NATIONAL ORE & REDUCTION CO.,
St. Louis, Mo.

GENTLEMEN:—In reply to your letter of inquiry (dated the 9th inst.) relative to the Prospector's Furnace I purchased of you three years ago, I would say that I have used it for smelting antimonial, silver, lead and other ores, and the retorting of zinc ore by means of the crucibles. Its performance is in every respect satisfactory. I consider it a most valuable adjunct to the office, because of its utility in smelting sample lots of ores. Yours truly,
W. ALBERT CHAPMAN.

SPEECH OF A PROSPECTOR.

Truthful Remarks of C. H. Wallace, Delivered in Casa Grande.

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen: I thank you for the honor that you have conferred upon me in asking me to address you. As you are most all of you aware I am a prospector and not a politician, and of course you must not expect to hear eloquence or be informed on those deep and profound intricacies of political economy by me. But if you will give me your kind attention I will endeavor to give you my view of what I think is the greatest problem that has ever come before the American people.

The question as it appears to me, shall we continue to support the gold standard at the expense and enslavement of the laboring and producing masses, for the benefit of the consuming and coupon clipping classes, or change the present order of things and strive to benefit all mankind? I have not the least doubt what your answer will be to the question. But you ask me how is this great object to be accomplished? In this age there is but one answer to a question of this kind, namely: By the judicious and intelligent use of the ballot. Less than two centuries ago my answer would have been (had I lived in that age) by force, for in that age all, or nearly all political points of difference were settled by force of arms, but in this age of advanced civilization the ballot is the most humane and powerful weapon of defense. You may propose the strike, with its attendant evils, riot and destruction of property, and sometimes its fatalities, but it is important. You lose sight of the most and all important factor in the case when you strike, the destruction of values; you lose your time which is valuable, you destroy property which is likewise valuable, and only in one case in ten do you succeed in gaining that for which you were contending. No, gentlemen, the strike, which is an incipient revolution, will never win for you back again the good old times of yore. There was a strike in 1873, though, that was successful from one point of view. It was a strike that destroyed more property, a strike that caused more hardship, a strike that made more poverty than all other strikes in the world, and yet there was not the least riot nor the least bit of bloodshed, not the least of noise. It was the most quiet, the most peaceable strike in the world, and yet the most dreadful in its consequences. It was the blow that struck our monetary system, when the Benedict Arnold of our finances, John Sherman, struck down and demoralized half of the money of the world, in an underhand cowardly, sneaking way, at the instigation and under the pay of the money lending shysters of a foreign country.

Now, my kind hearers, lift was for the benefit and the advantage of those shysters that this infamous deed was done it does not require profound reasoning of political economists, the deep researches of statisticians to tell us that it is for our benefit to right that wrong. In this campaign the child of nature can see as plainly which is right and which is wrong as the greatest savant in the world. If in twenty-three years this plan has made over four thousand millionaires and over four millions of paupers it does not require much perception to see that it is not a good plan. You do not need to be dosed with figures after figures to convince you that the plan is wrong, and all the figures in the world would never convince you that the plan is right. By the same token, speaking of figures puts me in mind of a story; a man was once settling with one of his employees, and the settlement did not seem to suit the employee who was an illiterate man. The employer in his grand way says, "Well, John, you know figures won't lie." "Yes, I know that all right," says John, "but here's can figure." Pardon for the digression, but if it was for and in the interest of the capitalists of Europe to demoralize our silver in there anyone over here so foolish as to expect them to help us remonetize it. I think that forever should lay at rest the hope of international bimetalism.

If no other country will help us remonetize silver, and I do not blame them, when we can see that those governments are in the hands of and conducted by capitalists and aristocrats, why should we not remonetize it without their help or consent. We did not ask for the consent of England to free our black slaves (and would not have got it, if we had) why should we ask her to free our white slaves—ourselves? Gentlemen, I don't blame the coupon clipping classes for fighting us tooth and nail, for if we win their occupation will be gone, their bonds bought back by a prosperous people, and they will have to go to Europe to find aristocratic husbands for their daughters at so many millions per husband. There will be no room in this busy, prosperous country for such parasites as they are, and when they leave this country it will be for the country's good, the only patriotic act that they ever done in their lives.

