry elicited the information that Dowd had struck across the Sierra Madre for Janos, in the state of Chihuahua, distant about 75 miles. After taking needed rest and perfecting plans for the capture of Delaney, the officer started in pursuit of the other bandit. The route of travel led through the DEFILES OF THE SIERRA MADRE by a rocky and precipitous trail, and it was not until the morning of January 1st that Daniels reached Janos, where he learned that, as at Bisbee, the band had broken up, leaving Janos a few hours ahead of him for Corralitos, distant about 27 miles. Procuring fresh horses, the posse started at once for Corralitos, which place was reached about 8 o'clock that evening. The town is the center of a mining country, and is composed principally of Mexicans, there being but a half dozen Americans in the place. The whole neighborhood as described by Daniels seems to belong to the Corralitos Mining Company, of which Mr. Ad. Muenzenberger is the superintendent. Daniels went at once to him, and communicating the object of his visit, learned that "Big Dan" had arrived a short time previously and was then in what was known as the house of the Amer. cans. The superintendent, having learned the character of Dowd, was only too willing to assist.

IX HIS CAPTURE, and under cover of the darkness he and Daniels proceeded to the house prior to reaching it, it was agreed that the superintendent should enter the room in advance of Daniels, in order to prevent any possible interference by the Americans who were in the employ, in the capture of Dowd. As agreed, the superintendent entered the room first, Daniels at his heels. Dowd was sitting on a table facing the fire, and the rest of the party clustered about the room. On the table was setting also a bottle of megal, which had not been uncorked. He did not even look around when the men entered the room, and his first knowledge that he was in the merciless clutches of the law was when Muenzenberger, who had reached his side, caught hold of his arm and throwing them above his head, said: "THROW UP YOUR HANDS."

Daniels at the same time, with cocked pistol in hand, made the demand "surrender." A word from the superintendent to the Americans present, showed Dowd who was unarmed at the time that he was powerless to escape, and he quietly submitted to being manacled. Daniels remained until the following morning, when he was furnished with an ambulance and escorted by the superintendent, and driven to San Jose station on the Mexican Central railroad, 110 miles distant, and about 90 miles south of El Paso del Norte. Here he telegraphed to Sheriff Ward of the capture, and putting his prisoner on board the train started for home, upon nearing Paso del Norte, he feared Dowd might raise the question of extradition and put him to much trouble, so he made arrangements with the railroad officials, and together with his prisoners was locked in the express car until reaching the American line. Nothing of interest occurred on the trip worthy of note. The prisoners seemed completely cowed. At Bowie station Sheriff Ward who left town a year and a half ago, met the party and accompanied it to Contention, where he had previously stationed Deputy Sheriff Bob Hanch and Fred Worth. The trip into town and placing in the cell of Dowd was accomplished without the knowledge of the community. There is now but one of the gang at large—Billy D. Lany—and Daniels assures the reporter that his capture or death is certain within the next ten days at farthest.

A young man in central Illinois lost six ounces of brain last week and still lives. Brain is a drug on the market in this state.—[Chicago News. Not wholly a drug we imagine, but badly adulterated.—Philadelphia Call.]

The Indians who sell hay to the government out west have been detected placing large rocks in the bales. That comes of teaching the Indians to read, so they can study the daily papers and become posted in the tricks of the whites.—Peck's Com.

Quijotas Road Notice.

The subscribers of the Quijotas road fund are requested to meet at the court house this evening at 7 o'clock to elect a Superintendent of the work to be done and a Treasurer.

Among the various kinds of beads large and small, which are used to embellish and add finish to the modern toilet the large Roman pearls are just now more fashionably worn for evening decoration than beads of any description. The newest strings are exquisitely tinted in sherry hues of gold, and silver, pearly, and sea green.

THE BISBEE BANDITS.

Big Dan Dowd Taken in Corralitos, Chihuahu.

The Pursuit by Deputy Sheriff Daniels of Graham County, A. T.

On December 23, Daniels learned in Bisbee, from some Mexicans, just in from Sonora, that two men answering the description of "Big Dan" and Billy D. Lany, were in Bisbee, Sonora. Satisfying himself that the information furnished by the Mexicans was correct, he communicated with the sheriff's office, and after making all necessary arrangements, started on the morning of December 24th for that place.

