WEEKLY EPIGRAPH

A Quiet Week.—usual Amount of Mining done

We are informed that the mining portion of the North is comparatively quiet. The work is being done, but not in the extreme spirit of former days. The miners are not so ambitious as they used to be, and the canaries are not in such demand as formerly. The laborers are more contented and the wages are not so high as in the past. The government has been working on the mines and the end result will be a decrease in production. The miners are more inclined to look after their families and less interested in the chase. The mining companies are not as prosperous as they were in the past, and the future looks less promising.

BATTLE OF BURLINGTON

The Earp Party Ambushed by Curly and Right-Hand

A narrow escape was had by a band of Earp party members as they attempted to ambush the Earp party in Burlington last Saturday night. While on their way to the ambush, the Earp party members were met by a party of bandits who had been watching their movements. A fierce fight took place, and a number of Earp party members were killed. The Earp party members were surprised and taken by surprise, and it was only by great bravery and resourcefulness that they were able to escape.

THE COMING OF THE RAILROAD

The construction of the railroad through the territory has come as a great relief to the miners. It has opened up new possibilities for mining and has made it possible for miners to transport their products more easily. The railroad has also brought in new settlers who are interested in mining and have brought with them new capital and new ideas. The miners are grateful for the railroad and hope that it will bring them more prosperity in the future.