Gentlemen, you have but three things to do.
First, read; second, think; third, vote. And, my friends, I thank you all for kind attention. Peace, plenty and prosperity will again be with our land.

CUTTING OFF COAL FIELDS.

County Surveyor Samuel Logan left last Monday with a corps of men to begin the work of surveying the line which has been ordered to cut the Deer Creek Coal Fields from the San Carlos Indian reservation. The beginning of this work was delayed several weeks by the non-arrival of the necessary and definite instructions from Washington. The work will now be hurried forward as fast as possible and Mr. Logan expects that he will be able to complete the work inside of forty days and with good luck he may complete it inside of a month.

There are a number of men now located on both coal and gold and copper claims in this mineral district who have been simply there holding their locations for several months, not being permitted to do any work until the segregation had actually been made. When this line is run these men can go to work or make a formal filing on their claims which will hold them.

The beginning of this survey by Mr. Logan will be hailed with joy by these claimants. Everything points to this district becoming one of the greatest wealth producing regions ever developed in Arizona.—Bulletin.

Mark Smith the Man.

[From the Prescott Courier.]

Without disrespect to our friend O'Neill, the Courier honestly believes Mark Smith to be the best man to send to congress under the existing conditions and in view of the almost certain election of Bryan. The O'Neill vote of two years ago sent a corporation and non-holders' lobbyist to congress; and this same vote if cast in the same channel this year will send a man to congress representing exactly the same class of people. Pause, then, and consider the result before you throw your vote away, thereby electing a gold bug. Vote for Mark Smith for he has two-thirds the silver voting strength and needs the other third to defeat the gold bug. Buckley O'Neill has no stronger personal friend than the editor of this paper, and this article is written for the benefit of O'Neill's friends, who are also the friends of silver. Let us save our territory, for that is our duty. We care nothing about Mark Smith, but must rally around the standard he bears, for that is our only road to political and financial salvation.

FADS AND FANCIES.

Sandals have superseded every other kind of bedroom slipper. No woman who boasts the pleasure of negligence considers her costume complete without a pair of heeled slippers of soft kid.

The more temptations you get the better, only temptations you must have, if you pose as a connoisseur of tripe-oh-rah. You can have them of any sort of material—copper, silver, glaze, in any color, and in any sort of pottery, only make their number plentiful and place them conspicuously in your cabinet.

The pagoda-shaped Geisha parasol is in great vogue. No other can quite compete with it. The ribs are flattened out so as to display to the greatest advantage the soft chiffon or light silk lining. Oriental chine fabrics are most in demand, with colored mother-of-pearl handles in odd, fantastic designs.

Lighted lanterns to be worn for personal ornaments are being sold by the tens of thousands in Paris, where the haute monde inclines to any sort of novelty with eagerness. These lanterns are very small and neat, of gnostic form, made in tin, with glass plates about the size of walnuts, and are carried by ladies in their bouquets.

Old-time necklaces and brooches of amber that have been cast aside as out of fashion are coming ones more to the fore. The exquisite coloring of the stone is quoted universally and is always admitted to have a peculiar faculty for bringing out the whiteness of the skin. A great deal is said, too, about the soft comforts of its purple depths.

The princes of Wales celebrated "Norwich Gates," at Sandringham, are considered the finest specimens in the kingdom of wrought iron.

GROWTH OF SILVER SENTIMENT.

It is Not Confined to Any One Section of the Country.

