

Arizona Day by Day

Live News Taken From Territorial Exchanges.

Victor B. Bloom, a hustling commercial man from Globe, Ariz., is in the city today.—Albuquerque Democrat.

A. Efron, the erstwhile dry goods man of Prescott, has taken a position in Phoenix as salesman in Diamond Brothers' dry goods store.—Journal-Miner.

W. G. Gilstrap, correspondent of the Phoenix Republican, returned on Sunday from a business trip to Phoenix and incidentally to take in the legislative ball.—Journal-Miner.

The snow storm at Prescott stepped on Sunday and a cold wave is sending the mercury down to 12 below zero on Monday morning, being within a couple of degrees as low as the lowest for the winter.

Snow fell Sunday evening to the depth of about an inch, the first time this season in Tucson. Yesterday it was somewhat colder in the southern town. The mountains were shrouded in a mantle of snow.

Reports reach Prescott from Chaparral that the Union mine, one of the Little Jessie group, is turning out to be a second Little Jessie. A large shipment of ore will be made as soon as the roads are in a passable condition.

J. D. Dort, well known in Albuquerque through a former residence here, is in the city of Phoenix. Mr. Dort is a very agreeable gentleman and his many friends are always glad to welcome his rare visits.—Albuquerque Democrat.

Some very fine copper ore, brought in by Mr. Taft from Big Bug district, can be seen at Hotel Burke's says the Courier. There are two pieces of the ore, weighing about 100 pounds each, one of which carries 60 per cent copper and the other 40 per cent copper.

J. S. Carmichael left for Terza Patta, Peru, yesterday morning, where he goes to accept a position with the Inca Mining company. Mr. Carmichael is a first-class man in all respects. He bears the reputation of being a mill man of extra good ability.—Prescott Courier.

Reuben H. Lloyd of San Francisco, who is the grand master of Knights Templar of the United States, has appointed R. N. Fredericks of Prescott as his representative in the seventeenth district, comprising Arizona and New Mexico. This is the greatest honor that can be conferred upon a Knight Templar in the district.

Messrs. Seager and Cooper, the northern capitalists, representing the Calumet and Hecla properties of the Standard Oil company's new interests, were passengers on the eastbound train yesterday. One or both of the gentlemen will be here again this month to look after the prosecution of work on the Helvetia claims. This will be the most important and expensive development work outlined this year in Pima county.—Tucson Star.

E. R. Anderson, who is interested in the copper mines near Crittenden says the Tucson Citizen, recently sold for $40,000, claims to have been the original discoverer some time before his departure for the Cuban war. Ed's many friends will be glad to hear of his good fortune. Since he returned from Cuba he is retaining his strength quite rapidly. He was a pretty sick man for a long time. A week's hunting and prospecting expedition over the Canoa grant, from which he returned recently, has made a new man of him.

Captain Banning was driving Peter Neu, one of the San Pedro breakwater contractors, I. S. Anderson, superintendent at San Pedro, and Walter L. Vail, around Los Angeles on Saturday last, when on turning a corner the coach upset and Mr. Neu was killed, Walter L. Vail had a leg broken between the ankle and the knee, and was otherwise badly bruised in several places. Mr. Anderson escaped with a strained ankle. Mr. Vail is the owner of a large cattle ranch in Pima county and is well known to our people, who will sympathize with him in his sad accident.

The editor of the Pick and Drill is now in a position to save some money. Says he: "I am a very busy man, more than pleased, he is elated to be able to announce that after March 1, 1899, he can send cablegrams to Holland and Belgium at the same rates he now pays for cablegrams to Great Britain, Germany and France. In other words, after the above date our messages to Holland and Belgium will cost us only 25 cents per word. Considering the hard times, the Western Union Telegraph company will please accept our thanks for its timely reduction in rates to Holland and Belgium—particularly the latter, which we feel so elated over this thing, we again reiterate our 'many thanks'."

Mr. and Mrs. C. Clay left this city for Greaterville the latter part of last week, and on arrival at the above named place camped for the night, sleeping in a tent. Along about 11 o'clock a striped skunk entered the tent and bit Mrs. Clay on the nose, causing a painful wound. Fear prevails that the animal may transmit hydrophobia, and everything is being done that is possible to avert such dreadful consequences. The fear at first aroused is only partially allayed by the generally credited fact that striped skunks are not afflicted with the disease only at certain periods of the year, especially during the hot season, while it is claimed that the little black skunk with which the country is infested is never free from hydrophobia.—Tucson Citizen.

THE NEWS OF PRESCOTT

Prescott, Feb. 7.—(Special correspondence of The Republican.)—Old Bores shook his leg finger at northern Arizona Sunday night and knocked the thermometer down to 9 below zero in Prescott.

