STRAINED!

There Is Trouble Between
Hawaii and Japan.

Offense Taken at a Remark of Thurston's.

Hawaii Wants to Get Rid of the Japanese.

She Is Called Down by Japan.
but Stands Pat and Says
She Means It—Other
Troubles of the Government.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 17.—The steamer Australia, which arrived today from Honolulu brings news of a diplomatic correspondence, indicating somewhat strained relations between the governments of Hawaii and Japan.

It is reported that Fuji, Japanese consul general at Honolulu, sent a communication to Foreign Minister Hatch complaining of the statement reported to have been made by Mr. Thurston, Hawaiian minister to the United States, in an interview published in an American newspaper. Mr. Thurston was charged with having said that it was the intention of his government to root out the Japanese and Chinese in Hawaii.

The Japanese consul general demanded to know whether the Hawaiian government endorsed the words of Minister Thurston. In his reply, Foreign Minister Hatch politely declined to recognize the authority of the reported newspaper interview and stated that he did not believe Minister Thurston had made the assertion attributed to him.

Minister Hatch is said to have intimated, however, that his government did desire to see European laborers substituted for the large numbers of Japanese and Chinese laborers in the islands. He also declared there was no desire to annoy Japanese laborers now in Hawaii and that their rights would be fully protected.

The Hawaiian government is said also to be much worried over the large number of needy Americans who are flocking to Honolulu in search of remunerative employment, which is not to be had, and who threaten to become a public charge. Over 200 of this class are reported to have arrived during one week.

ASKS MORE ALIMONY.

Millionaire Grout Is in Great Trouble.

A First Wife Who Considers an Arizona Divorce as Worthless.

Special to The Chronicle.

ORANGE, Mass., Nov. 14.—The first wife of Millionaire William Grout, who disregards the Arizona divorce procured last January by her husband, today filed a second libel against him.

In this libel Mrs. Grout alleges that Grout was unfaithful to his marriage vows between January 26 and November 5, 1894. Recently Grout married, in another state, Miss Eliza Reynolds, and Mrs. Grout No. 2 is named as co-respondent.

Apparently the second libel holds that Grout is a bigamist and prominent lawyers hold this to be true so far as the Massachusetts law is concerned. Grout is in California with his bride. His legal residence is in Arizona and service upon him cannot be obtained.

Underneath all the legal sparring is a contest to see how much money Grout may pay his wife No. 1 for alimony. She wants $50,000 more than he is willing to pay. When the terms are agreed upon the divorce will be granted in this state and everything will be lovely.

KNOCKED OUT.

Pugilist Riordan Killed
by a Blow.

Fitzsimmons Accidentally Kills an Antagonist.

Is Locked Up Pending the Coroner's Verdict.

An Expert Trainer of Riordan Thinks
It Was Accidental and That the Victim Was to Blame.

By the Associated Press.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 17.—Riordan, the pugilist, who was knocked unconscious last night by Bob Fitzsimmons in the sparring exhibition, died at the Candeo house at 8:30 this morning. Fitzsimmons, when informed of Riordan's death, burst into sobs. Fitzsimmons is locked up, awaiting the action of the coroner's jury.

An Expert Opinion.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Charles E. Davies, who had Con Riordan under his management for nearly a year sparring with Jackson, says: "Riordan, while a clever boxer, was a very heavy drinker. While with Jackson he would often not show up for the entertainment until time to go on and would usually be full. He was one of the kind of drinkers whom liquor made dull and heavy and too much over exertion would be liable to prove dangerous if not fatal.

"I think it purely an accident, as Fitzsimmons is not a vicious boxer. He also had the habit of boxing of sleeping and would thus meet a blow which, if striking him at a vital point would be liable to put him out. This sleeping, while it would catch the crowd, was always dangerous, and I think it will be found he did this last night. It can only be classed as an accident, which, if happening to a person of any other profession, would have little or no attention paid to it."

THE BRITISH BORDER

Worked by the Chinese for All
It's Worth.

A Treasury Agent's Report on the Smuggling of Chinese and Opium.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—In his report to the secretary of the treasury Special Agent J. C. Crowley states that the fact was established that more than 1,500 Chinese laborers and 30,000 pounds of opium had been smuggled into Portland from British Columbia in a period of less than seventeen months.

GO AND SIN NO MORE.

Thus Governor Pennoyer Admonishes Two Editors.

The Proprietors of a Portland Paper
Sentenced to Jail for One Year
Pardoned by the Governor.

By the Associated Press.

PORTLAND, Nov. 17.—Governor Pennoyer today pardoned B. P. Watson and O. P. Mason, formerly proprietors of the "Sunday Mercury."

They were convicted some months ago of criminal libel and were sentenced to one year in the county jail. They filed an appeal bond and a few days ago the supreme court sustained the judgment of the lower court.

DOWNED AT LAST.

A Famous Wrestler in a Mine Explosion.

A Lighted Match and a Keg of Powder Does Its Deadly Work in a Colorado Mine.

By the Associated Press.

BLACK HAWK, Col., Nov. 17.—A workman at the Perigo mine tunnel this morning dropped a lighted candle in a keg of powder. There was no explosion, but a fire started the smoke and fumes from which suffocated to death Albert Sanders, aged 25; Burham Ivy, 40; James Whitlo, 23, and Lipper

Willis, 35, who were working in the tunnel.

Burham Ivy, one of the victims, was the champion catch-as-catch-can wrestler of Colorado. He had bested a number of wrestlers from other western states and was never beaten. He was born in England.

BASE BALL.

An Informal Meeting of the New American Association.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—The members of the new American base ball association met again today at the Grand Pacific hotel, but adjourned in a short time without taking any action toward the formation of a circuit.

