MUCH BUILDING ACTIVITY HERE IS INDICATED

Permits from Office of City Building Inspector During First Part of October Show Many Desirable Residences Contemplated

A partial report of the permits issued by City Building Inspector H. J. Mann for the month of October, indicates that there is quite the usual building activity here, in fact that there is even more activity than might generally be supposed when it is taken into consideration that many are feeling the effects of the present money stringency. A perusal of the list of permits appended herewith shows that while there are no very large buildings included, there is a very liberal sprinkling of residence permits. They are of the order that appeals to the man of moderate means.

However, it is predicted that within the next few weeks, perhaps within the next few days, permits will be issued for two or three structures costing thousands of dollars and which when completed will be a credit to a city already possessing many handsome buildings.

The more important of the October permits issued so far are as follows:

Permit for one-story brick garage and repair shop, 292 North Central Ave., for T. B. Stewart, value $400. T. B. Stewart, contractor.

TRAGEDY AND ROMANCE OF THE CARMAN CASE LEND TRIAL AN ABSORBING INTEREST; WOMEN, MYSTERY AND LOVE ALL IN STORY

Mrs. Florence Carman (left), Prosecuting Attorney Smith, Mrs. Louise Bailey, and courtroom where Mrs. Carman is being tried.

The elements of tragedy and romance in the Carman murder case, now being tried at Mineola, L. I., lend the trial an absorbing interest. There is mystery, love, jealousy, suspicion, and perhaps hatred. Little more could be added to increase the interest that centers about this famous trial.

HANDSOMEST MAN IN MOVIE'S AT REGALE

According to those who know or care, J. Warren Kerrigan is the handsomest man in the United States.

There is no question about it, for it was decided with due attention to red tape requirements. Mr. Kerrigan did not even enter the campaign or say one word in his own behalf, but all the motion picture fans in the country stood right behind him and gave him a rousing majority in the big beauty contest.

Of all the leading men on the screen today there is none more popular than Kerrigan, especially in western roles, that so exactly suit his type. He has the physique, the poise and the dramatic ability. He knows the west and it naturally follows that his interpretation of the westerner has made him famous. At the Regale today he will be seen in "The Silent Witness," a Victor two-reel drama, and will be supported by Vera Sisson, George Periolat and other Universal favorites. The atmosphere of the west is vivid, there is a delightful romance in the story and the action is stirring. The principal actors in the drama are a boy and girl who love each other, a villain who seeks to come between them and incidentally enrich himself—and a camera—a camera that plays the important part of detective and cupid.

"A Wife on a Wager," a splendid Nestor western, and "When Smaltz Loves," featuring Ford Sterling, completes the program. The Sterling comedy is as screamingly funny as the Kerrigan play is intense, making the bill one of the best that has been offered in any picture theater in many weeks.

NEUTRALITY AND CONTRABAND

A "conduct friendly and impartial" does not make it the duty of the government to prevent its citizens from trading with any of the belligerent powers. Therefore, a citizen of the United States may load a vessel here with wheat, army shoes, armored cars, or any commodities, and clear it for a port in England, France, Germany or Austria without a violation of neutrality.

On the other hand (if the goods are contraband), he runs the risk of capture by a belligerent power, and the United States has no right to come to his aid. The risk is his own. He can sell wheat or copper to Germany or England, and deliver it if he can. But whether delivered or captured, the loading and clearing from our ports is not a violation of neutrality.—Wall Street Journal.
