Harry Thaw is now in the Nan Patterson class.

The baseball season has opened throughout the country and all of the fans and windmills are working overtime.

The new governor of Jamaica is said to be a Socialist, but that's no sign that he is more sociable than his predecessor, Sir Alexander Swettenham.

California papers have gone into ecstasies over the address to the jury of Native Son Delmas, in which he made Thaw the champion of American womanhood. Well, as the old lady said, it's all a matter of taste.

Chicago seems to have been able to discriminate between a theory and a condition," says the New York Tribune. Having never heard Willie Hearst called either of these names, we do not exactly catch the Tribune's meaning, but it seems that Willie is a trifle to real istic to be a mere theory and too easily dawning to be a very serious condition.

Frank Heney told two thousand students at Berkeley yesterday to be "fighting men." Just as President Roosevelt told the Harvard students not to be "mollycoddlers." There is a lot of difference between a "fighting man" and a "mollycoddle," as we interpret the president's term, and it is up to some prominent personage to tell some other students to be the difference between fighting men and mollycoddlers. That should be a very happy medium; it will keep a man from getting licked when he is looking for a fight or running away from it and it offers an opportunity for the coining of a new word.

OLD LAW WILL STAND

The present erratic action of the metal markets, particularly that in copper, gives evidence of considerable manipulation. No reason is given for the slump in the price of the metal and it must be concluded that the lower prices quoted are not the result of a normal condition, based upon consumption and production. The demand for copper has been increasing steadily and will continue to increase, while no appreciable increase in production can be looked for, for at least a year. The heavy users of the metal may balk at what they consider an exorbitant price, but they will eventually come up to it, just as they have done during the last eight months. There is no way of getting the better of the law of supply and demand.

THAT MYSTERIOUS "CON-SPIRACY"

It scarcely needed the positive denial of Senator Penrose that he ever made the statement attributed to him—that a pool of "rich men" had raised a fund of $5,000,000 to prevent the nomination for president of any Republican favored by Mr. Roosevelt—to discredit the extraordinary story given out at the White House. It was essentially improbable and inherently absurd. The president, in one of his letters to Mr. Harriman, said "we are both practical men." In his talk to the newspaper men in his private office on Thursday he boasted that he was "no novice" in politics. He certainly has not been, up to a very recent date. How could a "practical man" of the hard-headed Harriman class, or a seasoned expert in politics, credit the yarn—no matter how circumstantially told—that a senator "in his cups" had given away a deep laid plot to prevent the president from naming his successor, through the use of $5,000,000 and the employment of the gaudy device of electing favorite son delegates in the several states, ostensibly friendly to Roosevelt, but secretly bent on his overthrow?

In the first place, no "captain of industry" with brains enough to have accumulated a million dollars could be so idiotic as to believe that any amount of money could turn back the popular tide that has been running Mr. Roosevelt's way for the last five years. Even a plutocratic paranoiac could have no such delusion as that. In the second place, the president's choice for the nomination is known to be Secretary Taft. Are there any "rich Republicans" in Pennsylvania,

New York or elsewhere who would be afraid to trust Taft as president, or who would not infinitely prefer him to Bryan, Hearst or any of that crowd? Would not even the Harrimans, Morgans, Vanderbilts and Rockefellers a thousand times rather have him than Roosevelt for another term—which might be the result of such an attempt as has been described to reverse the president's policies?

Senator Penrose says not only that he never made the statement attributed to him, nor heard of such a fund, but that he has not attended any "recent dinner" at Washington, having been absent from the country for a month. Furthermore, he says, as the record proves, that he has "always been a supporter of and believer in President Roosevelt's administration and all its policies." The Standard Oil officials and Mr. Harriman characterize the story as false and preposterous.

It may be possible that "all men are liars"—save one—but these denials were not necessary to discredit the mare's nest story told to the correspondents at Washington.—Boston Herald.

The College Boy

Of this clever young comedian who is to appear here at Dreamland Tuesday, April 16, the comedy with music, "The College Boy," much can be said. He has recently reached his majority, but has already starred in some of the largest musical comedies. "The Maid and the Mummy" and recent revivals of comic opera in New York. Last season his performance of Anthony Tweedle-punch in "Floradora" earned the very highest encomiums from the eastern press. He has played Tom in "All the Comforts of Home," the Aunt in "Charley's Aunt." At the head of his own comic opera company this season and in "The College Boy" he has a part that fits him like a glove and has ample opportunity for introducing his phenomenal dancing. The supporting company are all clever comedians selected from the musical comedies—"The Silver Slipper," "Floradora" and others.

Five Aces Changed Poker to Razors Is assault justifiable when made on a person found holding five aces in a poker game.

This knotty problem Magistrate Geisman was called upon to solve yesterday in the Myrtle Avenue police court, in Brooklyn, when three men were arraigned charged with having inflicted several gashes with razors on the face of a fourth.

The accused men are Tony Briglise, Pedro Colero and Ermino San Juan. They with Robino Zgesian, engaged in a five-cent limit poker game Monday evening. The game proceeded quietly until Zgesian, it is alleged, threw down a hand of five aces and attempted to take the pot.

A few minutes later he was bleeding, and his screams called the police. The magistrate remanded the prisoners for a further hearing.—New York American.

Lassoed a Big Eagle

Sherman Gardner succeeded in capturing a magnificent specimen of the bald eagle in some timber near his home, three miles west of here. Gardner had gone to the timber to secure some firewood and spied the eagle which was resting on the topmost branch of a tree. With a small rifle he succeeded in winging the bird, and it fluttered to the ground. He approached it and endeavored to make it a prisoner, but in spite of its wounded wing the bird put up a gallant fight, striking Gardner with his uninjured pinion and tearing his clothes and lacerating his face and hands with his sharp talons.

Finally Gardner secured a lasso and succeeded in looping this about the neck of the eagle, and then wound the balance of the rope about its wings so as to render it helpless. He then took the bird home and dressed its injured wing. The eagle is one of the largest specimens that ever have been seen in this vicinity, measuring more than seven feet from tip to tip.—Atlanta Georgian.

Dress Reform in Cincinnati

A new dress reformer is abroad, a new Richmond has entered the field to enforce sensible attire for women. He has 600 assistants sworn to aid him, and his name is Milliken, chief of police. Here is his edict, issued today:

"The kimono must not be worn on the streets. "The high heeled slippers must go, when accompanied by purple stockings or other gaudy ankle incensement. "Skirts must not be held too high, no matter how rainy the day. "Young girls must not wear fascinators."

Milliken has said it. He has told his lieutenants, sergeants and patrolmen to arrest any persons appearing on the streets in attire that would not look well in church.—Cincinnati dispatch to Philadelphia North American.
