DR. SALMANS TELLS OF CONDITIONS IN MEXICO

Splendid Lecture Given in Methodist Church Here Yesterday Morning

The Rev. Levi B. Salmans, M. D. spoke at 11 o'clock Sunday morning in the Methodist Episcopal church at Tempe. He has been a missionary in Mexico for the past thirty years, having served in the ministerial and educational work for a part of the time and for 23 years served in the medical missionary work in Guanajuato, where he founded the Good Samaritan Hospital and Dispensary in which he organized the first nurses' training school ever formed in the republic which graduated seven classes of nurses before any other similar institution was sufficiently developed to graduate its first class. The doctor told of the course and development of this medical work and the resultant effect upon the Methodist schools and churches in Guanajuato and indeed upon almost the whole body politic in various respects in all that region. Ninety thousand patients have been served, a quarter of a million dollars earned professionally and turned into the work by himself and his fifteen assistant physicians, a hospital built, equipped and run wholly on indigenous resources without direct aid from the missionary society, splendid schools built up and the first fully self-supporting and self-governing Protestant church of the republic established.

This was the first medical missionary work established under denominational auspices in a Roman Catholic country. Such was its success that six other denominations have taken up the matter, some of them having built splendid hospitals and there having gone to Mexico altogether from the United States about 100 doctors and trained nurses to do medical missionary work. Medical missionaries were supposed to be peculiarly adapted to missionary operations in pagan lands, such as Asia or Africa, where their presence was needed for curing for the health of the other missionaries. Many people seem to have imagined that, because such countries as Mexico possessed modernly educated practitioners, there was no occasion or need there for medical missionaries. This the doctor stated had been shown to be a great mistake, as healing and teaching where from Christ's own days closely allied with preaching for the purposes of evangelism, and healing not less so than teaching. The work of healing in Mexico, the same as in other countries, has been able to furnish an excellent demonstration of the real spirit of love and benevolence existing in the gospel, thus removing doubts and fears, prejudices and hatred and replacing them with confidence and the kindest consideration, as well as with a receptive spirit. These things have to be accomplished in countries where there are modern practitioners of medicine the same as in pagan lands and the healing art is the most powerful agency Christ himself or the apostles or the seventy or preachers appointed by Him were able themselves to find or use. It is the doctor's opinion that all churches in every country, whether considered a missionary land or not, should avail themselves increasingly of the use of the healing art in the hands of the very most skillful and consecrated practitioners, working in intimate association with the preachers and teachers of Christianity for the conversion of all kinds of sinners. If there are any particularly hard cases to reach anywhere this is the particularly efficacious way of going at it and succeeding. The doctor has a daughter who is a teacher of Spanish and German in the Tempe normal school and another, who is a student in the senior class. He came this way from New York, where he has spent the past eight months studying in a New York post graduate medical school, to visit for a few days with these daughters. Next week he returns to Guanajuato, accompanied by Mrs. Salmans, where the authorities have always treated him with the greatest kindness. They did not wish him to leave last April when the American troops attacked Vera Cruz, and since that time have repeatedly communicated with him desiring his return. Dr. Salmans has only the kindest of words for Mexico and Mexicans, and the greatest hopes of their developing a splendid Christian nation in a comparatively near future. People always like to hear an optimistic note in the midst of so much pessimism such as has been dominant in this region concerning Mexico for several years past.

OVER CHRISTMAS

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gilmore of Glendale, Arizona, spent Christmas in Tempe as the guests of Mr. Gilmore's sister, Mrs. Wilbur Eisk and family.

STILL THEY PLAYED

Undaunted by the drizzling rain that set in early in the afternoon, the Tempe band gave its regular Sunday afternoon concert in private at the town hall yesterday. It was a splendid chance to put in some good time at practice and the boys took advantage of it working on some special music for the New Year's day benefit program which is to be given providing the elements will permit.

$10.00 REWARD will be given for the arrest and conviction of any person making Republicans from the premises of subscribers.—Advertisement.

MESA REPETITION OF HISTORY

G. V. Angulo, a Visitor in City, Who Has Resided in State for Sixty Years, Tells of Some Other Rainy Spells—Snow in 1862

G. V. Angulo, of Tucson, who has been in Mesa the past few days as the guest of his son, C. E. Angulo, of The Toggery, looks upon the present rainy spell as a repetition of certain other floods that have visited Arizona. The first severe storm in the memory of one of the oldest settlers in the state was in 1862 while he was a clerk in Tucson. The rain began falling in February and continued for fifteen days and finally ended in a snowstorm. It was during the civil war and many of the residents of the Old Pueblo were under the impression that it was caused primarily by the conflict at that time raging between the north and the south. The unusual amount of water, together with the unprecedented cold, was something unheard of and no other cause could be ascribed.

"In 1881," continued Mr. Angulo, "we had a very severe rain which lasted for seven days. Tucson at that time was made up of adobe houses, and there was not a roof in the town that did not leak."

In the opinion of the aged man the present precipitation, while more copious than in recent years, does not compare in intensity with the storms of '62 and '81.

Mr. Angulo mentioned some of the prices that were charged in the early days when money was plentiful and when liquor flowed freely in the little town of Tucson. Land sold in the '60s at $2.50 per acre, while ordinary mutton brought $1.00 a yard. Corn sold for $1.25 per hundred while a drink of whiskey cost fifty cents.

In the opinion of Mr. Angulo the present rains are liable to continue for some time on account of the early arrival. The start has been made and the real rainy period, January and February are yet to come.

Homer Atkinson, who has been ill from typhoid fever for the past six weeks, is reported as convalescing.

VISITING FRIENDS

Miss Kelly and sister, Miss Edith Kelly, former teachers in the city schools, now employed in the schools of Douglas, are in the city for a visit with friends during the holidays.

CHRISTMAS PROGRAM YESTERDAY

The Baptist church was filled to its capacity yesterday morning when the regular Christmas program which had been prepared for Thursday evening was given. Every child present, regardless of whether a member of the school or not, was given a present. The rendition of the program was very successful and those in charge as well as the visitors who were so fortunate as to be present were very glad that the entertainment had been postponed from Christmas eve until yesterday. The weather was more friendly yesterday than on the original date planned and many more children were present than could have been had the entertainment been given as first planned.

JACK FRASER IN NEW ROLE

Jack Fraser, president of the Mesa City bank, member of the city council, principal owner of Florence, the owner of the Fraser block in Mesa and one of the owners of Everybody's Drug company, sat in the front part of the drug store yesterday and essayed to answer the numerous questions that were asked as to just why the Los Angeles Sunday papers were not in. Mr. Fraser, who has the knack of getting to the point by the shortest possible distance, spent a busy two hours. The drug store handles The Republican as well as the Los Angeles Sunday papers. The Republicans were sold out and there was not a late paper in the store. Scores of people began coming in asking for something to read. The answers to the many questions soon became an effort. It was explained that on account of the washout that there would be no Los Angeles papers. "Why?" was invariably the next question and then the explanation was in order again. Mr. Fraser estimated shortly after noon that he had explained to one thousand people just how the railroad tracks had been washed out—how it was impossible to bring the papers over in a boat or an airship and that the stores was not in collusion with the postoffice or any other corporation to deprive people of their Sunday reading. As a last resort he started selling Ladies' Home Journals and Pictorial Reviews, explaining to the many callers that they would find therein the many things that