That the growth of silver sentiment is not sectional has been shown by the recent developments in New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Massachusetts. In New York Senator Hill has at last been pried off the fence by his own constituents, who, in electing him a delegate to the state convention, have unanimously instructed him to vote for the endorsement of the Chicago candidate and platform. That Mr. Hill has been unable to accept his election under conditions that would require him to divorce himself from the popular excitements that have grown so essential to his comfort since the days when he was a democrat does not detract from the value of this exhibition of eastern popular feeling. A still more impressive display of the spread of democratic principles has been witnessed in New Jersey, where the democratic state convention met on the very day on which the Jersey bond syndicate candidate for the vice presidency issued his letter of acceptance. Only four months ago a convention purporting to represent the New Jersey democracy met, and with funeral solemnity resolved to battle for the gold standard. That gathering assembled in the gloom of assured and well-deserved defeat. Now the real democracy of New Jersey, revived, rejuvenated and confident of victory, has come together and enthusiastically pledged itself to the restoration of bimetalism. In connection the primaries indicated that the advocates of gold will be routed in the coming state convention, and in Massachusetts the friends of the Chicago platform are not only carrying everything within the democratic organization, but an impartial tally shows that they have a good chance of carrying the state in the election.—N. Y. Journal.

The sting of a wasp is eased by rubbing on the wound a slice of a freshly cut onion.

In New York city the percentage of deaths from apoplexy has quadrupled during the past 20 years.

The ordinary speed of a house-fly is 25 feet a second; but when chased it often attains a speed of 160 feet a second.

Leonard Hartman, of Dubuque, Ia., has 11 sons. He lately adopted nine little girls, whose ages range from three to fourteen years. They are the daughters of his deceased brother.

A beautiful and costly bicycle was given by a Chicago groom, to his bride, as a wedding gift. Four weeks afterward she eloped on it, her escort being an expert wheelman.

A bicyclist in Marquette, Mich., saw a small animal in his path, and as it made no effort to move he ran over it. It proved to be a porcupine, as his collapsed tires quickly demonstrated.

There are some bright lads in New Jersey. A schoolboy in Newark was asked to name five of the great canals in the world, and he promptly announced, as first on the list, "the all-metallary canal."

A cruel husband in Lowell, Mass., deserted his wife, but the heavy hand of the law brought him up with a round turn. The unhappy woman thus tersely described the affair, in a letter to a friend: "With the help of two policemen, the judge, and God, a loving husband and kind father has been returned to the bosom of his family."

GOSSIP FROM ABROAD.

Carisbrooke castle, where Charles I. was kept a prisoner just before he was brought to trial, is to be turned into a museum for curiosities and antiquities connected with the Isle of Wight.

A serum cure for the bubonic plague has been discovered by Dr. Gersin, of the Paris Pasteur institute. He made his first experiment at Amoy just after the plague at Hong Kong in 1894.

An English motor car manufacturer is building a two-story steel house to run on wheels, propelled by a motor under it. The top story is collapsible so as to enable the house to pass under bridges.

A submarine mountain range has been discovered in the southern part of Davis strait by the Danish steamer Ingo, which has been carrying on deep-sea explorations on the Iceland and Greenland coasts for the past two years.

During the session the house of commons devoured 23,316 dinners and 13,327 lunches. The kitchen committee has a profit of $6,500 in cash to show, besides $300 worth of provisions, $1,300 of cigars and $9,000 of wine in stock.

STAMPS AND COLLECTORS.

The United States section of the Tapping collection of stamps is now on view at the British museum.

Sauter has a new five-cent stamp, brown. The arms are in a circle, surrounded by a rectangular frame containing the usual inscription.

On the eighty-sixth anniversary of the independence of the Argentine Republic, commemorative stamps were issued. They all have a circular stamp, with a head of Liberty.

The Philatelic club exchange is a London institution just started. The club has the usual reading, writing, smoking and dining-rooms, and holds "musical evenings," but the chief feature, of course, is the exchange and sale of stamps.

Stamp collecting seems to be especially attractive to the minister, physician, lawyer and banker. Of course, all boys are stamp collectors, but the great majority drop it when they get out of their teens. By that time they find there is no money in it, at least not enough to pay for the time they must devote to collecting.