All the Prescottites who attended the legislative ball and banquet have returned well pleased with their entertainment while in the capital city. Mr. J. B. Haggert of the Lombard-

Goode Smelting company of Williams is looking over the Big Bug country in the interest of a smelter. Mr. Haggert pronounces that section the best field in northern Arizona for a first-class smelter. It has heretofore been stated that Big Bug ores were not of a quality to be successfully handled by the smelting process. Mr. Haggert says that is a mistake. In accord with mining men of experience in the Big Bug country he declares the ores can be handled with great success and from present indications it will not be long until the truth of his assertion will be fully proven. A smelter for Big Bug is now practically one of the certainties of the immediate future.

Mr. S. Taft is in from the Sterling mines in the Big Bug and says everything is moving along satisfactorily at the mine. The quality of ore now being taken out is valuable beyond their most sanguine expectations.

F. H. O'Brien, a prominent mining man from the Black Rock country, is in town. Mr. O'Brien also has valuable mining interests on Lynx creek.

Mrs. C. A. Dale is visiting in San Diego.

Under Sheriff A. A. Johns has returned from a business trip to Phoenix.

The fire department held an election last evening to elect a chief and assistant chief for the ensuing year.

The minstrel show to be given by the Catholic choir will be held in the Bashford opera house Friday evening, February 13.

The Grand Templars gave an entertainment at their hall Monday evening. The program was interesting and the attendance unusually large.

The dance given by Prof. Gallick's orchestra in Dake's hall last Friday evening was a very pleasant affair. The orchestra always furnishes up to date music that proves an inspiration to the dances.

Some magnificent samples of ore taken from the Sterling mine are on display at the Burke hotel. Mining men generally pronounce the ore exceptionally fine.

The book and ladder company has elected the following officers: President and foreman, W. D. Tinker; vice president and first assistant foreman, George Giles; second assistant foreman, J. E. Gates; secretary, T. L. Schultz; treasurer, William Binnie; five delegates, George Giles and H. D. Campbell.

Miss Irene Martin remained in Phoenix since the legislative ball and banquet, the guest of Mrs. J. C. Adams and Mrs. N. O. Murphy, at the Hotel Adams.

Bids on the county business for the coming year were opened by the board of supervisors Monday at 2 o'clock p. m. and were as follows: County printing—Courier, $996; Journal-Miner, $1,199.75; Pick and Drill, $1,080. Stationery—Kelly & Stephens, various prices; George Wooster, the same. Burying indigent dead—S. A. Logan, $200; Charles W. Lemmon, $120 per year and $45 per burial. George Cook, $23.33 per quarter. Hospital, per day for each patient—Mrs. S. L. Riley, 65 cents; D. Pentland, 57 cents; William Thomas, 50 cents; M. McInerney, 50 cents; Phys. Clin.—E. T. Coody, $80 per year; Mr. C. Scarborough, $18; J. B. McNally, $7. Feeding prisoners—Burke & Hickey, per meal, 12 cents; Charles Husted, 14 cents. Contracts on the above are to let today.

The condition of George Dwyer, deputy county treasurer, who was recently stricken with paralysis, still remains unchanged, and the physicians pronounce his case an incurable one. Mrs. E. D. Adams, mother of A. D. Adams, lumber dealer of Prescott, and H. F. Adams of Williams died at McAlister, Indian Territory, January 24, aged 77 years. Deceased was well known in Prescott, where she resided eight years ago.

WILL GILSTRAP, DUKE AND DUCHESS AT THE VATICAN

The visit of the duke and duchess of Connaught in state to the Vatican marks an altogether new departure in the relations between the papacy and the court of Great Britain. It is the first time in history that any member of the royal house of England has ever visited in state the supreme pontiff of the Roman Catholic church, either prior or subsequent to the reformation. True, the late duke of Sussex, uncle of Queen Victoria; the prince of Wales, and the duke of Cambridge, as well as the princess of Wales, with her daughters and her son, the duke of York, have called at the Vatican. But it has always been in a strictly private capacity, so to speak, incidentally, and in the absence of all state or official surroundings. In fact, when the duke of York, with his mother and sisters, visited Leo XIII, the royal ladies were in hats and short-skirted tailor-made walking dresses, while the duke did not even take the trouble to don a frock coat and high hat, but had on a morning jacket and a derby hat.

The pope did not express any opinion upon the subject. But the members of the Vatican court were greatly shocked with the costume of the royal English visitors in full uniform, and that it is in obedience to her instructions that her favorite son and her daughter-in-law proceeded last week in full state and in the gala equipage of the British embassy to visit Leo XIII, the duke, as well as the officers of his suite, being in full uniform, while the duchess and her ladies wore court trains with the black mantilla, which is the coiffure prescribed by papal etiquette for all ladies who are received in audience by his holiness.