Accompanying the officer was a Mexican, named Lucero, on whom Daniels knew he could rely as a guide, and also on his gameness in case of a fight. On the morning of the 26th, after a ride of about 200 miles, Daniels and his companions, having picked up another Mexican at Fronteras, reached Bisbee. Here it was learned that Dowd had separated five days previously, the former going, it matters not where to our readers, and Dowd remaining in Bisbee, which point he had left that morning about an hour prior to the arrival of Daniels and posse. Additional inquiry elicited the information that Dowd had struck across the Sierra Madre for Janos, in the state of Chihuahua, distant about 75 miles. After taking needed rest and perfecting plans for the capture of Delaney, the officer started in pursuit of the other bandit. The route of travel led through the DEFILES OF THE SIERRA MADRE by a rocky and precipitous trail, and it was not until the morning of January 1st that Daniels reached Janos, where he learned that, as at Bisbee, the band had broken up, leaving Janos a few hours ahead of him for Corralitos, distant about 27 miles. Procuring fresh horses, the posse started at once for Corralitos, which place was reached about 8 o'clock that evening. The town is the center of a mining country, and is composed principally of Mexicans, there being but a half dozen Americans in the place. The whole neighborhood as described by Daniels seems to belong to the Corralitos Mining Company, of which Mr. Ad. Muenzenberger is the superintendent. Daniels went at once to him, and communicating the object of his visit, learned that "Big Dan" had arrived a short time previously and was then in what was known as the house of the Amer. cans. The superintendent, having learned the character of Dowd, was only too willing to assist.

IX HIS CAPTURE, and under cover of the darkness he and Daniels proceeded to the house prior to reaching it, it was agreed that the superintendent should enter the room in advance of Daniels, in order to prevent any possible interference by the Americans who were in the employ, in the capture of Dowd. As agreed, the superintendent entered the room first, Daniels at his heels. Dowd was sitting on a table facing the fire, and the rest of the party clustered about the room. On the table was setting also a bottle of megal, which had not been uncorked. He did not even look around when the men entered the room, and his first knowledge that he was in the merciless clutches of the law was when Muenzenberger, who had reached his side, caught hold of his arm and throwing them above his head, said: "THROW UP YOUR HANDS."

Daniels at the same time, with cocked pistol in hand, made the demand "surrender." A word from the superintendent to the Americans present, showed Dowd who was unarmed at the time that he was powerless to escape, and he quietly submitted to being manacled. Daniels remained until the following morning, when he was furnished with an ambulance and escorted by the superintendent, and driven to San Jose station on the Mexican Central railroad, 110 miles distant, and about 90 miles south of El Paso del Norte. Here he telegraphed to Sheriff Ward of the capture, and putting his prisoner on board the train started for home, upon nearing Paso del Norte, he feared Dowd might raise the question of extradition and put him to much trouble, so he made arrangements with the railroad officials, and together with his prisoners was locked in the express car until reaching the American line. Nothing of interest occurred on the trip worthy of note. The prisoners seemed completely cowed. At Bowie station Sheriff Ward who left town a year and a half ago, met the party and accompanied it to Contention, where he had previously stationed Deputy Sheriff Bob Hanch and Fred Worth. The trip into town and placing in the cell of Dowd was accomplished without the knowledge of the community. There is now but one of the gang at large—Billy D. Lany—and Daniels assures the reporter that his capture or death is certain within the next ten days at farthest.

A young man in central Illinois lost six ounces of brain last week and still lives. Brain is a drug on the market in this state.—[Chicago News. Not wholly a drug we imagine, but badly adulterated.—Philadelphia Call.]

The Indians who sell hay to the government out west have been detected placing large rocks in the bales. That comes of teaching the Indians to read, so they can study the daily papers and become posted in the tricks of the whites.—Peck's Com.

Quijotas Road Notice.

The subscribers of the Quijotas road fund are requested to meet at the court house this evening at 7 o'clock to elect a Superintendent of the work to be done and a Treasurer.

Among the various kinds of beads large and small, which are used to embellish and add finish to the modern toilet the large Roman pearls are just now more fashionably worn for evening decoration than beads of any description. The newest strings are exquisitely tinted in sherry hues of gold, and silver, pearly, and sea green.

THE BISBEE BANDITS.

Big Dan Dowd Taken in Corralitos, Chihuahu.

The Pursuit by Deputy Sheriff Daniels of Graham County, A. T.

On December 23, Daniels learned in Bisbee, from some Mexicans, just in from Sonora, that two men answering the description of "Big Dan" and Billy D. Lany, were in Bisbee, Sonora. Satisfying himself that the information furnished by the Mexicans was correct, he communicated with the sheriff's office, and after making all necessary arrangements, started on the morning of December 24th for that place.

Accompanying the officer was a Mexican, named Lucero, on whom Daniels knew he could rely as a guide, and also on his gameness in case of a fight. On the morning of the 26th, after a ride of about 200 miles, Daniels and his companions, having picked up another Mexican at Fronteras, reached Bisbee. Here it was learned that Dowd had separated five days previously, the former going, it matters not where to our readers, and Dowd remaining in Bisbee, which point he had left that morning about an hour prior to the arrival of Daniels