The association will meet again in this city on November 30.

HIGH FREIGHT RATES

Destroy the Flour Industry at St.
Louis.

St. Louis, Nov. 17.—A majority of the large flouring mills in St. Louis have either closed down for an indefinite period or will do so at once.

This course is made necessary, the millers claim, because of a congestion of the market and more especially by the advanced freight rate to the eastern seaboard.

A HUMAN FACE

Carved by an Artist of Another
Age.

A Curious Discovery Which Will Be of Interest to Archaeolo-gists.

Mr. W. R. Ford, a farmer living six miles west of the city, has made a discovery which will create a stir among archaeologists. It is also likely to lend additional light to studies of the early habitation of this part of the country, only traces of which are seen in the ancient canals and discoveries of pottery.

Last Friday while at work on his farm Mr. Ford picked up two small objects which appeared to be bits of dirty glass or semi-transparent stone. His attention was attracted only by their nearly circular shape which resembled that of a button. Brushing the dirt from one of them he imagined he saw a human face traced upon it. He examined it more intently and found it was a human face which could have been produced only by great artistic skill. One side of the glass or stone lozenge for it has not yet been determined which it is, is convex; the other is flat and extends beyond forming a flange which has been broken in places. The carving is done upon the flat side, that is if the work is carving, though it may be only an impression made if the lozenge is glass, while it was in a plastic state. But the marvelous correctness of outline of the impression or carving, whichever it may be, is the most wonderful part of it. The face is feminine. It is strictly Grecian in contour, a type accentuated by the style of the hair and the poise of the neck. The effect produced looking at the lozenge from the oval side, is cameo-like, showing a face overlying a face.

The other lozenge is similar in shape but bears instead of a face a rose the outline of whose leaves is as distinct as those of the face. The lozenges are nearly as large in diameter as a silver dime and about an eighth of an inch in thickness.

Mr. Ford brought the one containing the face to town yesterday morning and showed it to various jewelers. All said they had never seen any work like it and believed it to have been produced by a method so ancient that it had been lost. He was offered and refused $100 for the relic. He will send it to the Smithsonian institute for investigation.

The farm owned by Mr. Ford is rich in relics of a former age. He has a large collection of stone implements of various kinds and other evidences of an earlier civilization, but these are of an entirely different character than his recent discovery. He believes that his farm occupies the site of a ruined city of which so many evidences have been discovered in that and other parts of the valley. That those curious lozenges were handed down from a period when art and civilization flourished and came at last to be mingled with the ruder implements and ornaments of the semi-civilization of the Aztecs.

Whoever carved that face or whoever made the die that impressed it knew something of the art of Greece when the gods were no farther from men than the top of Olympus. The solution of the problem lies with the archaeologists who will have to pass upon the genuineness of the relic. They will still be in doubt as to whether it was brought here from the east, whether the skill which made it was developed here or whether the ancient artist had been wafted eastward across the Pacific when western Europe was in a condition of wild savagery and when the sun of civilization had not yet thrown his first rays upon the land where Columbus was born.

The Trial of Salter for the Murder of Barnes at San Bernardino
Presents Sensational Phases.

By the Associated Press.

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Nov. 17.—The preliminary examination of Salter for poisoning S. W. Barnes proceeded today in Justice Knox's court.

The confession of Mrs. Barnes stating how she had for months entered into a conspiracy with Salter to kill her husband, and how they together had prepared and administered arsenic in small doses until the victim became a physical wreck and near death's door was read in evidence and further hearing was continued until next Thursday to give the attorneys for the defense time to examine the confession.

Salter is now suspected of killing Paul Powers, a hackman, two years ago. Powers was shot in the back and the assassin escaped. His revolver has been found in Salter's possession.

The Attorney General Declines to Interfere With the Bandits.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—A delegation of railroad men called on Secretary Lamont today concerning the sending of troops to suppress lawlessness in the Indian territory. They also saw the attorney general who informed them that he did not feel justified at this time in calling on the secretary of war for troops.

For the present he declined to interfere beyond urging the United States marshal to do everything in his power to bring the robbers to justice.

An Outlaw Whose Three Year's Course at Last Comes to an End.

By the Associated Press.

MADERA, Cal., Nov. 17.—Word was brought from the mountains this morning that the posse organized to hunt Cliff Regan, had surprised him and compelled him to abandon his horse and take to the rocks. They probably have him cornered. There may be bloodshed as Regan is desperate.

Three years ago Regan was implicated in a robbery but escaped punishment by turning state's evidence. Since then he has been connected with a gang stealing horses and robbing mountain stores.

AFTER THE FORGER.

The Man With the Crooked Check
Supposed to Be Geo. McGowan.

The man who cashed a forged check at the Bee Hive on Friday night is supposed to be George McGowan. McGowan is a stranger, but this supposition is based on the fact that the check was made payable to him and on the further circumstance that a description of McGowan is a good description of the man with the spurious check. The work was not very smooth, but perhaps its very want of smoothness was calculated to keep down suspicion. It bore the signature of the "L. W. Blinn Company," the word "lumber" was inserted as an after thought by the writer and was so carelessly done that the natural conclusion was that a forger would have written a new check. A warrant was issued by Justice Johnstone for McGowan.

Henry Brown, who had been arrested the day before on complaint of McGowan for a disturbance of the peace, was fined $15 and he went to jail. His experience made him communicative on the subject of McGowan. That reprobate, he said, came down with him from the north and south road where they had been at work. He also said that McGowan has a bad record in California of which he is cognizant and as soon as his late partner is caught he will make a revelation.