The visit is stated to have given much satisfaction to the aged pontiff, who naturally took occasion to refer to his former acquaintance with the queen at the time when he was nuncio in the court of her uncle, King Leopold I of Belgium.

It is difficult to understand why there should have been any surprise created at the large amount of money left by the late earl of Latham, who was generally believed to have been a poor man, and yet whose will shows a personality of nearly a million dollars over and above his entailed estates. People seem to forget that throughout his entire career he was dabbling in so-called city enterprises and that at one moment he was on the board of directors of a larger number of joint stock companies than any one excepting Lord Thurlow or the marquis of Tweeddale (pronounced Twiddle).

About ten years ago the earl became involved in some rather unpleasant difficulties in connection with a company that went into liquidation, and was forced, not only to pay heavy assessments on the shares which had been given to him gratis in order to qualify him for the position of director, but was likewise compelled to pay several thousand pounds toward the settlement of the company's affairs on the ground that people had been led by the presence of his name on the board of management to invest their money in the enterprise.

It must thoroughly be understood that the large amount of money which he has left over and above his estates has been entirely obtained by city and joint stock company transactions.

There is no truth in the story current to the effect that the duke was away from the silver wedding festivities of his uncle, at Coburg, because the latter had invited the duke of Cumberland and of Brunswick, whom the Kaiser does not wish to meet. Those who originated this story are manifestly in error.

The duke of Cumberland is the one member of Queen Victoria's family with whom the duke of Cumberland declines to hold intercourse, and with whom he is at daggers drawn.

The duke of Cumberland is just about the last person whom the duke of Coburg would have invited to his silver wedding festivities, and had an invitation been sent it is doubtful whether there would have been any response thereto one way or another on the part of the duke of Cumberland. The latter is well aware of the fact that it is his cousin, Alfred, who has revealed and subsequently circulated, as a capital joke, the story of his, the duke of Cumberland's, affliction, namely, that he had been born without a nose, a fact concerning which the most strict secrecy had until that time been maintained.

The true reason why the Kaiser was not at the silver wedding festivities was, in the first place, because he had quarreled with his uncle and aunt, and, secondly, because the courts of Berlin are at the present moment engaged in unravelling the very unsavory scandals in which Duke Alfred's only son is implicated, and which have necessitated the young fellow's being placed under restraint as a lunatic in order to furnish a more or less well justified pretext for relieving him of any legal responsibilities in connection with the shortcomings that may be laid to his charge.

It was obviously difficult for the Kaiser to present himself as the chief guest at the silver wedding festivities of his uncle and aunt at the very time when his courts were engaged in the investigation of charges against their only son.

When one remembers the tremendous fuss made at the time of the last visit of Empress Frederick to Paris, the discussion in the French and in the foreign press becoming so angry in which Duke Alfred's only son is implicated, and which have necessitated the young fellow's being placed under restraint as a lunatic in order to furnish a more or less well justified pretext for relieving him of any legal responsibilities in connection with the shortcomings that may be laid to his charge.

It shows the truth of what I have always asserted in these columns, namely, the sentiment of vengeance against Germany for the invasion of 1871 is dying out in Europe, and a new generation has sprung up in France since the so-called "Terrible Year," who know nothing of the latter except by hearsay, and who are, therefore, quite disposed to be friendly toward Germany, especially when there is any advantage to be derived therefrom either at home or abroad.

During the years immediately following the war the statues—female figures—representing Metz and Strasbourg, on the Place de la Concorde, at Paris, were decorated on every public holiday with flowers, caps, and bouquets of deep mourning, while the people deposited nosegays at their base. Today nobody pays any attention to them.

Sir Nicholas O'Connor, the new British ambassador at Constantinople, who, as secretary of embassy and charge d'affaires, spent several years at Washington, has inaugurated a new era in Stamboul.

Until now and from time immemorial the British embassy in the Turkish capital has always been regarded as a haven of refuge for native statesmen and dignitaries, who were in peril of their lives at the hands of the sultan's emissaries. And it may be remembered that only three years ago the Grand Vizier Said sought and received protection within the precincts of the British embassy from the sultan.

Sir Nicholas has now announced that he can no longer open the doors of his embassy to native personages persecuted by the sultan, since it would be impossible to find room for all the refugees, and that the sultan's emissaries are now anxious to find safety therein from the cruelty of the sovereign.—Marguise de Fontenay in Washington Post.

ALL BUYING STOCKS

New York Women Are Speculation Mad.

