PIONEER PLANS FOR FUTURE

Purchases Half Block on East Jefferson to Make Room for Demands of the Company in Immediate Future

The growing business of the Pioneer Transfer company has necessitated the purchase of additional downtown property to be used in the operation of the company's business. There has been need for more room for the storage business. The many teams operated by the company as well as the many automobiles that are running the streets with the company's sign on them need a place where the repairs can be made expeditiously, or in other words, a blacksmith shop and garage operated for the company.

In view of this situation, and the need for its improvement, negotiations have been going on for some time between the company's representatives and the owners of suitable property, where such buildings might be erected. These negotiations came to a climax this week when George Coffin, in behalf of the Pioneer, purchased the Thalhimer property of a half block on Jefferson street between Fourth and Fifth. The consideration in the case is not given but it is understood to be in the neighborhood of $15,000. The property is partially improved.

The task of erecting barns, storehouses, corrals, garage and blacksmith shops will begin at once, so that by the time the rush for storage starts at the beginning of the summer a place will have been made for the accommodation of the goods. This storehouse is to be modern in every respect and fireproof. By the time the rush begins next fall in all lines of business, the entire new plant will have been erected.

VISIT TO PHOENIX OF DAN CRAWFORD

The following is from the Park College Record, Parkersville, Mo.: "You who have heard Dan Crawford speak or who have read his brilliant book, 'Thinking Back,' will appreciate the pleasure we enjoyed last Wednesday. Mr. Crawford has been visiting churches and colleges for four months past, delivering a message couched in extraordinary language and breathing a rare spirit. The loneliness, the privations of pioneering in Africa are vividly portrayed, he himself calls it pouring water on the sacrifice to see whether the missionary enthusiasm is kindled by divine fire or not.

The address to the students was made at our chapel assembly at 11:40 a. m. In the evening at the usual prayer meeting near the chapel was again filled. Mr. Crawford held his audience spell bound for an hour and a half, while with marvelous imagery he depicted scene after scene of his African life. We felt with him the thrill of joy at the meeting with his bride at the edge of the forest, and more than once we winced with pain at the touch of the iron that entered his soul."
Mr. Crawford speaks at the Presbyterian church, Third avenue and Adams street, this morning.

MASTER OF MOMENTUM IS MARCUS A. CATTON

(By the R. A. R.)
Masters of Momentum.
I used to think that term applied with greatest aptness to the racing riders of motorcycles, who hurled themselves around mile tracks, balancing their bodies on two-wheeled machines at terrific speed, calculating the depth of the skid, and allowing for it, judging the amount of slide contained in a treacherous little soft streak, and preparing to exert their iron muscles to meet it.
For awhile, it was the trapeze and aerial artist of the circus to whom I awarded that title. The acrobat driver teased me for a space, but I never quite yielded the name to him. I'm glad I didn't. I've found the man to whom it belongs.
He is Marcus Catton. Don't try to say that it takes more brain, muscle and nerve to direct the four hundred pounds of plunging man and motorcycle, or the thousands of pounds of racing automobile than it does to herd three few ounce ivory balls over an absolutely level baize covered slab of slate. I saw the Boy Billiardist practicing for the Hoppe scalp yesterday. He worked out alone, calculating his shots as rapidly as though he had two personalities and was playing himself.
One funny thing was his total honesty. If he had wanted to forget to count that last miss he made, no one would have blamed him, but the slightest error was chalked up to be used in a study of progress.
Talk about wrangling horses, the way that young culet herded those three balls would have had any be-chapped cowpuncher choked with envy. The delicacy of his touch was that of a surgeon cutting through tough tissue right down next the place where his patient lives, and slicing mighty fine at that.
Marcus Catton is one of the coming younger set of billiardists. He is a son of old Billy Catton, a well known champion of former years.

Y. W. C. A. RESUMES THE VESPER SERVICES

The regular Young Women's Christian Association vesper services, which have been abandoned for the past few weeks to allow the girls to attend the services in the skating rink, will be resumed this afternoon at the usual hour. Mrs. Imogene L. Chance will have charge of the vesper. The devotional period will be handled by Leta Chiffon, while Mrs. L. D. Dameron will be the soloist for the afternoon.
The regular social hour, which is a customary feature of the vesper, will follow the service, and tea and cakes will be served. The women and girls of the city and all visitors are invited to be on hand.

Another addition to the names of contributors to the Y. W. C. A. fund was made yesterday in the person of Mrs. E. B. Wise, of Los Angeles, Cal., but formerly a resident of the Salt River valley. Mrs. Wise is one of the directors in the Y. W., and she states in her letter that she is distinctly "for the work in Phoenix."
Since the campaign at the Y. W. is all over there has been a change in the appearance of the quarters decidedly to their advantage. New rugs have been laid in all rooms, the furniture has been shifted, and a thorough cleaning and sweeping has been given the rooms.

TRAGIC INCIDENT AT FRENCH BALL

F. Perry, Death and an Unsolved Mystery.

PARIS, March 21.—During a masked ball in Paris recently a man and a woman in black dominoes, whose identity was a mystery, appeared among the dancers.

The man spoke in a falsetto voice, and pretended to be intoxicated, going round the tables talking to the guests, while the woman danced happily, smiling at the compliments paid to her. Towards the end of the ball an American woman missed her landing, containing valuable jewels, and the man in the black domino was nowhere to be seen. Suddenly the mysterious woman fell to the floor and died immediately.

She was taken to a bungalow in the gardens and there a doctor raised her mask, to find that she was strikingly beautiful. No clue could be found to her identity.
