WOKE HIM UP AT LAST.

How a Sleeping Telegraph Operator Was Aroused to Duty.

There is a good story about a telegraph operator who once worked the land wires in the Duxbury cable office going to sleep one night and a message having to be sent six or seven thousand miles to wake him up. The operator is now a practicing physician in Cambridge, Mass., but before annexing M. D. to his name was one of the gilt-edge telegraphers of the country, says a writer in Donahoe's Magazine.

One night while on duty in the Duxbury office he fell asleep at his key. The sleep was a sound one. The New York operator called till out of patience, when he sent a message to Boston requesting the chief operator in charge to tell Duxbury to answer New York. The sleeper, however, was as deaf to Boston's "Di, Di," as to the impatient characters flashed on from New York.

In the cableroom next the sleeping operator was the cable artist. The room was dark and he was watching the mirror for the tiny sparks that in those days went to make up a message. To him the Morse alphabet was all Greek, so the sleeper slept on.

Seeing no other way out of the muddle and thinking the operator asleep, New York called Canso in Nova Scotia and addressed a message to the cable operator at Duxbury. The message read:

"Go into the other room and wake up that operator."

Canso sent it to Heart's Content in Newfoundland; Heart's Content rushed it across the deep to Valentia. From there it went to London, thence to Dover, and across the channel to Calais and to Brest. Brest kept it moving on to Miquelon and Miquelon gave the cable operator at Duxbury a unique surprise. The sleeper was then aroused, about eleven minutes having been taken by the grand round of the cablegram. He tried to explain matters by telling New York he was out of adjustment. The story didn't impress the officials as being truthful, and in a day or two there was a vacancy in Duxbury.

THE SOLDIER'S WORK.

Regulars Labor the Same as Any Other Workingman.

"Carrying a gun and shooting when you are ordered to shoot is a business the same as laying brick or making a boiler to the average regular soldier," said one of the privates of a company on guard at the custom house during the great strike, says the Chicago Herald. "These people," he continued, "who call themselves laboring people, and jeer at us and insult us, seem to forget that when a man enters the regular army in times of peace he doesn't do it from any particular motive of patriotism. It is a business with him, and it has less of freedom in it than any class of labor that I know anything about. A regular is absolutely under the eyes of his superior day and night. He can't go across the street without permission. He has requirements made of him every hour in the day. He undergoes about as many privations as any laboring man I ever heard of. I wonder if some of these civilians who think proper to jeer at us, and insult us, as many have done in Chicago, ever stop to realize what we have done for their welfare and good in other times? I wonder if they think we have been kept, sometimes for months and years, away from the civilization which has given them so many advantages? I wonder if they think we are doing this thing for our health? The regular private is as much a laboring man as any now on a strike; he is under a contract, the violation of which means disgrace if not death. And yet it remained for us, who have been among Indians and snowstorms and all privations, to come here, under orders, to be insulted and spitefully used."

THE ORIGIN OF TATTOOING.

It Dates So Far Back That It Is Lost in Antiquity.

Tattooing dates back so far that it is impossible to discover when it was first practiced, but it was one of the practices that were prohibited to the Jews, for in Leviticus 19:28, is the following: "Ye shall not make any cuttings in your flesh for the dead, nor print any marks upon you." From this it may be inferred that tattooing was prevalent in the days of Moses. It is a custom that prevails among the savage nations of the earth and tattooing is practiced to this day, except where Christianity and civilization have put a stop to it. It was at one time years ago, and is yet, but not to such a marked degree, a fad among sailors to have various designs placed on the body. It was also a fad among a certain class of silly women to have their lover's name tattooed on the arm or breast. There are sailors in almost every seaport at this time who are willing for a consideration to place figures on the flesh of any who are foolish enough to have disfiguring marks driven beneath the surface of the skin with needle points dipped into coloring matter.

Skinned Himself and Ate It.

My uncle and sister and I were out in the garden one day watching a little toad, and my uncle took a twig and very gently scratched first one side of the toad and then the other. The toad evidently enjoyed it, for he would roll slowly from side to side, says a correspondent in the Philadelphia Press, and blink very expressively. I was so interested that when they went in I took the twig and did as my uncle had done. If, thought I, if he rolls from side to side, as I touch him, what would he do if I ran the twig down his back? I did so, and what do you think happened? His skin, which was thin and dirty, parted in a neat little seam, showing a bright new coat below, and then my quiet little toad showed his knowledge, for he gently and carefully pulled off his outer skin, taking it off the body and legs first, and then blinking it over his eyes, till—where had it gone? He had rolled it in a ball and swallowed it.

She Put It Onto Him.

A doctor related the following to a friend after visiting a widowed neighbor: "While we were conversing I put my hand on a cushion and said: 'Widow, this is the nicest, softest place I ever had my hand on in all my life!' Looking benevolently at me, and at the same time flushing up a little said: 'Doctor, in melting and winning tones: 'Doctor, give me your hand, and I'll put it on a much softer place.' In a moment of rapture, I consented, and taking my hand, she gently, very gently, 'Tim, and quietly, laid it on my head, and burst into a laugh that's ringing in my ears yet.'"