Platt and Roosevelt Have Not Yet Agreed Upon a Plan for Police Reorganization—Changes in Manhattan Elevated Management.

New York, Feb. 7.—At the swell cafes, hotels and other resorts of the city the swelling boom in last week's stock market is plainly reflected. It is usual at this time of the year for many visitors to be in the city, some for pleasure and others to buy for various western houses, but the crush just now is almost beyond parallel. Many of the larger hotels are daily turning away many would-be guests. There is hardly a hotel of consequence in this city at which a room can be secured without being previously reserved. The visitors are from all sections of the country, and every one of them seems to be prosperous and to have a great deal of money.

All the visitors from the Pacific slope, from Canada, from the south and from the great west tell of unusual prosperity at home. The commercial buyers say they have never heard of a better time to have given $2,000 in there in this year. Nearly every man has taken a great interest in the stock market, and in many instances the visitors have been heavy buyers of stock in Wall street. In many of the uptown hotels, where the brokers' offices are located, the devotees of the stock exchange, talking sagely of selling "short" and "10 per cent margins" and all the rest of it. Others, woefully ignorant, walk up to the cashier's window and seem very much dazed when asked what stocks they want.

The ladies are also taking a keen interest in the speculation of the market for the mania has apparently spread to them. Dozens of the big Wall street firms who have uptown branches furnish favorite places in which the women stake their money on the chances of the market. Some of them are learned in the devices of the stock exchange, talking sagely of selling "short" and "10 per cent margins" and all the rest of it. Others, woefully ignorant, walk up to the cashier's window and seem very much dazed when asked what stocks they want.

San Jose, Cal., Feb. 7.—A meeting of about 350 depositors in the Union Savings bank this morning developed a wide divergence of opinion as to the best action. A committee of seven was appointed to confer with the attorneys and report generally tomorrow.

THE BOLIVIAN TROUBLE

Lima, Peru, Feb. 7.—Advices from Bolivia confirm the report of the retreat of President Alonzo and his army to Oruro, a town of Bolivia 100 miles northwest of Sucre. The Indians, it is added, are rising everywhere and are murdering and plundering. There are also rumors of complications between Bolivia and Chile.

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA

To Gain Flesh, to Sleep Well, to Know What Appetite and Good Digestion Mean. Make a Test of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Nervous dyspepsia often do not have any pain whatever in the stomach, nor perhaps any of the usual symptoms of stomach weakness. Nervous dyspepsia shows itself not in the stomach so much as in nearly every organ. In some cases the heart palpitates and is irregular; in others the kidneys are affected; in others the bowels are constipated, with headaches; still others are troubled with loss of flesh and appetite with accumulations of gas, sour risings and heartburn. It is safe to say that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure any stomach weakness or disease except cancer of the stomach. They cure sour stomach, gas, loss of flesh and appetite, sleeplessness, palpitation, heartburn, constipation and headache.

Send for valuable little book on stomach diseases by addressing P. A. Stewart, Co., Marshall, Miss. All druggists sell full sized packages at 50 cents. Professor Henry W. Becker, A. M., the well known religious worker and writer of St. Louis, secretary of the mission board of the German Methodist Episcopal church, chief clerk and expert accountant for the harbor and wharf commission, public secretary for the St. Louis School Patrons' association, and the district conference of stewards of the M. E. church; also takes an active part in the work of the Epworth League, and to write on religious, educational topics for several magazines. How he found relief is set out in his own words:

"Some weeks ago my brother heard me say something about indigestion, and taking a box from his pocket said, 'Try Stuart's Tablets.' I did, and was promptly relieved. Then I investigated the nature of tablets and became satisfied that they were made of just the right things and in just the right proportions to aid in the assimilation of food. I heartily endorse them in all respects, and I keep them constantly on hand."

places are still the prevailing hours and the prevailing rates are little better than ever. In some places vice contractors were found in one place, for which only one factory permit had been issued. The first places visited were worse than the others, for the reason that in some way the contractors learned of the inspection in progress, and managed to send away many minors and get their premises into better condition for visitors.

JAPANESE TEXTILES

Sale of the Matsuki Collection—Good Prices Obtained.

New York, Feb. 7.—The remainder of the collection of Japanese textiles brought to this country by Bunkio Matsuki of Japan and Boston, Mass., was sold at auction yesterday afternoon at the galleries of the American Art association.

The more important specimens in the collection had been reserved for yesterday's sale. For most of the lots fairly good prices were obtained, but several rare pieces were sold at what the auctioneer considered a big sacrifice. An embroidered palace-wall hanging, for instance, for which Mr. Matsuki is said to have given $2,000 in Japan was knocked down for $350. Another hanging, with a design of peacocks and peony flowers brought $300.
